A Newport, R. I., despatch, says: "The flagship Richmond on Saturday raised the sunken gun which slipped overboard a few days ago, and hoisted it on board. The gun in its travels had met one of the Richmond's anchors, and this was hanging from the carriage as the gun appeared above the surface of the water."

OPIUM

Morphine Habit easily cured at home. DR. J. C. HOFFMAN, Jefferson, Wis.

dagtnov18 mon,wed,sat.6

Hideous in Every Guise,

Whether it be the best known form, chills and fever, or else bilious remittent, double ague or ague cake, is that abominable disorder involving the liver, the bowels and the kidneys, known as malaria. Every complaint classified under this generic, though erroneous appellation, is destructive of the nervous system, but is, unhappily, not to be subdued, or even checked, by the use of ordinary nervines, febrifuges or tonics. There is, however, prompt relief and ultimate cure to be found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, foremost among the proprietary medicines of America, and widely known in other lands. Not only diseases born of miasma, but rheumatic complaints, superinduced by exposure in bad weather, inherited or incurred debility of the kidneys or bladder, dyspepsia and an irregular condition of the bowels, are curable—nay, certain to be cured by this deservedly esteemed and professionally sanctioned corrective.

—One day little Emma's mother reproved her quite sharply for not changing her shoes. After a moments reflection Emma said: "I wish you would be real good to me mama. I fink you would like it after you got used to it."

Be Careful!

No matter what disease you may have. Be sure that the medicine you take is reliable. Such a medicine you will always find Sulphur Bitters. They are not a cheap rum drink, but are made of the choicest roots and herbs to be found in the vegetable kingdom.—Daily Argus.

—A German has invented a new kind of iron chimney which can be taken down and used as a cannon in time of war.

—A fine little story comes from Rockville, Ill., where it is said that just as a "spreading viper" was about to strike a baby a cat pounced upon the snake and killed it.

We have sold Wister's Balsam of Wild Cherry for many years. Nothing we have sold has ever given such perfect satisfaction for coughs and colds, and in advanced cases of consumption it has shown remarkable efficacy. P. S. Brown & Co., Fall River, Mass.

—A Georgia debating society discussed the question: "Did 'Zeke Slade's tobacco barn burn up or down?" It was decided that it did.

James Pyle's Pearline is acknowledged to be the best preparation in use for laundry purposes. It enables the washer to cleanse the clothes without wearing them out with rubbing or pounding.

—One of the best known inhabitants of St. Paul, Minn., is a Sioux squaw who bears the striking title, "The-Squaw-Who-Picks-the-Hockleberry-Running."

The breath of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he cannot go into society, and he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked, and frequently, entirely destroyed. A constant source of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which in its turn has been the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results which have attended its use for years past properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best, if not the only real cure for hay fever, rose cold and catarrh.

—A Geoogia farmer made $100 off an acre planted in watermelons, and a neighboring doctor made $200 off the same acre.

Something that will quiet the nerves, give strength to the body, induce refreshing sleep, improve the quality of the blood, and purify and brighten the complexion, is what many persons would be glad to obtain. Carter's Iron Pills are made for exactly for this class of troubles, and are remarkably successful in accomplishing the ends desired, as named above. They are useful for both men and women. Price, 50 cents a box.

—"Men of note"—those whose faces you see on greenbacks.

There is no one article in the line of medicines that gives so large a return for the money as a good porous strengthening plaster, such as Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache plasters.

Hundreds of persons who have used Ayer's Hair Vigor attest its value, as a stimulant and tonic, for preventing and curing baldness, cleansing the scalp, and restoring the youthful color to faded and gray hair.

Female Help.

Servant girls and, in fact, most women, suffer from weak back and side ache. Apply a Hop Plaster and experience instant relief. Strengthening and pain-killing. 25 cts. Druggists.

—Too rough for the cutter—a chopping sea.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Don't!—If a dealer offers you a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup without wrapper or labels, or in a mutilated condition, don't touch it—don't buy it at any price, there is something wrong—It may be a dangerous or worthless counterfeit. Insist upon getting a perfect, unbroken, genuine package.

The steam propeller Vernon has foundered in Lake Michigan, with the loss of fifty lives. The steamer Superior passed through a lot of wreckage, and saw several rafts and a boat, bearing from two to five persons each, but could not render aid, being herself in a very bad condition and the sea running very high.

Those unhappy persons who suffer from nervousness and dyspepsia should use Carter's Little Nerve pills, which are made expressly for sleepless, nervous, dyspeptic sufferers. Price 25 cents.

A Memphis, Tenn., woman placed $7000 in her bustle for safe keeping, and in a moment of forgetfulness loaned the bustle to a servant girl to wear at a wedding. The girl has not returned.

Women with pale, colorless faces, who feel weak and discouraged, will receive both mental and bodily vigor by using Carter's Iron Pills, which are made for the blood, nerves and complexion.

Leadville, Col., is said to support 1100 saloons, but the public schools have been closed a year for a lack of funds, and no wonder. Such an expenditure for liquor would leave nothing for schools.

Skin diseases cannot be successfully treated by external applications. The proper way to cure such complaints is to purify the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Under the vitalizing influences of this medicine all the functions of the body are brought into healthy action.

A cow belonging to George Page of Dover got loose one night last week, and in running about the yard stuck the pole of a two-horse cart into her breast, killing her instantly.

Stop and Think

How much money you have thrown aw buying worthless medicines, prepared by unprincipled parties, who care not what harm they may do to your system. You can depend on every bottle of Sulphur Bitters as being a reliable medicine. It searches out and cleanses from the blood all impure matter, and makes you feel like a new person.—Boston Daily Globe.

At Sandy Hill, N. Y., Oct. 29th, John Miner pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy, and was sent to the penitentiary for ten years. He is seventy-one years old, and has a large and select ssortment of wives.

Do you suffer with catarrh? You can be cured if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier. Sold by all druggists.

Mrs. C. B. Woodman of Saccarappa, Me., received a letter from Wisconsin on Oct. 8th, via Waterville, her former home, from a brother, George W. Spear, whom she had not seen for thirty-two years, and who was supposed to have been drowned thirty years ago. The letter was addressed in her maiden name, and sent in care of a gentleman who has been dead twenty-five years.

MASTER OF THE HOUNDS.

Qualifications of the Successful Huntsman—Tantalizing the Pack—"Blood."

If a hunter is sufficiently versed in the craft and has the physical strength, as well as devotion to the cause, to go through the fatigue—and it is very considerable—of drawing coverts (by far the most wearisome part of the whole business), halloaing his hounds away to their fox, cheering them in chase, as well as always being close to them during a run, he will do well to hunt them himself; but it is a task of all things that demands endurance, patience, keenness, in eminent degree, and above all, in order to be successful, an intuitive, inborn knowledge of hunting. He must, moreover, or at least he ought to, spend a great deal of his time in his kennels, often draw out the hounds to feed, walk them out in the airing meadow, and in every way so familiarize himself with them that they will care for no one but him, will fly to his halloa, turning to his voice or even hand, and, in their own way, absolutely talk to him.

It is not, however, every man who, fond as he may be of hounds and capable of hunting them, cares to or can devote so much time and attention to them at home—added to which the kennels are often several miles from his house; but, even without the performance of all these domestic details, he will have them as much under command and as ready to work for him as he can wish if his hunting of them is good enough and if they get that confidence in his appreciation of them, and in his power to guide or help them, which is indispensable to sport. Above all, if he is as anxious to kill as they are themselves, and if, when he has his fox in hand, more especially at the end of a hard run or a long day, he breaks him up in style, making the very most of the obsequies, and tantalizing them with the expected worry till they are almost frantic.

To see a master or huntsman holding his fox high in air, a big dog pack in front of him, every hound mad with expectation and baying with that savage, angry note only heard when they are about to eat him, and then with a last "Wharp, tellyo, tellyo!" dash the fox into their faces, to be torn in an instant into a "hundred tatters of brown!"—this sight is enough to stir even a limpid spirit, and make it feel there is something in fox hunting. There is a great deal of moonshine talked about "blood," but hounds run just as fast whether they kill or not. It is there instinct to chase—to drive their hardest on the scent, according as it serves them—and it makes no difference to them whether they have broken up a brace of foxes in the morning or not, as to how they will settle to their afternoon fox. The primary business of the huntsman is said to be to kill the fox; our own opinion is, that it is much more to show sport; and if we were master of any hunt servants who used unfair means, such as heading him back into their mouths at the end of a covert, they would not do it a second time and stay with us.

"Blood" is a mania with many good men, but most of all is it carried to excess in the cubbing season. From the beginning of September, often a fortnight earlier, for several weeks, the practice is to take out about thirty couples of hounds, the majority being old, or "working" ones, at daylight, throw them into some small spinnery or other place where there is known to be a litter, and literally "mop up" a brace or leash of the unsophisticated youngsters before they have ever heard the sound of horn or hound. What young hounds want to learn first and foremost is to put their noses down and hunt a line by scent; and they are certainly not likely to do this by being turned loose in some inclosure where they are for the greater part of the time performing natural feats of valor after hares and rabbits. The real secret of this slaughter of the innocents is to aggrandize the total of masks at the end of the season. A crack pack that goes out four and five days a week will, in a good open season, bring to hand from seventy to a hundred brace of foxes. But how many of these have been killed before even Oct. 1—before 9 o'clock in the morning—and not before more than a dozen people—why, nearly half of them.—Outing.

Lorenzo Dow's Clock.

At the New London county fair last week John Troland, of this city, exhibited the clock that ticked for Lorenzo Dow in his gambrel roofed house at Oxoboxo lake, six miles west of this city. Elder Dow brought the clock from England. It is more than 100 years old. It is a quaint and striking timepiece. There is simply a rim dial plate, around which two long crooked fingers creep, with open air works behind it, no case, and two or three brass weights on cords dangle six feet below the face. It was going during the fair, and attracted a great deal of attention. Thousands of people stopped before it, and elderly men had many stories to tell of its famous owner, Elder Dow's name being a household word in this part of the state.

"Tain't what you'd call a pretty piece," said one of the visitors, a stalwart old farmer, who remembered the eccentric preacher, "but then Lorenzo warn't a handsome critter, an' it looks summut like him, tew. It's got his voice, sure's yer born."—New York Sun.

Late calculations from compared observations show that Alcyone—that one of the pleiades around which the sun and the whole solar system were once thought to revolve—is about 934,000,000,000,000 miles from us, a distance that it would take light about 163 years to travel.—Chicago Times.

An ordinary elephant produces 120 pounds of ivory, worth $60. England consumes 650 tons (of which Sheffield one-third), for which it is necessary to kill 12,000 elephants yearly.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She tried all the best known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

EDWARD LUEDER, 1505 Broadway, N. Y.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a simple application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually sapping away upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

Mr. John T. Dowell, commission merchant, 102 S. Charles street, Baltimore, Md., writes:—"I have been a great sufferer with pain in my back and kidneys, hearing that Salvation Oil would relieve me I procured a bottle, tried it but a few times, and it gave me complete relief, and I have not been troubled in this way since. For lumbago and neuralgic affections I consider it an excellent remedy.

Rev. S. N. S. Greeley of Gilmanton, has been appointed poet at the annual reunion at Ionia, Mich., of the veterans of the Tenth Michigan regiment, of which he was chaplain, to occur in December next.

An honest medicine is one that the proprietors are willing to warrant. Such is the Constitutional Cough Syrup sold at Kimball's drug store. It is a sure cure for coughs, colds and all affections of the throat and lungs. Price twenty-five and fifty cents per bottle.

Hon Daniel G. Rollins, who has been nominated by the republicans of New York city for judge of the supreme court, is a native of Great Falls, and was graduated from Dartmouth in 1860.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

Burglars entered the house of W. M. Boswell at Newton Junction on Sunday night, stealing three gold watches and cash; and from the store of Mrs. Walker, in which the post-office is located, they took $10 and some postage stamps.

Times Change; Newspapers, Too.

The democratic papers of Massachusetts, notably the Boston Globe, are whooping it up for Lovering for governor on the ground that he served bravely at the front during the war of the rebellion, and sneering muchly at Gov. Ames, republican candidate for re-election, because he hired a substitute when he was drafted in 1864. Unless our memory is greatly at fault, these same democratic papers have not been backward in years past, in informing republican papers that have urged the war record of republican candidates as a reason why they should be supported, perhaps against ex-confederates, that the war was over years ago, and that no honest man or true patriot would seek to reopen its wounds and resurrect its horrors for partisan ends. And let's see; did not a democratic gentleman named Cleveland, now holding a very prominent position in the nation, hire a substitute when he was drafted? We have certainly seen something of the kind stated.

W. L. Douglas $3 Shoe.

A new departure has recently been made by Mr. Douglas in the manufacture of his celebrated $3 shoes, by the introduction of improved lasting and other machinery, by which they are made not only seamless, but without tacks or nails. This shoe has now about reached perfection, and notwithstanding the large expense necessary to make these improvements Mr. Douglas is perfectly satisfied if he can furnish a first-class article at a low price. We especially recommend our readers to try this shoe once, and we are satisfied they will be pleased with the experiment. The $2.50 shoe for gentlemen, and the $2 shoe for boys, made by Mr. Douglas, still hold their standard of excellence.

A bottle was picked up last week on the beach at Barnstable, Mass., containing a note signed Dennis Murphy, reporting the steamer Sidney Wright in a sinking condition off the Florida coast, with her propeller gone, and the only hope of the crew to be quickly rescued by some passing vessel. It was at first thought that the affair was the silly hoax of some practical joking idiot, as no such vessel as the Sidney Wright is mentioned in the treasury list of merchant steamers; but it is learned that a small iron steamer of that name, valued at $12,000 and used as a ferry boat between Philadelphia and Tacony, Pa., was sold in 1880 by Peter Wright & Sons of Philadelphia to parties in Florida, sailed Sept. 14th in that year from the Walnut street wharf in Philadelphia for Florida, and has never since been heard from. It is further stated that her mate was a Massachusetts man named Murphy, and the sad story of the bottle is now believed to be authentic.

Secretary of the Navy Whitney is sadly in need of repairs. He has been strained by too many good dinners. He does not seem to have the stowage capacity of his earlier predecessor, Mr. Robeson, or the active brain of the restless and irrepressible Chandler, who could so quickly work or talk off the effect of the vintages. Indeed, the secretary is in a very poor state of health, and is advised to keep away from his office, and go into dock for an overhaul. This will delay his annual report, in which there may be such an opportunity to demonstrate how much better the navy is managed under a reform administration than it was in republican terms.

Jay Gould has gone to Europe. He did not wish to remain on this side to hear the criticisms by the telegraph patrons upon the rise in rates incident to his control of his former competitor, the Baltimore & Ohio line.

It is a singular coincidence that now the election in New York is nigh at hand, there are at the New York navy yard seven or eight commissioned vessels which are soon to go upon active duty. The Atlanta is having 450 tons of coal put on board. It is not known where she is to go, or when she will return to active duty. The plan is to have one or two of the vessels of the North Atlantic squadron arrive at that yard at a time, and have coal and other necessary supplies put on board. Work on the Colossus ship-house, preparatory to building the new 6,000-ton war vessel, is progressing rapidly, and the house will soon be ready for laying the keel.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, giving remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. Wood, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. Balcom, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. Proudfoot, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

CHEAP EXCURSION.

The Boston & Maine railroad advertises a citizens' excursion to Boston, tickets good going on any train Thursday, Nov. 3d, and returning on any train that day or Friday, at $1.95 from this city for the round trip, including admission to the Mechanic's Fair, which is one of the most interesting exhibitions ever given in Boston. The fare from York Beach, for the round trip and admission to the fair, is $2 60; from Kittery, $2.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Wm. D. Grace arrived home on Saturday from a trip to New York.

Capt. Oren Lamprey, keeper of Boon island light-station, is in from the island for a stay of two or three days.

Hon. Marcellus Eldredge was in Lowell, Mass., last Sunday, in attendance on the funeral of F. J. Cummisky, his agent for that city, who was killed while crossing a railroad track in Somerville on Thursday last.

Mr. George W. Marston, who was recently in this city on a visit from the west, has assumed the duties of cashier of the Evansville branch of the Louisville, Evansville & St. Louis railroad, with headquarters at Evansville, Ind.

Mr. Wallace J. Lear, who recently entered upon the honorable estate of matrimony, was on Monday evening presented by Kearsarge S. F. E. Co., of which organization he is a popular and respected member, with a fine easy chair.

MARITIME NOTES.

The brick schooners Estella, Triton and J. Chester Wood arrived at Boston on Sunday, Oct. 30th, from this port.

The schooners Grace Choate and Laughing Water are at Randall & Caswell's wharf, fitting for winter fishing.

The private pleasure boats on the river are about all hauled up for the winter. Most of the letting boats have been stored, and the rest soon will be.

Duncan's Clark's Monster Female Minstrels at Music hall this evening; see advertisement.

The remains of the late John Harris of Lawrence, Mass., formerly of this city, were brought here for interment on Monday; a delegation of the Grand Army post of Lawrence accompanied the body. Ex-Mayor Breeze of Lawrence was with the party.

The trustees of the public library have made arrangements to have several of the more popular magazines and weekly papers in the reading room now connected with the library, for general reading.

Gov. Sawyer and council last week endorsed President Cleveland so far as to adopt his selection for a day of national thanksgiving, Thursday, Nov. 24th, for Thanksgiving day in New Hampshire. Mr. John Laighton, No. 1 Market square, gives notice as to where Thanksgiving stores of the best quality and extensive variety can be found.

Mr. John W. Trafton of this city, recently deceased, was one of the best English scholars graduated from our Portsmouth high schools. He was of very agreeable disposition and pleasing manners, and had many warm friends. He was for some time under the instruction of Mr. C. M. Gignoux in the life insurance business, and of late had been managing an office in Lebanon, though for some time previous to his death he had been stopping at Kittery Point in hope of benefitting his health, which had been gradually failing since he ruptured a blood vessel in a test of strength about four years ago. V.

The club boarding house on State street, though not many months established, has won a reputation of which the courteous and popular proprietor, Mr. Garvin, may justly be proud, as it is through his untiring and well directed efforts that so gratifying a measure of success has been achieved. He has just secured the services, as chef de cuisine, of Mr. Aaron Hicks, who during the past season was employed at the Wentworth, and since the close of that house, at the Rockingham, and who is entirely competent to fulfill the duties of the position.

Ayers & Locke, who carry at all times in their extensive store on Market street one of the largest, most varied and best selected stocks of dry goods, carpets, etc., to be found in New England outside of Boston, call especial attention to their November offering of seasonable goods, blankets, colored plushes, gentlemen's under-wear, Continental sheetings, heavy prints, etc.,—all these, and many other goods, being offered at prices which make them genuine bargains to the purchaser. Persons in want of anything in their line will do well to inspect their immense stock and learn their prices before going elsewhere.

The baskets for the ladies to fill to be sold at the basket supper on Wednesday evening, Nov. 9th, at the Methodist church on State street, are now ready and can be obtained of the committee for ten cents. It is hoped that a large number of baskets will be taken.

The Eastern Star, of Kennebunk, has the following: "The evening star attracts good deal of attention. It is brightest about four o'clock in the morning, and presents a scene of rare brilliancy. It resembles a miniature sun, and it is well worth losing a morning nap to see it." Our brother of Kennebunk should look closer after the morals and manners of the other Maine luminaries. In New Hampshire we never allow the evening star to stay out until four o'clock in the morning.

One hundred and twenty-four maple trees have been set out by the city on Newcastle avenue and the adjoining portion of Water street,—eighty-two on one side and forty-two on the other; they are planted so thickly that if all should flourish, one-half of them, if not more, will have to be removed to give the rest room to grow. A handsome stone wall is being built near the toll bridge. The work of setting out trees on both sides of Sagamore road, from South street to Little Harbor road, has been completed.

Judging from the large number of fish-box shooks piled up on Commercial wharf, the Water street firms purchasing fish there intend doing considerable business the coming winter.

Capt. Ed. Jameson's hotel on Water street, the Jefferson house, has been taken charge of by Mr. George D. Moore, who has been employed there for three years past.

A dinner was given on board the United States training ship New Hampshire at Newport, R. I., on Saturday evening last, by the officers of the ship, in honor of Capt. A. R. Yates and wife. Capt. Yates' three years command of the New Hampshire has ceased, he being succeeded by Commander J. F. Higginson, and many naval officers and ladies were present at the farewell dinner in his honor. Saturday morning Capt. Yates bade goodby to the boys of the ship, with whom he has been very popular, and deservedly so, he having at all times shown an earnest and judicious interest in promoting their welfare. He has returned to this city, and is now on waiting orders.

Capt. John G. Moses is having his buildings on Maplewood avenue repainted, by Mr. George H. Tripp. The Venard house, corner of Vaughan and Deer streets, has been repainted by Colley & Moore.

The north millpond was thickly populated with smelts on Monday. The fish were of good size, but would not take the hook very well.

The Congregational Church in Saugus, Mass., has extended a call to Rev. Isaac C. White, late pastor of the Congregational church in Newmarket.

The Woman's Independent Relief Corps, No. 1, of New Hampshire, will give an entertainment to consist of a drama, reading and singing, in Good Templars' hall in Exchange building, opposite the post-office, on Friday evening, Nov. 4th. Admission twenty-five cents, supper included. All are invited.

MARY C. TAYLOR, Pres't.
FLORA B. RANDALL, Sec.

Have you seen the Ladies' and Misses' Cloaks just received by Lewis E. Staples? They are beauties, and low priced.

Captain John G. Walker, chief of the bureau of navigation, before he was superseded as acting secretary of the navy by Commodore D. B. Harmony, reconsidered his refusal to approve the vouchers for pilotage presented by Captains Boyd and Bunce, of the Richmond and Atlanta. These officers gave no explanation with their vouchers as to the circumstances making necessary the employment of pilots to take the vessels safely up the bay to Philadelphia on the occasion of the Constitutional Centennial celebration, and according to regulation Captain Walker, as chief of the bureau of navigation, was obliged to refuse to pass the vouchers, and as acting secretary of the navy was compelled to approve his own action in the premises. Subsequently leading men of Philadelphia made a vigorous protest in public print against the injustice done the commanding officers of the vessels. The officers themselves explained that the weather was foggy, and no one on board being well acquainted with navigation in the bay, pilots were an absolute necessity. The protests and explanations being highly satisfactory, the acting secretary passed the vouchers, and peace has been restored.

In his annual report the surgeon general of the navy will recommend that the pay of an assistant surgeon of the navy be increased to that of a first lieutenant of cavalry, and that surgeons in the navy be placed on the same salary footing as a major and surgeon in the army. He will also recommend that assistant surgeons be quartered in the ward-room instead of the steerage.

Notice to Mariners.

Notice is given by the lighthouse board that on or about Dec. 1st, 1887, a whistling buoy, painted red, with letters "P. M." in black, will be moored in about twenty-two fathoms of water, distant one mile S. ¾ W. from Petit Menan light-station, Narragangus bay, in Maine. The buoy will be sounded by the action of the sea and give from twenty to thirty blasts per minute.

Notice is also given that an iron spindle thirty-seven feet high, and surmounted by an open-work cylindrical iron cage, painted red, has been erected on Old Man ledge, south of George's island, east side of Muscongas bay, Maine.

The new bridge would have been open for travel this week, but for some inexcusable reason the plank has not yet arrived. As is well known to all our citizens the civil engineer employed to lay out the abutments made a serious mistake in his work, and constructed them parallel with the river instead of the road. This brings one end of the bridge nearly in the middle of the road, and places it at an angle with the highway. Many of our citizens not being satisfied with it, have drawn up a petition, which we understand is now being circulated, asking the selectmen to exchange the bridge for one longer, so it can be placed on the abutments straight with the road. We understand the cost of making the change would only be about $1000, and the bridge would then give complete satisfaction, whereas as it now is it will always be an eyesore, and an object of ridicule. If this is done, the present structure will be planked over and used until the new bridge is ready to go on.—Newmarket Advertiser.

A Great Decline.

In Beverly, Mass., the order of Knights of Labor was started about six years ago, with a membership of sixteen in the first assembly. The membership rapidly increased, and the order being successful in the first demands for increase of wages, as a result a large majority of the workers in the town joined it, until it numbered over 1500 members, and seven assemblies, namely, the stitchers, cutters, morocco dressers, buttonhole operators, building trades, and two mixed assemblies. In February, 1886, a great strike was organized in the shoe factories, and continued for seven weeks, when the operatives went back at the old prices; this caused dissensions, and members began to drop out and to be suspended for non-payment of dues. They held their own financially, however, until the great tannery strike in Peabody and Salem in July, when the 25-cent assessment for twenty-one weeks came and took some $6800 from the Beverly assemblies. The money was sent to the aid of the Peabody members. The result was that the Beverly assemblies were plunged deep into debt. The first assembly to surrender its charter was the building trades, and today the only assembly in Beverly, that of the cutters, is so reduced in membership that they only meet once a month.

How It Works in Ohio.

High license is having the same effect in Ohio as in other states. One of the Cleveland newspapers says that it has proved a genuine check upon the sale of liquor; that it has driven out of existence many of the vilest dens in the state; that it has cleared 300 towns of all liquor traffic, and has raised an income of more than $2,000,000 from a class of citizens who would otherwise bear no share of the public burdens.

George A. Hilton of Wells appeared before the municipal court in Saco on Friday of last week, in a very battered and dilapidated condition, as complainant in a charge of assault preferred against his nephews, Wellington G. Hilton and Charles H. Hilton. Complainant's son, a young man of twenty-two years or so, appeared as a witness, and presented a very hard appearance, too, being stove up only less badly than his father. The two defendants in the case, raw and not fully developed young men, were accompanied by their father, who desired to settle the case without further procedure, and upon the plaintiff acknowledging satisfaction over his own signature, the affair ended with the payment of costs incurred, amounting to $11.85. It is said that $100 was the sum agreed upon between the parties as a remuneration for injuries done to the plaintiff, George A. Hilton. The affair was the culmination of a long-standing family quarrel.

J. J. Roscoe of Lookout, New Mexico, moved his family thirteen miles into the wilderness, and while building a house lodged them in a tent. Their only child, a little four-year-old girl, said she wanted to go home, and several times strayed away and had to be brought back. But one day she could not be found, and after searching for her four days her father came upon her dead body.

The Knell of the Ironclad.

In our columns the other day appeared a description over the commercial cable of Great Britain's largest addition to her armored fleet, just launched, and an account of experiment with the dynamite gun, the latest and most novel enemy of armor.

It is not improbable, it is stated in the dispatch, that the day of great ironclads is over Just as gunpowder drove the ironclad knights out of their cumbrous helmets and corselets, so the ponderous artillery of today, by making the warship of the recent past more dangerous to her crew than to the enemy, will cause a radical change in naval ships.

The struggle between gun and armor has gone steadily on, each gaining alternate temporary advantages, only to be overpowered by successive improvements in the other. It is probable that the pneumatic dynamite gun, the different varieties of the torpedo, and the submarine cruisers have closed, or will shortly close, the competition. Speed, coal capacity, seaworthiness, and rapidity of handling are likely to be the requisites of the new warship, and the thinnest hull compatible with the conditions is the construction most desirable.

Naval fights at sea will again become trials of pluck, skill, and endurance instead of mere pot and kettle contests, in which iron and steel count for more than brain and muscle. The natural "sailorman," whether fighting in a wooden sailing ship or in a fast steam (unarmored) cruiser, will assert his supremacy as when he fought under Collingwood, Nelson, Hull or Decatur. And viewed from this standpoint, the United States has nothing to fear from the future of her navy.—New York Herald.

"Wishing Wells" of Northern England.

An English writer says throughout the north of his country there are "wishing wells," where the passer by may breathe his wish, "and may rest assured of its fulfillment if he only drop a crooked pin into the water."

This use for crooked pins must be generally known and practiced. Another person says: "It is scarcely three months since I looked into the wishing well at Wooler and saw the crooked pins strewed over the bottom among the gravel." The same thing is told of others of these springs.

One curious thing about the practice is that crooked pins are used. It may be thought that such pins, being worthless for any other use, were held as fit for this idle ceremony. This is looking at the matter from our point of view, not from that of the humble questioner.

The older and more complete ceremony is described as still to be witnessed in Cornwall.

"Two pieces of straw, about an inch long each, were crossed and the pin run through them. This cross was then dropped into the water and the rising bubbles carefully counted, as they marked the years or months or days that would pass before the happening of the event which was of concern."

Auguries were drawn from these crosses in other ways. They were made so as barely to float; then, "if the cross swam, the thrower was to outlive the year; if it sank, he was to die within that time." Other matters were to be learned from the position the cross took as it floated on the surface.—Youth's Companion.

A Fossil Continent.

If an intelligent Australian colonist were suddenly to be translated backward from Collins street, Melbourne, into the flourishing woods of the secondary geological period—say about the precise moment of time when the English chalk downs were slowly accumulating, speck by speck, on the silent floor of some long forgotten Mediterranean—the intelligent colonist would look around him with a sweet smile of cheerful recognition, and say to himself in some surprise: "Why, this is just like Australia.' The animals, the trees, the birds, the insects, would all more or less vividly remind him of those he had left behind him in his happy home of the southern seas, and the Nineteenth century. The sun would have moved back on the dial of ages for a few million summers or so, indefinitely (in geology we refuse to be bound by dates), and would have landed him at last, to his immense astonishment, pretty much at the exact point whence he first started. In other words, with a few needful qualifications, to be made hereafter, Australia is, so to speak, a fossil continent, a country still in its secondary age, a surviving fragment of the primitive world of the chalk period or earlier ages.—Cornhill Magazine.

Bismarck's Favorite Flower.

Prince Bismarck, like other great men, has his favorite flower. It is neither more nor less a one than the common red blooming heather. As long ago as 1862, when traveling in France, he wrote to his wife as follows: "Chambord castle in its present deserted state reminds me of the fate of its owner. In the spacious halls and vast saloons, where kings held court with their mistresses, the toys of the little Duke of Cordeaux form almost the only furniture. The sunny courtyards appear like so many deserted churchyards. From the tops of the towers one enjoys a fine view, but wherever one looks one sees nothing but silent forests and heather as far as the horizon. No town, no village, no farm house visible near the castle, nor as far as the eye can reach. From the inclosed samples of heather you will see how beautifully blossoms here the purple flower I love so much—the only flower in the royal gardens. Swallows are the only living creatures in the castle, which is too lonely even for sparrows."—Berlin Tagblatt.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings spread from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures many achieved. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. No thing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You live to save my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headache,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by clocking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

COCKLE'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS,

THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY

For Liver, Bile, Indigestion, etc. Free from Mercury, containing only Pure, Vegetable Ingredients. Agent: C. N. CRITTENTON, New York.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at the Boston Office of Messrs. N. W. Ayer & Son, Advertising Agents, Boston Street, where advertising contracts may be made for it in New York.

The passengers on the schooner Carrie W. Clark, from the Western islands for Boston, are safe. The schooner was abandoned by the captain and a portion of her passengers and crew, leaving about forty persons on board; she was afterward taken in tow by a steamer, and has arrived at Flores, the the westernmost island of the Azores group.

Those unhappy persons who suffer from nervousness and dyspepsia should use Carter's Little Nerve pills, which are made expressly for sleepless, nervous, dyspeptic sufferers. Price 25 cents.

Lord Salisbury has notified M. Waddington, the French ambassador at London, that the royal sanction has been given to the enforcement of the Newfoundland bait act next season.

Women with pale, colorless faces, who feel weak and discouraged, will receive both mental and bodily vigor by using Carter's Iron Pills, which are made for the blood, nerves and complexion.

The new Spanish steamship line to Panama has forced the Pacific Mail line to make a horizontal reduction of twenty-five per cent on freight charges.

Skin diseases cannot be successfully treated by external applications. The proper way to cure such complaints is to purify the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Under the vitalizing influences of this medicine all the functions of the body are brought into healthy action.

The referee in the case of Arthur B. Flanders against Miss Laura A. Hayes, a teacher in a Dover public school, charged with assault in that she whipped a pupil excessively, finds that Miss Hayes did nothing more than was right and proper under the circumstances, and recommends the dismissal of the case.

Engineer Timothy Bryant of Salem, Mass., of the eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad, is critically ill in feared, from blood poisoning. While in the cab of his engine he was slightly scalded on the hand; he placed some of the ordinary black oil (crude petroleum) on the burn, and thought no more of it. Very soon afterward he manifested symptoms of blood poisoning.

THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

"Yes you'll find people ready enough, to do the good samaritan, without the oil and two-pence"—so, also, you find the whole American population ready to recommend Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup—but only really good men, ready to offer a quarter to buy a bottle."

The Portland & Rochester railroad is now selling transferable mileage tickets, 500 miles for $12.50—2 1-2 cents a mile—to be used by the bearer in place of the former registered ticket. This change went into effect Nov. 1st.

An honest medicine is one that the proprietors are willing to warrant. Such is the Constitutional Cough Syrup sold at Kimball's drug store. It is a sure cure for coughs, colds and all affections of the throat and lungs. Price twenty-five and fifty cents per bottle.

The Dover Democrat of Oct. 31st says: "This grand reform government must cut down the poor postal clerks since the presidential circus went west, to meet expenses. All the postal clerks on the western and eastern divisions of the Boston & Maine railroad have received notice that the salaries are to be reduced tomorrow. The chief clerk is cut from $1800 to $1000, the second clerks cut from $1100 to $900, and the third clerks from $1000 to $800."

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

The Northern Railroad Bill Vetoed.

In the senate, at half-past three o'clock in the afternoon on Tuesday, a message was received from Gov. Sawyer vetoing the bill authorizing the Boston & Lowell or Boston & Maine railroad to lease the Northern railroad, and if leased by the Boston & Lowell permitting the Boston & Maine to guarantee and assume the covenants of such lease.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, Oct. 31st.

Yesterday Rev Swift Byington exchanged with Rev J. A. Ross, and preached a very pointed sermon from Mat. 6: 10.

Last week as Mr. Thomas Marston attempted to get out of his chair he lost his balance, and he and the chair went over, his head coming in contact with the stove. Having on his hat at the time, the rim was burned, and one of his ears was blistered. But for the timely aid of a lady who heard the fall he would have met with a sad fate. He is ninety-one years old.

Mr. Curtis DeLancey returned to-day from a gunning trip down east; he has sent home an abundance of sea fowl.

Sportsmen are seen daily, in this vicinity, and foxes are quite plenty; several have been captured of late by Exeter gentlemen. This town boasts of some experts at gunning, and we enjoy hearing the guns at the beach these pleasant mornings; also eating the birds when they are ready for the table.

Rumor says the shoe factory has been let to a reliable firm who are at the present time running two large factories in different places. An engine has been secured, and it is proposed to start in about six weeks; this will give a new impetus to the people of this quiet town; doubtless one hundred will find employment.

Within a few weeks several families have left town, some to Amesbury, others to Newburyport; when farms are heavily mortgaged it is poor encouragement for young men and women to wear themselves out with such hard labor.

Fruit eaten in the morning is said to be like gold; eaten at noon, like silver; at night, like lead. Many people cannot eat apples without suffering, but if eaten as soon as breakfast is over no bad results will follow.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., Oct. 29th.

The trees are nearly all bare, the fields look brown and withered, and everything indicates the approach of winter. The crop of potatoes was a failure, and apples are scarce. Cabbages and turnips are of good quality, and quite plentiful.

On Sunday last the memorial services of Miss Mabel Perkins were held at the Christian chapel. Tuesday evening, Oct. 11th, she attended the regular prayer meeting at the chapel. She returned home and complained of a headache, but otherwise was in her usual health. She retired, and toward morning her mother heard her moving, and going to her room found her sitting up in bed holding both hands to her head. She said her head ached badly, and the usual household remedies were applied. She laid down and seemed to catch asleep. See never moved, and did not seem to breathe. The doctor was sent for, and he pronounced her dead. When the undertaker came on Friday, the 14th, he would not put her in the coffin she looked so lifelike. The color never left her cheeks and lips at all. On Saturday afternoon she was buried. There was a short service at the time. The services on Sunday were fully attended. The afflicted family have the sympathy of the whole community.

The Ladies' Circle met with Capt. Richard H. Seaward last Monday evening. Capt. Seaward and his family are very entertaining people, and the young people especially seemed to enjoy themselves. The new house with its pretty, homelike furnishings was pronounced "perfectly splendid" by the young ladies. In the pleasant family sitting room is an old-fashioned corner cupboard with glass doors. Within those doors are many beautiful shells and curiosities from different parts of the world. Miss Allie Collins presided at the organ, and Miss Abbie Sawyer and Mrs. Georgie Phillips sang several pretty duets. Refreshments were served during the evening, and were followed by jokes and stories. We hope the circle will be invited to meet there again soon.

Miss Hattie Williams has returned to Malden, Mass., after a trip down the Hudson, a visit in New York, and a few days at home.

Miss Allie Collins goes to Boston next week to remain until Christmas.

The new fish house is nearly completed, and now there is talk of having a channel dug so dories can get in to the building at low water.

A new ice pond is being built by Lafayette Frisbee near the Foye farm.

A beginning has been made on the house to be erected on the Hunt place. The first story will be of stone. This is a pretty and picturesque place, but rather lonely at this time of year.

The schooner Annie F. Conlon is ready to sail, and the Grace K. Green is loading at the navy yard.

We see that in spite of our warning, again "the robbers came to rob us," and another fair daughter of Kittery Point has changed her name and place of residence. Miss Phebe Eaton has become Mrs. John Pruett. They will make their home in Malden.

Miss Gertie Mugridge is said to be improving in health this week.

Mrs. Chas. Grace and wife have been on a visit to friends in Newington, N. H.

Nearly every one is sick with a severe cold, caused by the sudden changes in the atmosphere. AUNT MOLLY.

—An Illinois tramp told a farmer's wife she ought to feed him because she "might be entertaining an angel unawares." As this argument had no effect he went out and set fire to the barn.

—First citizen (breathlessly): "Can you tell me where the fire is?" Second citizen: "I think it is the schoolhouse. There were a lot of boys dancing and cheering down on the corner."

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Talker, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

GREAT FIRE IN EXETER.

About quarter to six o'clock, Monday afternoon, fire started in the mule room of the old mill of the Exeter Manufacturing company, caused by a spark from the gearing in the mule head. The building is 200 by forty-five feet on the ground, five stories high, and runs 20,000 spindles. The fire gained rapid headway; the local fire department was found inadequate, and help was summoned from Haverhill and Dover, which promply responded, each sending a steamer. The two upper stories of the building were completely gutted. The loss is estimated at $100,000; fully insured in the Manufacturers' Mutual Insurance company. Two hundred and thirty hands are thrown out of employment.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

Unknown to Others

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared with the greatest skill and care, by pharmacists of education and long experience. Hence it is a medicine worthy of entire confidence. THE FITZ JOHN PORTER STATUE.

The following is an extract from the codicil to the will of the late Richard Henry Eddy. The codicil bears date July 16, 1886, and in mentioning the residuary legatees he says: "I except the sum of thirty thousand dollars, which I hereby give and devise to the City of Portsmouth in the State of New Hampshire to be devoted to the procuring and erection of a bronze equestrian statue (inclusive of a suitable stone or granite pedestal therefor) of General Fitz John Porter, who was born in said Portsmouth on or about the 3d day of August, 1822, and who as Major General of United States Volunteers, and as officer or colonel of the regular army of the United States, greatly distinguished himself in the war of the rebellion. It being my wish that the said statue should be erected on Market square or some other conspicuous place in the said city, and that it shall be considered as a present or gift from myself and my wife to his native city, and that the dedication of said statue shall be on some anniversary of the battle of Malvern Hill in Virginia, which took place on July 1, 1862, the gaining of said battle being greatly due to the skill, genius, energy and bravery of said Porter."

MECHANICS' ASSOCIATION ELECTION.

At the annual meeting of the Mechanics' association, held Tuesday evening, the following gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing year:

President, Oliver H. Locke;
Vice President, Charles H. Downs;
Treasurer, Lewis G. Davis;
Secretary, Benjamin M. Parker;
Deputy Secretary, Joseph Pettigrew;
Trustees, Franklin N. Paul, Wm. G. Billings, Marcellus Bufford, Wm. F. Batten, Edward J. Moulton and John Pender;
Marshal, Daniel Mason;
Deputy Marshal, David Urch;
Standard Bearer, J. Warren Davis.

MARITIME NOTES.

The Laighton Bros. loaded the schooner E. A. Cresd again this week with lumber and shingles for the improvements being made at the Shoals.

The schooner Agnes E. Downs, Levi Downs master, engaged in the mackerel fishery during the summer, arrived at this port on Monday evening from Gloucester, Mass., and will fit for winter fishing out of this port.

The first arrival of the winter fishing fleet at this port was on Tuesday morning—the schooner Abby A. Snow, with 5000 lbs. of fish; her fare was bought by E. Newton & Co., of Commercial wharf, at $2.25 per hundred pounds.

Among the arrivals in Boston last week were the schooners Hattie N. Reed, Georgia A. Hagan, Mary E. Smith, Golden Rule and O. C. Newhall with 10,000 lbs. of fish each, and the Christie Campbell with 2000 lbs. All of these vessels have fished out of this port in past winters, and will do so again the coming one.

The schooner D. K. Ham, Capt. Garland, has finished her work for this season in the brick carrying trade between the Piscataqua river and Boston, and on Tuesday hauled up for the winter at the head of Randall & Caswell's dock, and was stripped of her sails and running rigging. The schooner Flying Eagle, of the summer mackerel fleet, has also hauled up for the winter.

The Scotch yacht Thistle, from New York on the 14th of October, arrived at Greenock Nov. 1st—a very good passage indeed.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

Mortimer Kelley, a marine attached to this naval station, aged about forty-five years, and with a record of nearly twenty-five years of honorable service, has been missing since Oct. 15, and is believed to have been drowned on the evening of that day.

At the navy yard, Monday afternoon, while the parties who at the recent auction bought the composition castings were heating a big propeller so as to break it more easily, it exploded with a loud report, and flew in all directions; and about all they have been able to find of it are some twenty bits, from the size of a duck shot to that of a bullet, which were picked from the hide of "Dancing Joe," a horse belonging on the yard, which got well peppered with the flying fragments. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK CORNER, ME., Oct. 31st.

J. P. Norton, Esq., has just erected a new windmill, of large capacity, for the purpose of carrying water by pipes to his new boarding house and new barn. He is also engaged in putting in a foundation for a large addition to his barn. On Saturday last he finished burning a kiln of brick containing 800,000—the largest kiln ever burned in this section of the country. The "livest" man in town, by long odds.

Mr. Flanders, now officiating at the Christian church, is to be ordained on Thursday, Nov. 3d, at the church, at 1:30 P. M.

Mrs. Elizabeth Trafton, widow of Storer Trafton, died on the 27th of October, at the great age of ninety-two years, eight months and two days. A very estimable lady has passed to her rest. She was a sister to the venerable Samuel Adams, Esq., for many years a successful merchant at Cape Neddick, where he now lives. She leaves four children, viz.: Alvah and Orrin, two well-to-do farmers; Elizabeth, wife of Capt. Moses C. Young, and Clarissa, a maiden lady with whom Mrs. Trafton lived till her death. The funeral services were held at her late residence, Elder Marshall of the Cape Neddick church officiating.

The lumber for a store to be erected by Albion Goodwin (postmaster at Cape Neddick) has been landed on the site of the Cape Neddick house, where he will remove his goods and the post-office, leaving a splendid opening where he moves out.

Edward Baston and family have arrived home from an extended visit among relatives at North Berwick and Springvale.

E. E. E. Mitchell is prolonging his stay at Limerick.

A good job has been done on the road near C. H. Junkins' store; one foot in depth has been taken from the top of the hill, and the hill graded down. Some two hundred loads of gravel have been hauled in. The work was done mostly by contributions of C. H. Junkins and Geo. F. Plaisted, the town helping a small part. It is decidedly the best job yet in proportion to cost.

Good work has also been done at Cider hill—the town has to pay for that!

Four men were killed and others injured by a powder mill explosion at Hopatcong, N. J., Oct. 31st.

The defeated faction of the Knights of Labor charge that Mr. Powderly kept his position by much the same means that the Cleveland-German ring carried Baltimore by in the recent election.

A mother and four children were burned to death at Leadville, Col., in the destruction of their dwelling.

By an explosion in the grocery store of Michael Newman at St. Louis, Mo., on the night of Oct. 31st, Newman and his wife, their five children, and three other persons, were killed, and it is feared many others.

—"Suppose, Tommy," said a Kansas City teacher, "that your father owned forty lots, and a man from Chicago should buy sixteen of them, and a man from St. Louis should buy twenty, what would be left?" "Where are the men from?" asked Tommy. "Chicago and St. Louis?" "Yes." "Pa would be left; he wouldn't get any money."

The propeller Vernon, lost on the lakes with fifty persons, is said to have been a badly modelled craft for safety, and heavily overloaded.

George W. Earhart, captain of police, Baltimore, Md., said: "I have used Salvation Oil and found it a most excellent remedy. It has my hearty recommendation."

A thousand members of the insurance society of Chosen Friends have bolted from the order in New York.

An Irishman named Johnson is said to have confessed that he aided in disposing of the body of Lillie Hoyle, the young woman who was found dead in a corn crib in Webster, Mass., about two months ago. He says the girl died from the effects of an illegal operation performed by her uncle, Dixon R. Cowie, whose mistress she had been.

We have sold Wister's Balsam of Wild Cherry for many years. Nothing we have sold has ever given such perfect satisfaction for coughs and colds, and in advanced cases of consumption it has shown remarkable efficacy. P. S. Brown & Co., Fall River, Mass.

Mme. Scalchi, the eminent contralto singer, has arrived in New York from Europe to sing in Signor Campanini's concert company this winter.

Something that will quiet the nerves, give strength to the body, induce refreshing sleep, improve the quality of the blood, and purify and brighten the complexion, is what many persons would be glad to obtain. Carter's Iron Pills are made for exactly for this class of troubles, and are remarkably successful in accomplishing the ends desired, as named above. They are useful for both men and women. Price, 50 cents a box.

At St. Telesphore, Quebec, several houses of temperance workers have been burned, and the dwelling of a priest named Tepin blown up with dynamite, within a few days. It is supposed to be the work of liquor dealers, all the parties who have suffered being active temperance workers.

There is no one article in the line of medicines that gives so large a return for the money as a good porous strengthening plaster, such as Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache plasters.

The Chicago Times, one of the most influential papers in the west, has been sold.

Hundreds of persons who have used Ayer's Hair Vigor attest its value, as a stimulant and tonic, for preventing and curing baldness, cleansing the scalp, and restoring the youthful color to faded and gray hair.

Near Morris, Ill., on the night of Oct. 28th, a telegraph pole was placed on the track of the Rock Island railroad, with the butt toward an approaching train. The intent probably was to wreck a passenger train for purposes of robbery, but a freight train came along first, and was smashed, the engineer and fireman being killed and a brakeman badly hurt.

To turn gray hair to its natural color and beauty, use Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, the best and most reliable preparation science has given us.

The steam barge Burroughs, of Milwaukee, is missing, and it is feared foundered in the recent gale.

Female Help.

Servant girls and, in fact, most women, suffer from weak back and side ache. Apply a Hop Plaster and experience instant relief. Strengthening and pain-killing. 25 cts. Druggists.

The Chicago anarchists have issued a circular calling upon "workingmen" to "rescue their condemned brethren" with bombs and bullets, in case the execution of the condemned murderers should be attempted on the 11th inst.

The worst feature about catarrh is its dangerous tendency to consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures catarrh by purifying the blood.

The Moscow Gazette demands that Gibraltar be made neutral.

Another Lucky Omaha Boy Wins a Prize.

Oscar Grosbell in Richardson's drug house was the lucky holder of the ticket, 46,356, which drew one-tenth, $2,000 of the $20,000 capital prize in the drawing of The Louisiana State Lottery on the 9th ulto. He told a representative of the Bee that he had held tickets in the lottery since last January and won a prize at each drawing. He is not alone in these tickets but that the young men of the house have formed a syndicate and have invested $150 in tickets this month.—Omaha (Neb.) Bee, Sept. 10th.

THE INCURABLE CURED!

HOPKINSVILLE, KY., Feb. 24, 1887.

Gentlemen—Seven years ago a sore developed on my nose from a finger nail scratch. I tried a few simple remedies, but the sore would not yield. It grew worse every year for seven years. Many thought I had a cancer. Over a year ago I commenced taking S. S. S., and have taken twelve bottles entirely cured me. When I began with S.S.S. Specific I was in very poor health, and taking much drug about. After I had finished the course of S. S. S. I was strong and buoyant, and had a good appetite. I regard it as a most valuable medicine for ladies in weak, delicate health. It is a household medicine with me. Yours respectfully,

MRS. R. W. WILSON.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., April 2, 1887.

Gentlemen—For twenty years I have had a sore on my left cheek. It had gradually been growing worse. The many physicians whom I had consulted were unable to do me any good. Last fall a year ago I began using S. S. S. At first it inflamed the sore, and it became more virulent than ever; so much so, I believe, that my friends began to think I should leave off the medicine. I persisted in using the S. S. S. At the end of two months the sore was entirely healed. Thinking that the evil was out of my constitution, I left off the medicine; but in November, ten months after, a very slight breaking out appeared. I at once began again on S. S. S., and now that is all disappearing. I have every faith in S. S. S. It has done me more good than all the doctors and other medicines I ever took. Yours truly,

A. R. SHARPE.

WINSTON, N. C., April 12, 1887.

Gentlemen—Four or five years ago a cancer came on my face. It soon grew to be quite large. It worried me, and my general health was very poor. Last September I began a course of S. S. S., which I have continued, as I have at times with the support result. The cancer has entirely disappeared, there being no evidence or symptom of a cancerous character left. My general health is good now, and my appetite better than it has been in years. I am 57 years old, and to-day I am working in the field planting corn. Yours truly, JONAS LIMBAUGH.

Gentlemen—I had a sore on my upper lip for eight years. Seven different doctors attempted in vain to heal it. One gave me a small vial for five dollars, which was "certain cure." It is needless to say that it did me no good. About two years ago I became quite uneasy, as people thought I had a cancer, and I took a course of eighteen bottles of S. S. S. The result has been a complete cure. The ulcer or cancer healed beautifully, leaving scarcely a perceptible scar. From that day I have been in excellent health, the Specific having purified my blood thoroughly, increased my appetite and perfected my digestion. In a word, I feel like a new woman, and, best of all, the eight year ulcer is gone entirely. Yours sincerely,

MRS. W. F. CARNON,

A GREAT PRIMEVAL TEMPLE.

A Visit to the Mighty Granite Blocks of Stonehenge—A Famous Ruin.

Coming over the crest of a hill just above the village I see opening before me a seemingly boundless expanse of undulating gray moorland, scantily dotted with a few stray clumps of trees. This is Salisbury plain itself, and on the brow of one of its nearest swells stands a cluster of dark objects, which the veriest stranger would know at a glance to be nothing else than the granite blocks of Stonehenge.

One's first impression on catching sight of this wonderful relic is apt to be a feeling of disappointment, such as one experiences on seeing the Great Pyramid rising above the date palms that line the highway from Cairo to the Nile. The peculiar effect of the Egyptian atmosphere actually diminishes the apparent size of the pyramid in proportion as you approach it, and not till you are close to its foot do you at length begin to realize the absolute nothingness of the mightiest structures of modern times when compared with this giant of the past. So, too, with the great primeval temple of Salisbury plain. Standing alone amid that vast expanse of bare upland, with nothing near it by which its height can be in any way measured—for the nearest farmhouse is at least half a mile distant—it appears at the first glance absurdly inferior to the imposing idea of it conveyed by artists and travelers. But when once you reach it and stand beneath the mighty shadow of its outer bowlders, the smallest of which towers several yards above your head, you begin to look upon the Druids and their architecture with somewhat more reverence.

With all its grandeur, however, the shape of this famous ruin undeniably conveys at first sight the grotesque impression of a child's first essay in building a toy house. The recurring feature of two upright blocks with a third laid upon them crosswise is just the style of architecture which one may see growing up under the hands of some little Tommy or Freddy in any nursery of London or New York. Perrault or Hans Christian Andersen might have made fine capital of the idea of a baby giant who had begun to build a toy house on this spot, and then, having failed to complete it to his own satisfaction, had partly knocked it down in a fit of rage, leaving the fragments to be the wonder of all succeeding generations.

In its original form Stonehenge appears to have been a simple ring of enormous granite blocks, set upright in the turf a few feet apart, each pair of bowlders supporting a cross slab laid athwart their tops. On the northern side this formation is still tolerably preserved, although most of the cross pieces have fallen, and the bowlders themselves are so thickly covered with moss and lichens that the rugged granite is almost hidden. The southern side of the circle, on the other hand, is now well nigh destroyed, and the few blocks which still remain erect lean forward as if just about to fall among their prostrate comrades. Unmistakable traces of an inner ring of smaller stones are still visible within the larger circle, and just between the two stand those two pairs of gigantic "uprights" (surmounted by cross slabs of proportionate size), which figure so prominently in all pictures and photographs of Stonehenge. At a little distance to the north of the circle, just at the edge of the highway that runs westward to Warminster, towers a vast solitary bowlder—the outpost sentinel of this army of giants—overtopping by two or three feet at least the tallest of its colossal brethren.

By what agencies these mighty masses of granite were transported and arranged in the remote and barbarous age to which they belong will probably be always as great a mystery as it is now. Countless antiquaries have expended upon the subject the contents of what they are pleased to call their brains, all flatly contradicting each other as a matter of course, and each insisting upon his own theory as the only one worthy of the slightest attention. But hitherto the results attained have been on a par with the discovery of the learned critic in the old story, who found out that the "Iliad" was not written by Homer, but by another person of the same name.

But the occupants of the ancient temple, when I enter it, are of a widely different sort from the antiquaries or men of letters. Shockheaded boys are playing leapfrog over the fallen stones. Red faced country bumpkins are drinking beer in the shade of one of the hugest bowlders, empty bottles, egg shells, cigar ends and scraps of greasy paper lie strewn on every side. The moment I appear a photographer's agent thrusts half a dozen "views" into my face, while a fat market woman offers me a basket of cakes indigestible enough to choke an ostrich. Under such circumstances I naturally cut short my tour of inspection and take my departure as soon as possible.—David Ker in New York Times.

Webster's Last Male Descendant.

Ashburton Webster, the last male descendant of Daniel Webster, died in New York city Jan. 23, 1879. He was the son of Col. Fletcher Webster, who was killed at the head of his regiment in the war for the suppression of the rebellion, and was born the same year that Lord Ashburton, his grandfather's friend, died. He was educated at the Naval academy at Annapolis, but did not enter the navy. Afterwards he studied law, but practiced it very little, if any. Most of his life was passed at Marshfield, which he inherited from his grandfather, and where he caught the cold that finally killed him, when the old mansion was burned in '78. Not a single ray of ancestral glory illumined his uneventful career or brightened its close. He simply exchanged the obscurity of life for the deeper obscurity of death, and probably not 500 people in this land knew that he had ever lived until he had ceased to live.—Ben: Perley Poore's Letter.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the large of surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures many around. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years, and never knew a well day. All would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

EDWARD LUEDER, 1505 Broadway, N. Y.

Sneezing! Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, purrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cures begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

DANIEL LITTLEFIELD, Green Street, Portsmouth, N. H.

Hideous in Every Guise,

Whether it be the best known form, chills and fever, or else billious remittent, double ague or ague cake, is that abominable disorder involving the liver, the bowels and the kidneys, known as malaria. Every complaint classified under this generic, though erroneous appellation, is destructive of the nervous system, but is, unhappily, not to be subdued, or even checked, by the use of ordinary nervines, febrifuges or tonics. There is, however, prompt relief and ultimate cure to be found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, foremost among the proprietary medicines of America, and widely known in other lands. Not only diseases born of miasma, but rheumatic complaints, superinduced by exposure in bad weather, inherited or incurred debility of the kidneys or bladder, dyspepsia and an irregular condition of the bowels, are curable—nay, certain to be cured by this deservedly esteemed and professionally sanctioned corrective.

Melville, the alleged dynamiter who recently died in London, is recognized by the London police as John J. Moroney of New York.

Those unhappy persons who suffer from nervousness and dyspepsia should use Carter's Little Nerve pills, which are made expressly for sleepless, nervous, dyspeptic sufferers. Price 25 cents.

The management of the Mechanics fair in Boston have decided to keep the exhibition open until Nov. 26th, two weeks later than was first announced.

Women with pale, colorless faces, who feel weak and discouraged, will receive both mental and bodily vigor by using Carter's Iron Pills, which are made for the blood, nerves and complexion.

At auction in New York, Nov. 1st, $400,000 worth of knit underwear was sold; it was the largest sale of the kind ever made in this country, and the prices realized were very fair.

Skin diseases cannot be successfully treated by external applications. The proper way to cure such complaints is to purify the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Under the vitalizing influences of this medicine all the functions of the body are brought into healthy action.

The British barque Temple Bar, from London for Rio Janeiro, foundered in the British channel Nov. 1st, carrying down her crew of eighteen men.

For Scrofula, Impoverished Blood and General Debility,

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, has, no equal in the whole realm of medicine. Read the following: "I gave one bottle of Scott's Emulsion to my own child for Scrofula, and the effect was marvelous." —O. F. Gray, M. D., White Ball, Ind.

Eugene Tompkins, of the Boston theatre, and E. G. Gilmore, manager of Niblo's Garden, New York, have bought the New York Academy of Music for $365,275.

Stop and Think

How much money you have thrown away buying worthless medicines, prepared by unprincipled parties, who care not what harm they may do to your system. You can depend on every bottle of Sulphur Bitters as being a reliable medicine. It searches out and cleanses from the blood all impure matter, and makes you feel like a new person.—Boston Daily Globe.

THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

Crabbed, chronic coughers can certainly cure cruel coughs or colds with the celebrated Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

The "Empire News Co.," managed by C. E. Roberts of Buffalo, N. Y., and with a branch called the "Western News Co." in St. Louis, is denounced by the postal authorities as a swindling concern. It is a professed advertising agency.

An honest medicine is one that the proprietors are willing to warrant. Such is the Constitutional Cough Syrup sold at Kimball's drug store. It is a sure cure for coughs, colds and all affections of the throat and lungs. Price twenty-five and fifty cents per bottle.

Serious trouble is feared at Bristol, R. I., in consequence of the destitute condition of the late operatives of the National Rubber Co., 1400 in number, who have not been paid since June, and to whom about two months' wages are due.

Rheumatism

is undoubtedly caused by lactic acid in the blood. This acid attacks the fibrous tissues, and causes the pains and aches in the back, shoulders, knees, ankles, hips, and wrists. Thousands of people have found in Hood's Sarsaparilla a positive cure for rheumatism. This medicine, by its purifying action, neutralizes the acidity of the blood, and also builds up and strengthens the whole body.

The Legislature.

A despatch of Nov. 1st from Concord, speaking of the reception of Gov. Sawyer's message vetoing the bill in relation to the lease of the Northern railroad, says "there was very little, if any, suprise. It had been predicted ever since the bill passed, and even the ardent Boston & Maine men said that Governor Sawyer could not do otherwise than veto it, in order to be consistent, since the bill was the conspicuous part of the Hazen bill." The message, after reciting that this bill in substance was contained in the Hazen bill, and that the reasons given for vetoing the entire Hazen bill applied with equal force to this part of it, objects to the bill on its merits. The full text of the message is as follows:

To the Honorable Senate: I herewith return without my signature senate bill No. 91, entitled an act to authorize a lease of the Northern railroad.

The substance of this bill was contained in and was an important part of house bill No. 28, known as the Hazen bill, and which was returned to the house on the 18th of October without the executive signature, by reason of corrupt methods and attempted bribery in promoting its passage.

I enclose herewith a copy of my communication in returning that bill to the house. The same reasons that were given for disapproving that bill as a whole, applying with equal force to the parts that are contended by the parties interested, otherwise all the provisions of the Hazen bill might become laws at this session by re-enacting them one by one and thus the objections to the whole bill be evaded and rendered of no effect. As the substance of this bill was one of the most earnestly contested parts of the Hazen bill I cannot consistently give it my approval.

In addition to the foregoing, which to my mind was entirely sufficient reasons for the executive disapproval, there are other important reasons which lead me to withhold my assent from this bill, among which are the following:

Because neither the Boston and Maine nor the Boston and Lowell railroads have a physical connection with the Northern railroad, but are both separated therefrom by the Concord railroad, in which it is admitted by all parties the state has a large interest, and the practical effect of the proposed legislation would, in my judgment, seriously effect the interest of the state in that road.

By such action the state would be giving the corporation in which it has no direct pecuniary interest the power to endanger the property of the state in another corporation in which it has a large pecuniary interest.

It is a question of the greatest importance to the people of this state whether its railroad systems shall be kept apart and distinct, or whether they shall practically all be merged into one great corporation with its management centralized in another state. We are not here to consider primarily, the interests of the Concord railroad, or that of the Boston and Maine railroad, but what is for the best interests of the state, not only for the present, but also the future. When the general railroad law was passed in 1883, it was not supposed that the outcome would be a general consolidation, or, it is safe to say, it would never have become a law.

In seeking to lease the Northern and the Boston, Concord and Montreal railroads, the Boston and Lowell, or the Boston and Maine as its guarantors, have unmistakably in view the final absorption of the whole Concord system, and it is a question whether such a consummation is to be desired and will be of ultimate benefit to the state.

CHARLES H. SAWYER, Governor.

The senate bill to allow the Boston & Maine to purchase the Eastern was favorably reported by the senate railroad committee on the 1st. In the house in the afternoon the bill to allow the Dover & Winnepesaukee railroad to extend its road to Gilford from Alton Bay was under discussion. The extension asked for is already covered in a charter to the Lake Shore road, the stock to build which it is alleged is already subscribed.

The judiciary committee of the senate on the 1st gave a hearing on the bill to prohibit the manufacture of spirituous or malt liquors in the state. The bill passed the house without opposition, slipping through during a period of great excitement on the railroad question, and now it is said "the senate is in a quandary what to do about it. Fifteen of its twenty-four members are republicans, and if the bill is killed the party will lose irreparably the prohibition vote; if they pass it the big brewers will remember them." As the prohibition vote is manipulated in the interest of the democratic party right along, and the "big brewers" are without exception big democrats, it is not easy to see where the political quandary comes in.

In the senate, on the 2d inst., the free text book bill was defeated, sixteen to six. The bill relating to the taxation of railroads was indefinitely postponed. The bill authorizing the Boston & Maine railroad to purchase the Eastern road and the Eastern railroad in New Hampshire, was passed and sent to the house.

Their Last Hope Gone.

The decision of the United States supreme court upon the petition for a writ of error in the case of the Chicago anarchists was announced on the 2d inst. by Chief Justice Waite, the writ being denied in the case of each and all the prisoners.

President Cleveland on his late trip perhaps did not violate the interstate law, but he suspended its functions long enough to accept free passes for himself and suite over the routes. His hotel bills were paid by the municipal authorities whose guest he was for the time being. In fact, Mr. Cleveland managed to get a view of a good slice of the country at a small cost to himself.

Jenny Lind Goldschmidt, the famous singer, died in London on the 2d inst. She was born in Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 21st, 1821.

The cholera bulletins sent out by the New York health officers are alleged to be false, the state of affairs at Swinburne's island being much worse than the bulletins show.

The revolution against Dictator Barillos of Guatemala has been suppressed, and the leaders captured and shot.

The Russian government has expelled from the country Mr. Van Riper, formerly American consul at Moscow, who was dismissed for selling medals to Russian exhibitors at New Orleans.

Advices from Norfolk, Va., report the storm which visited that section on Oct. 30th and 31st as very disastrous, at least fifty vessels having been driven on shore, and many of them totally wrecked. No loss of life was reported up to the 2d inst.

Mayor Hewitt of New York has written a letter advocating the election of Col. Fellows as district attorney, and denouncing the Nicoll movement as an advertising dodge.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 124 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

On Wednesday morning, the 2d inst., Mr. George A. Lambert left the home of his father, Mr. John J. Lambert, at North Kittery, and started for the railroad station to take the train for Passadena, California, where he was to take charge of a hotel barber shop until spring. He had got but a short distance when he was overtaken by a messenger with the information that his wife had shot herself a few minutes after his departure. Mr. Lambert hastened back to the house, and Dr. Johnson of Kittery and Dr. Willis of Eliot were summoned, and soon found the bullet, which was fired from a revolver and entered the left breast, striking a rib and following it around under the skin, lodging near the left shoulder blade, inflicting a serious but not necessarily dangerous wound. Mr. Lambert was at one time barber at the Rockingham house, and had filled the same position at the Wentworth; since then he has been at Bermuda, and in California. His wife, who is the mother of one child, did not want him to go to California without her, and this is supposed to have caused her act.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., Nov. 1st.

Mr. Ephraim C. Spinney had a valuable calf run off last week, and when tired of its liberty it stopped near a farmer's barn several miles away, and has already won the place of a pet. No "cruelty to animals" there.

A series of meetings are being held at the 1st Methodist church, North Kittery, this week; they were opened Monday evening with a sermon by Rev. Mr. Holmes of York.

Mrs. Samuel Fernald of West Kittery is to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. John Shapleigh, of Eliot.

The Farmer family of Eliot are winning golden opinions by awakening young people to the consciousness of ability to do, regardless of denomination or party. The Flower Mission of the summer has given place to the Band of Mercy, and no doubt when these messengers of sweetness come to the front again they will work together in harmony.

Mrs. Wilber F. Fernald and two little sons have moved to Dover, N. H., where her mother resides.

Capt. Frank P. Emerson, recently deceased at York, was a son of an old member of the York county bar, Charles O. Emerson, Esq.

According to rumor a new hotel is to be built at the Point, and if it is as ably managed as the Pepperell and Park-field its success is a thing assured.

Mr. Edward E. Shapleigh has been quite ill for a week or more past, but will be able to resume his studies in a day or two, and take his accustomed exercise with dog and gun, or fishing rod, which serve to offset the long hours of study which he seems to choose.

Miss Carrie H. Haley, teacher in district No. 2, has had two weeks added to her term of school. We are glad to hear that Miss Haley's health is improving.

We learn that Mr. William Raynes, of Cutts' island, (we suppose it is good form to say his farm is Cutts' island, since he inherited it from the old Cutts family, the immediate successors of Champernowne,) has raised the banner cabbages this season in number, size and weight, many of them weighing as high as twenty pounds, and all averaging more than ten pounds.

Miss Lizzie A. Thomas closed her school in district No. 3 on Saturday last, after a most successful term. She is to enter Smith's academy in Portsmouth to take the commercial course. A worthy young lady and an excellent scholar, we wish her the success she merits.

The Free High school has taken its homeward flight.

Mrs. Shadrach Littlefield of Berwick, formerly a resident of North Kittery, was thrown from a wagon by the breaking of an axle while going to her daughter's home from the depot with her son-in-law, Mr. Owen E. Pettigrew, one day last week, and was painfully injured. The horse, a high spirited one, was frightened by a wheelbarrow near the roadside.

We understand that a large shoe factory is soon to be erected at Kittery Point. Glad of it. SUE ROSA.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 2d.

Michael Brennan, drunk, fine $3, costs $6.90. Not having any money, Mr. Brennan secures comfortable quarters at Brentwood for a time.

Cheap excursion over the Boston & Maine railroad to Boston to-day; see advertisement.

The Federal Fire Society dines at the Rockingham house this evening.

Mr. Alfred S. Trafton, of Maplewood avenue, lost 105 nice young fowls one night recently, through hen-roost thieves. At very nearly the same time, while death was present in his household, some contemptible sneaks took advantage of the circumstance to steal quantities of celery and turnips. Mr. Trafton has no doubt that he knows who the thieves are, and has good hope of securing legal evidence to effect their punishment.

The foundations for the boiler house and the coal shed at the Jones brewery are being rapidly put in by Major Abbott of Dover, under the immediate supervision of his foreman, Mr. Dorr.

The millponds were skimmed over with ice on the morning of the 2d inst.

In the legislature on the 1st inst. the committee reports upon the bill to amend the charter of the city of Portsmouth were taken up for consideration. The majority report was, "inexpedient to legislate." The minority report presented the bill in a new draft, and recommended its passage. On motion of Mr. Sulloway of Manchester the matter was tabled to await the presence of Mr. Colby of Claremont.

In Boston, on Saturday evening, Oct. 27th, Mr. George W. Cobb and Miss Alberta P. Hayes become husband and wife. The groom is a member of the firm of Cobb, Bates & Yerxa, the widely known wholesale grocers of Boston; the bride is daughter of Calvin L. Hayes, Esq., of Kittery, and a most estimable, cultivated and popular young lady. A very large number of beautiful and costly presents indicated the esteem in which the couple are held by large circles of friends.

There came near being a drowning accident in the sewer at the rear of the Jones brewery on Monday of this week. A man engaged in cleaning bricks, on suddenly rising from his stooping position commenced a retrograde race of a hundred feet or so to the sewer, and in spite of the calls of his mates and their efforts to stop him, went backward into the sewer, there six feet deep. He was pulled out in a very wet and chilled state, and much astonished, being able to give no reason for his backward race.

Mr. George A. Blaisdell on the 1st inst. shipped to Boston two car-loads of rags, about ten tons, all gathered in this immediate vicinity within a brief period.

From the top floor of the new Jones brewery the White hills were distinctly seen on the 1st inst.

Samuel C. Hamilton of Biddeford, high sheriff of York county, and one of his deputies, J. Fred Goldthwaite of Biddeford, were in this city on Wednesday, the 2d inst., to inspect the records of the internal revenue collector's office, with regard to liquor prosecutions in York county.

The ticket office of the Boston & Maine railroad at South Newmarket was broken into on Tuesday night, Nov. 1st, and the money drawer broken open and a small amount of money stolen. The safe and tickets were not disturbed.

Mr. Fred S. Scadding, for some months past acting as agent in this city for one or more life insurance companies, is reported to have departed early Monday morning of this week without beat of drum, and without taking leave of his acquaintances; some of his minor business transactions are said to have been rather irregularly conducted. He was formerly a marine at the navy yard across the river, and later resided in Dover, where he was a Salvation Army warrior.

The Biddeford Journal thus pays its respects to the fellow who recently coaxed a farmer of Sanford to sell him a jug of cider, and then scared him into paying money to avoid prosecution under the liquor law: "As predicted in the Journal's report of Fred Mitchell's peculiar transaction in Sanford, whereby an aged farmer was blackmailed to the tune of $70 or more, Mitchell has again turned up in Saco. It is likewise true that he has sedulously avoided anything like publicity since his return, taking his exercise, when obliged to take any at all, only when the shades of night darkly hover, or else at early cock crow. Of his career in Sanford he speaks in no bragging terms, but asserts that the affair was one of pure business, and that he gave for value received his note, payable on demand. While the idea of Mitchell's giving a note may cause the knowing ones to smile, it would seem at first glance that he had technically complied with the legal conditions of borrowing money, and the fact that he did so is not denied by the Sanford parties. If this reasoning holds good, there is no excuse in the world why Mitchell should not come out from his seclusion, and take an assured position among the other successful financiers of the country."

The Woman's Independent Relief Corps, No. 1, of New Hampshire, will give a Harvest Supper, and an entertainment consisting of singing, reading, and a drama, on the evening of Nov. 4th in Good Templars' Hall, opposite post-office. Grand Army songs a specialty. Friends of the cause are cordially invited. Supper from 6:30 to 8:00 o'clock. Tickets 25 cts.

Contributions of cake and pastry are solicited.

Lewis E. Staples has laid out a small lot of Ladies' and Misses' Winter Cloaks to sell at five dollars a garment. They are broken lines he will not have again. It might be an advantage to see them.

The schooner Seth M. Todd was spoken early in the morning on the 2d inst., ten miles off Cape Ann, waterlogged and with sails split, and in need of assistance.

The schooner L. M. Strout, Roberts master, arrived at Boston on the 2d inst. from Winterport, Me., waterlogged, and floating on her cargo of lumber.

The schooner Red Rover, from Calais for Nantucket, put into Salem on the 2d inst., with sails split and leaking badly.

Captain Grady of the schooner Acacia, which arrived at Boston on Wednesday, the 2d inst., from St. John, N. B., reports that Tuesday, between twelve and one o'clock, northeast by north thirteen miles off Cape Ann, he passed an American schooner lying on her beam ends, with four men clinging to the wreck. He tried to rescue them, and got close enough to speak to them, but his vessel suddenly sprung a leak and commenced to fill with water, his main boom being carried away, which made it impossible for him to do anything for them. It was blowing a heavy gale at the time, and the sea so high that no boat could live. Upon his arrival at Boston Capt. Grady at once reported the facts to the revenue cutter.

The schooner Lizzie C. Rich, at Richmond's island, had her foremast carried away during the gale of Monday night, the 31st ult.

Arrow Throwing in Yorkshire.

A "Yorkshireman" sends the following description of the game of arrow throwing: The Yorkshire arrow throwing consists in throwing an arrow the greatest distance, and not in aiming at a mark, the ground from the standpoint being measured out into paces, each twenty yards apart, radiating from the center or standpoint, and which are generally marked by small branches or twigs stuck into the ground and called "scores;" the one throwing the most "scores" winning the match, say, out of about thirty or forty throws. The arrow is not a javelin or assegai, but very similar to the arrow used in modern archery, though without any feathers at the base or metal at the point. It is generally made of light soft wood, varying in length from two to three feet, according to the fancy of the thrower. It is rather thicker at the point than the base, and sometimes is made of two different kinds of wood, box being used for the point and willow for the base.

The method of throwing is as follows: The thrower takes a stout piece of whipcord about a yard and a half in length, a knot being tied at one end so as to form a "button," round which the cord is "hitched" after having been passed round the base end of the arrow and a few inches from that end; the cord is then brought down to the point, which the thrower holds in his hand, the cord being perfectly tight and parallel to the arrow to prevent it slipping from the "button," or knot, at the base until it is released in the act of throwing. The thrower then passes the remainder of the cord round his hand in order to insure a better grip, and taking a run of several yards, as a bowler does at cricket, throws the arrow with a jerk overhand, as one would throw a ball or stone, the cord slipping from the arrow and over the knot as soon as the necessary impetus is given. A really expert thrower will generally throw in a match at least from nine to eleven "score"—i. e., 180 to 220 yards—every throw, his best efforts reaching as high as thirteen or fourteen "score."—St. James Gazette.

Purification of Drinking Water.

The use of alum to clear muddy water has long been known, but Professor Leeds, in the course of an investigation on an outbreak of typhoid fever at Mount Holly, N. J., discovered another value in its use which may be very important. He found that the water which was supplied to the inhabitants of Mount Holly was swarming with bacteria, about fifteen drops being capable of forming 8,100 colonies of these microscopic germs when spread upon a suitable surface. He tried the experiment of adding a minute amount of alum to this water in the proportion of only half a grain to a gallon, and found that not only was the dirt and coloring matter precipitated, but that instead of the same quantity of water containing 8,100 colonies of bacteria, it contained only 80, and these were all of a large form. On filtering the water through two thicknesses of filtering paper he found that the filtered water contained no bacteria, but was "as sterile as if it had been subject to prolonged boiling." This amount of alum is too small to be evident to the taste, and is not harmful to the health. If his observations shall remain unrefuted, they may form a valuable method of purifying polluted drinking water.—New York Post.

How to Taste.

Strictly speaking, with the tip of the tongue one can't really taste at all. If you put a small drop of honey or oil of bitter almonds on that part of the mouth you will find, no doubt to your great surprise, that it produces no effect of any sort; you only taste it when it begins slowly to diffuse itself and reaches the true tasting region in the middle distance.

But if you put a little cayenne or mustard on the same part you will find that it bites you immediately—the experiment should be tried sparingly—while if you put it down lower in the mouth you will swallow it almost without noticing the pungency of the stimulant. The reason is that the tip of the tongue is supplied only with the nerves which are really nerves of touch, not nerves of taste proper—they belong to a totally different main branch, and they go to a different center in the brain, together with the very similar threads which supply the nerve of smell for mustard and pepper. That is why the smell and taste of these pungent substances are so much alike, as everybody must have noticed a good sniff at a mustard pot producing almost the same irritating effects as an incautious mouthful.—Boston Journal.

Humor at an Inquest.

There is a tale of somebody who refused to enter the water until he could swim, and this personage is generally cited as an example of the muddled head. No one could suppose for an instant that twelve householders of Merry England could possibly be victims of that complaint; but the coincidence is odd. A jury, assembled at Barnes, in returning a verdict of "accidental death," formally requested the coroner to appeal to the Thames Conservancy for a bylaw "making it an offense punishable by fine for a boatman to let a boat on hire to inexperienced persons." The unfortunate man is to put each applicant under examination to assure himself that he knows the stern from the bow—and pronounces it "starn"—distinguishes between shipping and feathering oars, and can tell a bonthook from a punt pole.—London Standard.

Formation of Rock Salt.

There is a magnificent formation of rock salt near the town of San Quentin, Cal., fourteen miles long by three or four wide, and from 100 to 125 feet in depth, forming an inexhaustible supply which can be used to good advantage by ships unloading at the port for ballast for the return trip.—Chicago News.

DEAD MAN'S ROCK.

By AN UNKNOWN AUTHOR.

This story is the story of the adventures of a very remarkable gem—none other, in fact, than the Great Ruby of Ceylon; and it lifts, at least in part, the veil which for some years has hidden a certain mystery of the sea.

To make all clear, I must go back half a century, and begin with the strange and unaccountable will made in the year of grace 1837 by my gaundfather, Amos Trenoweth of Lantrig, in the county of Cornwall.

The will was dated "June 15th, 1837," and ran as follows:

"I, Amos Trenoweth of Lantrig, in the Parish of Polkimbra and County of Cornwall, feeling in this year of Grace Eighteen hundred and thirty-seven, that my Bodily Powers are failing, and knowing the mutability of earthly things, I do hereby command and enjoin that, if at any time He or his Descendants be in stress and tribulation of proverty, the Head of our Family of Trenoweth shall strictly and faithfully obey these my Latest Directions. He shall take ship and go unto Bombay, in India, to the house of Elihu Sanderson, Esq., or his Heirs, and there, presenting in person this my last Will and Testament, together with the Holy Bible now lying in the third drawer of my Writing Desk, shall duly and scrupulously execute such instructions as the said Elihu Sanderson or his Heirs shall lay upon him.

"Also I command and enjoin, under pain of my Dying Curse, that the Iron Key now hanging from the Middle Beam in the Front Parlor be not touched or moved until he who undertakes this Task shall have returned and have crossed the threshold of Lantrig, having duly performed all the said Instructions. And furthermore, that the said Task be not undertaken lightly or except in direst Need, under pain of Grievous and sore Affliction. This I say, knowing well the Spiritual and wordly Perils that shall beset such an one, and having myself been brought near to Destruction of Body and Soul, which latter may Christ in His Mercy avert.

"AMOS TRENOWETH."

My father showed the will to no one. Matters went well until about four years after his marriage with Margery Treathy my mother, in old Polkimbra church. Then everything seemed to turn wrong.

At last it was determined, with the tearful assent of my mother, that he should start to seek this Elihu Sanderson of Bombay, and with good fortune, save the failing house of the Trenoweths.

It was long before we heard from him at Bombay. He had found what he sought, so he said, but could not rightly understand its value, or, indeed, make head or tale of it by himself, and dared not ask strangers to help him.

For the rest, he had been stricken with a fever—a malady common enough in those parts—but was better, and would start in something over a week in the bark Belle Fortune.

The ship would be due about October or perhaps November. With the coming of October came dirty weather, and a strong southwesterly wind, that gathered day by day, until at last, upon the evening of Oct. 11, it broke into a gale.

I was roused from sleep with the glare of a candle in my eyes, to see my mother all in white, standing by the bed, and in her eyes an awful and soul-sickening horror.

"Jasper, Jasper? wake up and listen?"

Shrill and distinct above the roar of the storm there rose a prolonged wail, or rather shriek, as of many human voices, rising slowly in one passionate appeal to the mercy of heaven—a cry that rings in my ears even now and will continue to ring until I die.

Morning came at last, and with the first gray light I resolved to go down to the gloomy column of rock connected with the great cliff only at high tide that guards our cove to the south. It went by the name of Dead Man's Rock.

As I clambered up to watch the sea—it was scarcely dawn—I noticed a sailor's cap lying on a ledge just above the wave. Looking up I saw a stranger advancing towards me along the edge of the tide.

"What have you seen?" and the half naked man caught me by the arm with a nervous grip.

"Only a cap, sir," I said, shrinking—"only a cap: but I climbed up on Dead Man's Rock just now—the rock at the end of the beach—and I saw a cap lying there and it seemed—"

"Come along and show it to me!" and he began to run over the sands towards the rock, dragging me helpless after him.

The cap still hung there, and my companion scrambled down and picked it up, all he while muttering to himself as if unconscious of my presence.

Presently he turned toward me, stared without word, then suddenly asked:

"What is your name?"

Truly this man had the strangest manner of questioning. However, I answered him duly:

"Jasper Trenoweth."

"God in heavens? What? And was your father Ezekiel Trenoweth?"

He hastarted forward and was staring at me with a wild surprise. Dreading fear the answer, yet wildly anxious, cried:

"Oh, sir; do you know him? He was coming home from Ceylon and mother was so anxious, and then, what with the storm last night and the cry that we heard, we were so frightened! Oh! do you know—do you think—"

"I sailed," said my companion, still examining the horizon, "from Ceylon in the ship Mary Jane. Consequently, if Ezekiel Trenoweth sailed in the Belle Fortune we couldn't very well have been in the same ship, and that's logic," said he.

His voice was husky and he seemed to have something in his throat, but he went on: "Well, it's a strange world. To think of him being dead!" looking at the cap which he had taken off his head.

"What! Father dead?"

"No, my lad, t'other chap; him as this cap belonged to. Ah, he was a devil, he was! Can't fancy him dead, somehow: seems as though the water wasn't made as could have drowned him."

During his muttered soliloquy I had turned for a moment to look across Polkimbra beach, when I saw, at about 50 yards distance and advancing along the breakers' edge, another man dressed like my companion and also watching the sea.

"What's the matter, boy? Speak, can't you?"

"It's a man," I said, "not 50 yards off, and coming this way. He has on a red shirt and is watching the sea just as you did. I don't think that he saw us."

"For the Lord's sake don't move. Look: is he tall and dark?"

"I can't see; but he walks with a stoop and seems to have a sword or something slung round his waist."

"God defend us! that's he! Curse him! curse him! Lie down—lie down, I say! It's death if he catches sight of us!"

We crowded against the rock. My companion's face was livid, and his lips worked as though fingers were plucking at them, but made no sound.

"Listen," he said, at length—and his hoarse voice was sunk so low that I could scarcely catch his words—"take this quick, and stow it away in your jacket, so as he can't see it."

He took something out of a pocket inside his shirt and forced it into my hands. What is was I could not see, so quickly he made me hide it in my jacket. But I caught a glimpse of something that looked like brass, and the packet was hard and heavy.

"And look, here's a letter; put it away and read it after. If he does for me—curse him!—you keep what I've give you. You'll never give it up to him. Swear it. Take your Bible oath!"

I gave the promise.

"Mind you, if you do I'll haunt you. I'll curse you dying, and that's an awful thing to happen to a man. Look over again."

Again I peered over, but drew back as if shot; for just below me was a black head with glittering earings, and its owner was steadily coming up the path towards us. This fascinating story of adventure will be continued in the Boston Daily Globe next Monday, Nov. 7, and will run about six weeks. Do not fail to get the Globe regularly during that time.

"Ain't this an absurd idea," remarked a fashionable woman, "to cut evening dresses so low in the throat?" "By no means, madam," replied her modiste; "nobody minds a cold these days. You see everybody knows Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup." "Yes, I hadn't thought."

Gen. Miles has so far recovered from the effects of a fall from his horse that he has made his appearance on the streets of Los Angeles, California.

Those unhappy persons who suffer from nervousness and dyspepsia should use Carter's Little Nerve pills, which are made expressly for sleepless, nervous, dyspeptic sufferers. Price 25 cents.

M. Waddington, the French ambassador at London, will soon resign. Count de Chamborde has been designated as his successor.

Women with pale, colorless faces, who feel weak and discouraged, will receive both mental and bodily vigor by using Carter's Iron Pills, which are made for the blood, nerves and complexion.

Washington Irving Bishop, the mind-reader, has been taken seriously sick with an epileptic fit in San Francisco.

Skin diseases cannot be successfully treated by external applications. The proper way to cure such complaints is to purify the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Under the vitalizing influences of this medicine all the functions of the body are brought into healthy action.

President Grevy of France is reported to be preparing a cabinet crisis. His opponents will try to force his resignation.

Female Help.

Servant girls and, in fact, most women, suffer from weak back and side ache. Apply a Hop Plaster and experience instant relief. Strengthening and pain-killing. 25 cts. Druggists.

Levi Painter, a California farmer, saw Ah Cue, a Chinaman, helping himself to apples in his orchard, and he fired a couple of charges of birdshot into the heathen. Ah Cue brought suit against Painter, who was sentenced to pay $250. He appealed to the supreme court, but the sentence was sustained, and Mr. Painter's shot cost him, all told, about $1,000. Ten cents would have paid for the fruit that Ah Cue had taken.

"It's only a question of time," and a short time, too, as to when your rheumatism will yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

Out of suffering have emerged the strongest souls, and the most massive characters are seamed with scars. This reads nicely, but any one suffering with rheumatism or neuralgia would do much better by using Salvation Oil. Price twenty-five cents.

William Nevers of Claremont, aged sixty-three years, dropped dead Oct. 30th while loading a team with wood.

For Scrofula, Impoverished Blood and General Debility,

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, has, no equal in the whole realm of medicine. Read the following: "I gave one bottle of Scott's Emulsion to my own child for Scrofula, and the effect was marvelous." —O. F. Gray, M. D., White Ball, Ind.

Wolfeboro has nine religious societies, eight churches and eight church edifices, not counting the Salvation Army.

An honest medicine is one that the proprietors are willing to warrant. Such is the Constitutional Cough Syrup sold at Kimball's drug store. It is a sure cure for coughs, colds and all affections of the throat and lungs. Price twenty-five and fifty cents per bottle.

The lasters in Bartlett & Dook's shoe factory at Laconia returned to work on the 3d inst., a price list having been agreed upon to stand until next May.

Rheumatism

Is undoubtedly caused by lactid acid in the blood. This acid attacks the fibrous tissues, and causes the pains and aches in the back, shoulders, knees ankles, hips, and wrists. Thousands of people have found in Hood's Sarssparilla a positive cure for rheumatism. This medicine, by its purifying action, neutralizes the acidity of the blood, and also builds up and strengthens the whole body.

The Gray Defalcation.

The report of Ex-Judge Lowell, as referee to determine the state of accounts between the Indian Orchard and Atlantic cotton mills resulting from the peculations of the defaulting deceased treasurer, William Gray, Jr., shows that this respectable Massachusetts thief stole over half a million of dollars. He was able to accomplish this irregularity by drawing checks as treasurer of one corporation and making good temporarily his deficit as treasurer of the other. No one looked over his shoulders. His rascality of course was known to his clerks, but they of course kept mum.

The revelation shows how slovenly is the management, or rather mis-management of manufacturing corporations in Massachusetts. The treasurers of these concerns have often been selected because they happened to be sons-in-law, or relatives in some degree, of large shareholders who made themselves directors, selling agents, etc. These offices have been wanted as asylums for decayed merchants and unfortunate business men. They have in some instances been filled by able and honest incumbents, but there have been in too many instances only weighty family considerations brought forward in connection with these places.

Whether Beacon Hill and the Back Bay will be taught a profitable lesson from the results of the Gray peculations remains to be seen. At all events, the people of New Hampshire, who have been taught to believe that the financial ability and sagacity of New England has its root and stock at the Hub, will pause ere they entrust their hard-earned shekels to the custody of Massachusetts treasurers, if the directors of the corporations, whose money is so easily abstracted as appears to have been the case with Gray, are not to give the property they in theory are deemed to manage more personal attention than is paid by the average director in manufacturing corporations.

The Legislature.

The judiciary committee of the house reported on the bribery charges, on the 2d. There were two reports.

The bill to extend the charter of the Dover & Winnepisoogee railroad so as to allow the building of an extension from Laconia to Alton Bay, (the Lake Shore road,) was passed by the house on the 2d, 145 to 117. The amendment to make it inoperative till June, 1889, was defeated, 148 to 122.

In the house, on the 3d, the judiciary committee reported a bill to prevent bribery or corruption, which was passed unanimously under suspension of the rules. The bill provides that whoever attempts corruptly to influence an executive or judicial officer, or member of the legislature, shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding five years or a fine not exceeding $3000; and that whoever accepts a bribe shall forfeit his office, be forever disqualified for holding office, and suffer imprisonment not more than ten years, or be fined not exceeding $5000. The senate bill authorizing the Boston & Maine railroad to purchase the Eastern was passed, subject to the approval of the supreme court.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner A. Hooper, Calder master, arrived at this port on the 3d inst. from Calais, Me., with 118,000 feet of dry hemlock boards, placed, to John H. Broughton.

The lighthouse steamer Iris came up the river on Thursday afternoon, the 3d inst., having on board the old Kitts rock bell-buoy, taken up for repairs, and replaced by a new one of the same size and power.

The schooner E. M. Branscombe, of Ellsworth, Me., waterlogged and abandoned, was towed into Lunesville, Cape Ann, Nov. 2d, by the steamer Jetty, having been picked up near Plumb island, on her beam ends, with her deck load gone and her sails blown away. This is probably the vessel that was seen thirteen miles off Cape Ann about one o'clock A. M. the same day, by the British schooner Acacia, on her beam ends and with four men clinging to the wreck. The fate of her crew is not known, but there is little hope that their lives were saved.

The national administration is a civil service reform affair, with an unprecedented regard for the laws of the land. That these principles may be essentially endorsed in the coming election in New York, commissioners of finance have visited Washington and gone through the list of department clerks, inviting voluntary contributions to the democratic campaign fund. Republican clerks, too, find it for their interest to hand over a quiet assessment to this end. Democratic clerks are to be allowed to go home to vote, with no deduction for lost time.

Treasurer Kent of the Exeter Manufacturing company says the first three floors of the old mill, in which the fire occurred on the evening of the 31st ult., were only damaged by water; the two upper stories, which were the mule rooms, are a total loss; the walls are apparently in good condition, but slightly damaged. The new part of the mill was not injured, and will be started as soon as possible, giving employment to 150 hands. The old mill will be rebuilt immediately, with an additional story and a flat roof. Negotiations are already being made for new machinery, and Mr. Kent thinks that within six weeks the entire mill will be running again. The loss will come up to the figures previously given, and possibly to $125,000; covered by insurance.

A despatch of Nov. 2d from Halifax, N. S., is as follows: "The circuit of the short cable between Halifax and Rye Beach, N. H., of the United States Direct Cable company, has been completed, the land end having been taken up at New York and removed here. The line gives the utmost satisfaction. The line of the cable was laid out to go over Brown's bank, but to avoid any interferences with fishermen plying their vocation, the steamer Minia was employed to lay the cable around the bank instead of over it."

Many persons were poisoned on Friday evening, Oct. 28th, at a dance and supper given by George C. King in Franklin parish, near Lamar, Miss. Six white persons and one black have died, and a dozen others are seriously sick. The matter is being investigated.

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, Nov. 3d:

Present the full board, except Mayor Hodgdon.

Alderman Urch was called to the chair.

W. L. Dwight was granted relay of sidewalk on Daniel street.

Light was granted on the corner of Whidden and Pleasant streets.

Request of the city employes for weekly payment of wages was referred to Ald. Wendell, Seymour and Boynton as a special committee, to report.

Committee on claims reported on claim of Henry M. Tucker to be reimbursed for expenses incurred by him in recovering his team, recently stolen, recommending that he be granted leave to withdraw. Accepted and adopted.

Samuel Langdon's petition for two lights on Lafayette road was granted.

Petition of James Douglas and others for lights on Middle road, was referred.

Bills to the amount of $1731.85 were ordered to be paid.

Notice was received from the Common Council, of concurrence in the bill making appropriation for two beds at the Cottage Hospital.

Alderman Fletcher took the chair.

Committee on sewers asked for further time in relation to the drainage of Cass and Union streets, on account of the lateness of the season; granted.

The renumbering of the streets that have been newly named was referred to the committee on streets, with power.

Bonds of Cornelius Quinn as police officer were approved.

Ballotted for a member of the Board of Instruction in place of George E. Hodgdon, resigned. Andrew P. Wendell receiving all the votes cast, was declared elected.

John H. Grover was granted leave to encumber Austin street for building purposes.

Voted to pay Mr. Robinson $10 for land to be taken to widen Water street.

Adjourned for two weeks.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

THURSDAY, Nov. 3d.

Michael O'Brien, charged with drunkenness, acknowledged that the charge was well founded, but pleaded that he came here to look for work, and unfortunately found more liquor saloons than employment. He said if discharged he would leave town at once, and proceed to Gloucester, where he could get work on the water works. The magistrate thought if he wanted to become familiar with water he should have a chance, and allowed him to go on probation—not to come back too soon.

A man for many years employed at one of the breweries, and who never was before the court previously, was complained of for assaulting a boy about fifteen years old. The evidence indicated that the boy was insolently abusive to the man, and perhaps deserved all the punishment he received, which was not severe; and in consideration of the man's previous good reputation the case was placed on file.

WHO OWNS THE STREETS?

The National Telephone Co., without stating why or wherefore to the city authorities, are this week locating their poles ad libitum on the streets of Portsmouth. They are not especially ornamental. It is reported that the telephone company say they have a right to put their poles wherever they please; perhaps it would be well for the city government to find out about this, for if the National Telephone Co. owns the streets of the city, the people might like to know it.

THE FRENCH SPOLIATION CLAIMS.

A Washington despatch of the 2d inst. says: "Judge Davis of the court of claims has prepared a very elaborate opinion covering the contested questions raised in fifty pending cases of French spoliation claims. Assistant Attorney General Wilson, on the part of the government, has brought some additional objections to the consideration of the court, and the court will examine these objections during the week. The opinion will probably be announced next Monday. It is very confidently expected that the decision will favor the claimants." A large number of these claims are held by persons in this city and vicinity, the commerce of this port having suffered very severely from the depredations of the French cruisers.

AN OLD "AD."

Mr. W. I. Trafton, the Congress street jeweller, while overhauling an old trunk recently came upon a piece of paper, evidently part of an old Portsmouth Journal, which contained a notice which he thought worthy of being itemized in this paper; and as the gentleman whose name is most prominent in the notice has not only in all the years since it appeared maintained the highest standing in the community as a man and citizen, but has been a constant subscriber to and advertiser in the Chronicle, we think so too. It reads as follows:

Tailoring Notice.

The subscriber would respectfully inform his customers that he has sold out his stock and place of business to Mr. Wm. P. Walker, recently of Salem. * * He would here recommend to his customers Mr. Wm. P. Walker, who has taken his place of business and is this week adding largely to his stock. The style and beauty of his garments will be unsurpassed. A. F. BROWN.

Wm. P. Walker would respectfully inform the present and former customers of Mr. Brown that he will carry on the tailoring business in all its branches, and trusts that his experience as a cutter in one of the first establishments in the city of Salem will recommend him in part to the gentlemen in this place. He has this week selected from the Boston market some new and rich styles of black and colored English, French and German cloths, cassimeres, doeskins, and vestings, viz: silk, satin, cashmere and valencia, which he will be happy to make up in the most fashionable manner, for the cheapest cash prices.

PORTSMOUTH, Oct. 25, 1848. tf

The very modest hope expressed by the then young purchaser of the business, that his previous experience would "recommend him in part to the gentlemen in this place," has been generously fulfilled in the high class and liberal amount of patronage he has received during the thirty-nine years since the announcement was made; and the positive assertion of his predecessor that "the style and beauty of his garments will be unsurpassed" has been fully borne out by the experience of thousands of patrons during that time.

Fully 300 people took advantage of the excursion rates to Boston on Thursday by the first train, which left this city at 7:30 o'clock, and at least 200 more went by subsequent trains. Besides those from this city, a large number came over the York Harbor & Beach railroad.

Paymaster Lyon, U. S. N., has taken a lease of Col. J. Horace Kent's house on Islington street from May 1st, '88, to Oct. 1st, '90.

Several good-sized pickerel were caught in the north millpond on the 2d inst. Pickerel in salt water seem out of place. Probably the next fish to be caught there will be brook trout.

Mr. William Pettigrew of Newcastle exhibits a rutabaga turnip raised by him, which weighs ten pounds and two ounces. He thinks this the boss turnip.

Rev. George W. Sanderson, formerly pastor of the Christian church in Stratham, died in Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 30th, at the age of seventy-three years. Mr. Sanderson entered the navy when very young, and was discharged in 1844, after which he lived in Dover until 1857, when he removed to Haverhill. In 1875 he was ordained to the gospel ministry at Manchester, by the Rockingham County Conference of Christian churches, and installed pastor of the church of that denomination in Ashfield, Mass., where he officiated for one year. He afterwards preached for the church in Lynn, Mass., and subsequently in Stratham. He leaves a wife, two sons and two daughters.

Jeff Davis is reported dying. "Fly swift around, ye wheels of time, and bring the welcome day."—Penny Post.

PERSONAL.

Warden Kent was in town on Wednesday of this week.

Wallace Hackett, Esq., left on a business tour to Kansas City on Thursday.

J. Albert Walker, Esq., has gone to Boston to spend the winter, and has already been dubbed "Colonel" by the reporter of the Herald.

Alderman Conlon has arrived home from Albany, N. Y., whither he went to attend the funeral of his uncle, and was at the meeting of the board on Thursday evening.

Hon. Frank Jones and family have taken up their residence at the Rockingham house for the winter, having moved in from their summer residence at Gravelly Ridge on Wednesday of this week.

The Woman's Independent Relief Corps, No. 1, of New Hampshire, will give a Harvest Supper, and an entertainment consisting of singing, reading, and a drama, on the evening of Nov. 4th in Good Templars' Hall, opposite post-office. Grand Army songs a specialty. Friends of the cause are cordially invited. Supper from 6:30 to 8:00 o'clock. Tickets 25 cts.

Contributions of cake and pastry are solicited.

Lewis E. Staples has laid out a small lot of Ladies' and Misses' Winter Cloaks to sell at five dollars a garment. They are broken lines he will not have again. It might be an advantage to see them.

Gov. Bodwell of Maine says the Boston & New York Rapid Transit railway will be built unless a financial panic should prevent such a desired result.

"HASTE MAKES WASTE."

"What!!! Have you finished your washing? I had much less than you and you are through first. What soap do you use?"

"It isn't the soap. Use washing powder and you will get through in half the time; it does the work for you."

"I know it will, but the clothes won't last half so long; we've tried it. We use Ivory Soap altogether; it cleans more easily and quickly than any other kind, and I find the clothes last as long again. My folks won't let me use washing powder."

"Of course they won't, neither will mine, but I use it anyhow. I don't care to save their clothes at the expense of my time and back."

Reader, which do you value most, your laundresses time and back, or your clothes? If the former, then let her use washing powder.

MESSRS. PROCTER & GAMBLE, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Dear Sirs:—The sample of Ivory Soap received from you is an excellent Laundry Soap, of great purity and more than average cleansing power.

Very respectfully yours,

The John C. Green School of Science, Princeton, N. J., Dec. 10th, 1885. H. B. CORNWALL, PROFESSOR OF CHEMISTRY.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

SOLD ONLY ON SPOOLS.

Color warranted not to "run," or to injure in any way the most delicate material in washing. For heavy outline embroidery use two threads, for lighter work use the thread singly. These goods are adapted to a wider range of art work than any yet offered for this purpose. The convenience of having this reliable brand on spools, rather than doubtful goods in skeins which tangle and become quickly shop-worn, will be apparent to dealers and consumers. Sold by enterprising merchants, who can be supplied at our Agency, No. 18 Summer Street, Boston.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin's Piano Stringer was introduced by them in 1882, and has been pronounced by experts the "greatest improvement in pianos in half a century."

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Charles A. Richardson, a brakeman on the Old Colony railroad, was arrested at Fall River, Mass., by the city marshal of Keene, Nov. 1st, and taken to that city, on a charge of stealing a horse and carriage two years ago.

Cyrus Walton of Seabrook lost a horse recently, through the animal getting so badly hurt in a barbed-wire fence that it had to be killed.

An elegant memorial window has been placed in the Methodist church at Rochester by Charles Tebbetts of Lynn, Mass., in memory of his mother, Mary Esther Tebbetts, whose name is inscribed upon the window.

Timothy E. Furnald, a veteran soldier and ex-representative in the legislature, had his right leg broken on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 1st, by a falling tree striking it, which he was chopping on his farm near Enfield Center.

The carriage house of Jesse Gould at Wolfeboro' was set on fire on the night of Nov. 2d, and completely destroyed, with $1500 worth of carriages; loss $6000; partly insured. A barn belonging to J. B. Manning, in the same town, was also set on fire, but the fire was discovered immediately, and put out by neighbors. Next forenoon Leonard Houlton of Great Falls was arrested on suspicion of being the party who set the fires.

In its efforts to find the true boundary line between itself and Massachusetts, New Hampshire sent to the record office in London and procured fac similes of the orders of the king in council, and of the old maps and surveys. These latter were compared with the recent surveys of a United States engineer, and the two were found to be almost identical.

The Congregational church at Hampton will celebrate its 250th anniversary next year.

George Shute of Exeter, a prominent republican clerk in the naval office at Boston for over twenty-six years past, has been civil-service-reformed out of his place.

The man who committed suicide or was murdered on top of Mt. Megunticook, Camden, Me., some weeks since, is now believed to have been Allery Fitz-Henry alias Andrew McGrath, who arrived in Rockland, Me., from East Machias, several months ago, with his wife, and suddenly disappeared about the time the suicide is supposed to have occurred. Descriptions of the two persons tally very closely. Fitz-Henry was in rather destitute circumstances, was despondent, and was heard to say that he would take his life sometime. Fitz-Henry's wife remained in Rockland until the middle of last week, and then disappeared. Further investigations will be made.

At Airmount, Miss., Oct. 28th, a colored woman named Mag Sherman swore out a complaint against Sell Boyle, a young white man of previous good character, charging him with breaking into her house the previous night, and criminally assaulting herself and her eight-years-old daughter. In court on the 29th the evidence given was very conclusive, and at its close Boyle drew a revolver and shot the woman dead, one bullet through her head and another in her brain. The murderer, aided by William Pato, a relative, escaped.

The Only Remedy

FOR

Contagious Blood Poison.

Mr. D. B. Adams, Union, South Carolina, writes: "I was afflicted with a terrible case of blood poison for about thirteen months I was treated by the best physicians, and used various kinds of remedies, but received no substantial relief. I finally tried the Swift Specific, and about four bottles cured me sound and well."

Col. H. H. Kleser, editor and proprietor of the Opelika, Ala., Times, under date of August 2, 1887, writes: "When I was a young man, through indiscretion, I contracted a disease which has stuck to me for years. Some five or six years since I was troubled with pains, so as to make it difficult for me to walk. Having advertised the S. S. S. in my paper for several years, I concluded I would try it to see if there was any efficacy in the medicine. I commenced using it according to directions and used half dozen bottles. I was once at a way station and, getting left, I walked the seven miles and have never felt any return of the old malady. After experiencing the good effects I must say I am satisfied with the result. I am sixty-eight years of age and I feel now like a young man and can go to the case when necessary and set up from six to eight thousand cens without any inconvenience. I send you this without solicitation."

Mr. F. Woehl, 211 North Avenue, Chicago, under date of June 12, 1887, writes: "I deem it my duty to thank you for the cure I received from your excellent medicine. I contracted a very severe case of blood poisoning about two years ago. Hearing of your medicine, I went to a drug store, the proprietor of which persuaded me to try a preparation of his own, which he said was a sure cure. I used six bottles of his stuff and grew worse all the time. At last I got disgusted and despaired of a cure. I met a friend who told me that your medicine had cured him. I went to the same druggists again and demanded your medicine. He reluctantly sold me twelve bottles, and I am now perfectly cured. I write this for the benefit of sufferers, to prevent their being deceived by false representations. I thank you again for the benefit derived from your medicine."

Dr. J. N. Cheney, a prominent physician, residing in Gainsville, Schley County, Georgia, in a letter recounting the infallible success he has in curing contagious blood poison cases in his extensive practice, writes: "Those who know the almost inevitable, permanently dangerous effects of mercury will welcome your discovery of S. S. S. as a boon to humanity. The medical profession, always wary of proprietary medicines, is coming slowly, and in some cases secretly, to the use of S. S. S. in cases of blood disorder. Of course a medicine that cures poisoning in the worst form must purify the blood of every disorder."

A LETTER.

Amid the clamorous city's glare,
Where all is warm save friends too few,
And honest men, alas! too rare;
Where teeming care leaves little true,
And almost shaken is belief,
For with the laugh on every wind
I catch the throb of sullen grief—
I long for what I've left behind.

We hurry so; we do not care
To value life till comes the rue,
And by the candle's last light flare
We see too well the blank we drew.
But I, who've had a glimpse too brief
Of life so holy, pure, so kind,
To think it here precisions me thief—
I long for what I've left behind.

I hear the Bob White's whistle where
The grateful grasses hold the dew;
I see the nursing branches bear
The fruit with life blood blushing through;
I feel the breath from each leaf,
Which, rocking trustful, does not mind
The threatening of the coming sheaf—
I long for what I've left behind.

Dear! You who breathe a purer air
Within your secret heart can find
The why—though you were here, I there—
I long for what I've left behind.

—William Carey in The Christian Union.

A DANGEROUS PRAIRIE GROWTH.

The Curious Plant Known as the "Tumble Weed"—A Great Menace.

W. F. Niederlander, a prominent real estate man, has on exhibition in the window of his office a fine specimen of the curious plant known as the "tumble weed." This specimen was taken from the old fair grounds last year after the grounds were abandoned. The plant is a mass of branches, spherical in form, and so tightly interwoven as to form almost a compact mass. Like the earth, this globular mass of branches is flattened at the poles—or more so. The present specimen is about five feet at its greatest diameter, Mr. Niederlander says he has seen specimens fully twice the size.

The weed once grew plentifully through this country and Colorado. When green they present a very pretty appearance, and look more like a dwarf tree than a weed. They are very dangerous in case of a prairie fire, and often dangerous in plain wind storms when there is no fire. In case of fire the flames seem to strip the plant of its leaves, and it at once goes rolling before the flaming hurricane a perfect wheel of fire. These revolving wheels of fire will jump any ordinary furrow or fire break and carry the fire into the timber or grass, as the case may be. Nothing can stop their progress but a river. Into these they jump, leaping out into the stream forty, fifty or sixty feet, and go down with a hiss, throwing up a column of steam where they sink.

"I have seen hundreds of these plants in Barber county and the Siquashie valley," said Mr. Niederlander. "When started to rolling in a fire no ordinary horse can run before them. Once, in the Siquashie valley, I only saved myself by driving my team into the river, which I fortunately reached just in time."

In Colorado wind storms these weeds are also a source of much danger. In Middle park a few years ago a party of travelers were suddenly overtaken by a storm. Seeing what they supposed to be a mass of huge bowlders in the distance, they made for them, thinking they would afford at least partial shelter. To their surprise, as they approached, the bowlders suddenly broke loose and commenced rolling toward them at a furious rate, cutting all sorts of curious capers and gyrating menacingly as they came. At times they would strike an obstruction and bound high in the air, and again striking the ground resume their rapid, circular motion. The travelers put spurs to their horses, and it was only by the greatest effort that they managed to escape from the track of these monsters. On examination they found their supposed bowlders were really immense weeds which had been torn up by the roots by the wind storm.

These weeds are so solid that they are a great menace to man and beast under such circumstances. Impelled by a heavy wind, they would go with force enough to kill a horse, and a human being is in great danger if he cannot get out of the track of these monsters when they are running before a hurricane or in case of a prairie fire.—Wichita Journal.

The Pacific Coast Boundary.

The Pacific ocean boundary of the United States has a greater extent of coast line than the Atlantic shore. The aggregate of our shore line on the Pacific is 12,734 miles, while on the Atlantic it is 11,860 miles and on the Gulf of Mexico 6,843. California contains 1,136 miles of the coast line on the Pacific, while she also has 272 miles of island shore and 240 miles of tide water river shore, making altogether 1,648 miles of shore line. Texas has an actual coast line on the gulf of 1,209 miles, while Florida has 1,144 on the gulf and 368 miles on the Atlantic, so that both exceed California in this particular. It was the annexation of Alaska that promoted the Pacific coast to a higher figure than the Atlantic, Alaska having 9,830 miles of coast line. These figures are taken from the coast survey reports.—Boston Post.

The car in which Abraham Lincoln made the journey from Buffalo to Albany on his way to Washington for his first inauguration is still running on the Auburn branch of the New York Central railroad. The ceiling is decorated with the national flag, and at one end is a portrait of Lincoln and at the other one of Washington. The car, now known as No. 540, was now in February, 1861, and was decorated for the purpose of carrying the president. It is still in good condition and runs regularly.—Chicago News.

A Lock of Washington's Hair.

A woman in Dalton, Ga., has a breastpin containing a lock of hair which is said to have been cut from the head of George Washington. The pin is oval in shape, of old yellow gold, and within a circle of diamonds is the lock of hair.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures many actuated. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and how free in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvelous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

At Peace.

A stomach in revolt is an obdurate rebel. Corrected with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, its dissensions with the food introduced into it in unwary moments of appetite ceases. Then it is at peace. Then dyspepsia abandons its grip. Then such fractious manifestations as heartburn, a sinking sensation in the pit of the abdomen between meals and unnatural fullness afterwards, flatulence, acid gulpings, biliousness, &c., cease to inflict martyrdom. After a course of the national tonic and alterative, the liver and bowels, always more or less disordered during a prolonged attack of indigestion, resume their functions and become regular. Thus not only dyspepsia, but its complaints, constipation and biliousness, are conquered by the medicine, which remedies their fruitful cause, weakness of the organs of digestion. The epigastric nerve, cellular tissue, in short, every organ that bears a part in the digestive processes acquires vigor and regularity from the benign invigorant.

—"Mamma," said a little girl of four, whose father pays very little attention to the dinner hour, "Papa is just like the moon, isn't he? Because he comes a little later every night."

Those unhappy persons who suffer from nervousness and dyspepsia should use Carter's Little Nerve pills, which are made expressly for sleepless, nervous, dyspeptic sufferers. Price 25 cents.

—Mother (to four-year-old): "If your dolly has been so naughty as you say, Flossie, why don't you give her a good whipping?" Flossie (thoughtfully): "Cause I don't believe in that sort of thing."

Women with pale, colorless faces, who feel weak and discouraged, will receive both mental and bodily vigor by using Carter's Iron Pills, which are made for the blood, nerves and complexion.

—Miss Dewdrop — "Don't you think Mr. Rosebush has a very sensitive mouth?" Miss Rayne (blushing violently)—"How should I know?"

Skin diseases cannot be successfully treated by external applications. The proper way to cure such complaints is to purify the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Under the vitalizing influences of this medicine all the functions of the body are brought into healthy action.

—"How is it that Sapidus is a member of the Author's Club? I didn't know that he had written anything." "That's all you know about literature, you never read anything. He's one of the biggest soap makers in America."

Female Help.

Servant girls and, in fact, most women, suffer from weak back and side ache. Apply a Hop Plaster and experience instant relief. Strengthening and pain-killing. 25 cts. Druggists.

"It's only a question of time," and a short time, too, as to when your rheumatism will yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

—"Charley," said a young wife, "is there really any such person as the foolkiller?" "Oh, I guess not; I don't know," said Charley, who was reading the morning paper. "Well, Charley, all I wanted to say is, please don't go out after dark any more until you find out."

Be Careful!

No matter what disease you may have. Be sure that the medicine you take is reliable. Such a medicine you will always find Sulphur Bitters. They are not a cheap rum drink, but are made of the choicest roots and herbs to be found in the vegetable kingdom.—Daily Argus.

—A curious notion is that of making type to represent the imperfections of typewriters. Now if some one would make typewriters to represent the perfection of printing it would be a great service.

The breath of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he cannot go into society, and he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked, and frequently entirely destroyed. A constant source of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which in its turn has been the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results which have attended its use for years past properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best, if not the only real cure for hay fever, rose cold and catarrh.

GOLDEN DROPS (Registered), sure cure for nervous prostration, exhaustion and general debility. Pamphlet free to any address. Sole agency for the United States.

DR. J. ROBERTSON, 15 Dover St., Boston, Mass. ☞ Send stamp for circular. cod&w3

Out of suffering have emerged the strongest souls, and the most massive characters are seamed with scars. This reads nicely, but any one suffering with rheumatism or neuralgia would do much better by using Salvation Oil. Price twenty-five cents.

—Here is an instance of chastened affliction. A New York dramatic paper, in speaking of the death of a well-known actor, says: "He leaves a broken-hearted widow in good financial circumstances." How sad!

For Scrofula, Impoverished Blood and General Debility,

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, has, no equal in the whole realm of medicine. Read the following: "I gave one bottle of Scott's Emulsion to my own child for Scrofula, and the effect was marvelous." —O. F. Gray, M. D., White Ball, Ind.

—It was very late, and Brown was steering Robinson homeward. "What will you say to your wife?" Brown asked. "Not a (hic) word," said Robinson. "Why not?" "I won't have a (hic) chance."

Constitutional Cough Syrup.

Constitutional Cough Syrup is sold on the "no cure, no pay," principle. It contains no opium nor anything injurious. Why suffer with coughs and colds when for twenty-five or fifty cents you can get a bottle at the drug store of Dr. Kimball.

—A Booneville (Ky.) school teacher had a great deal of trouble making a boy understand his lesson. Finally, however, he succeeded, and, drawing a long breath, remarked: "If it wasn't for me, you would be the biggest donkey in Booneville."

Rheumatism

Is undoubtedly caused by lactic acid in the blood. This acid attacks the fibrous tissues, and causes the pains and aches in the back, shoulders, knees ankles, hips, and wrists. Thousands of people have found in Hood's Sarsaparilla a positive cure for rheumatism. This medicine, by its purifying action, neutralizes the acidity of the blood, and also builds up and strengthens the whole body.

So Glad.

At a democratic banquet given in Boston on Wednesday, the 2d inst., an enthusiastic speaker maintained that "there are more strict and conscientious temperance, total abstinence men in the ranks of the democratic party than can be found among the republicans—yes—with the prohibition third party men thrown in. [Applause.] There is also more interest in the maintenance of the public schools;" and he closed by the prediction that ere long the democratic party, no less than the republican, would have to recognize the people's demand for total abstinence and prohibition.

This however, it must be admitted, was the last speech! There is no pretence that it was a cold water dinner. The declaration seems to place the democracy on a new footing. The discovery is certainly new, and for the liquor interest, startling.

The Work of the Legislature.

According to the reports of the committee on judiciary of the house of representatives, the result of whose labors seems to be a series of indictments without conviction of the accused, Mr. Durgin of Northwood appears to have come nearer filling the role of champion seducer of legislative integrity than any other lobby worker. Whether the Ex-Register of Probate builded better than he knew is perhaps a matter of doubt, in the minds of some who are familiar with his co-laborers in the Concord cause. At all events, the result has been accomplished. It seems an anomoly in political ethics when the friends and agents of the Concord road could be able to say to the governor: "Behold this great evil! One of our fellows has sought to bribe men who stood high on the roll call, and this ought to destroy the results of months' legislative action!" The doctrine that a man should not take advantage from his own wrong does not seem to have been regarded by the governor as applicable to corporations, which perhaps his legal advisers regarded in the same light as did Sir Edward Coke, namely, having no souls, their creatures could not commit what in an individual would constitute a crime.

The governor however has come to regard the leasing of a line by a railroad not immediately joining its lines, as impracticable or at least impolitic. This doubtless is the doctrine of the Concord people, but in the case of construction of remote feeders for trunk lines, which in these days can only be built by the means of funds supplied by prospective lessees, it will be found impracticable. In the case of the Portsmouth & Dover railroad, the building of which was of such importance to the governor's manufacturing interests, the lease was made in fact to the Eastern Railroad Co. in Massachusetts, though it is true the Eastern Railroad in New Hampshire acted as a sort of trustee or attorney to receive the lease, but without any interest in the transaction. If the governor has reached his conclusions unaided by the advice and suggestions of those who were in the interest and employ of the opponents of the Hazen bill, the indictions are that his mind has undergone a change in regard to the practical conduct of the railway problem and what the best interests of the state may demand.

The possibility that the state has an interest in the Concord railway is constantly a subject of reference, but it seems singular that in a session of such unprecedented length this alleged bonanza should not have been looked after by some legislative committee. There is really but one way to determine this question, and that is to institute such legal proceedings as would bring the question at an early day before the courts. The judges then, or those who held them, could return the free passes, especially if the case reached them toward the close of the year, and give the subject the benefit of their important investigation and legal knowledge.

The following detail of officers for the Marion, now at Panama, has been made: Commander N. M. Dyer; Lieutenant Commander C. T. Hutchins; Lieutenants M. E. Hall, C. F. Emmerich and D. L. Wilson; Masters J. C. Gilmore and M. S. Hogg; Ensigns William G. Miller and Glennis Tarbox; Naval Cadets William G. McMillan, A. H. Scales, F. M. Russell and C. S. Graig; Surgeon P. Fitzsimmons; Assistant Surgeon L. W. Atlee; Paymaster John McMahon; Chief Engineer James Butterworth; Assistant Engineer R. D. Saylor; and Cadet Engineer J. E. Byrne, W. S. Smith and Solon Arnold.

The following changes in the personnel of the Asiatic squadron have been made by Rear-Admiral Chandler: Passed Asst. Engr. H. Herwig from the Palos to the Essex; Passed Assistant Engineer J. K. Barton from the Essex to the Palos; Ensign W. R. Shoemaker from the Brooklyn to the Palos; Ensign G. W. Brown from the Essex to to the Palos; Lieutenant T. M. Mason from the Brooklye to the Essex; and Lieutenant W. H. Southerland from the Monocacy to the Brooklyn, as flag-lieutenant.

Commander William C. Wise, U. S. N., and family, are at the Rockingham house. Commander Wise has recently been relieved from duty as ordnance officer at this navy yard by Commander Charles J. Barclay, who will be remembered by many of our people as having before been stationed at the yard.

Mr. W. E. Barrett of the Boston Advertiser, in addition to being a candidate for matrimonial felicity, has been nominated for the office of representative to the General Court of Massachusetts. Fancy a fresh member of the lobby attempting to demonstrate to the versatile editor of the Record, the expediency of his supporting any measure before the legislature! Sometimes even the best men in the editorial profession fall from their high estate.

"Did n't Know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 37 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness, indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her troubles originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time established her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go through the summer."

Collector Saltonstall of Boston was recently in Washington, and on his return told a reporter that "the president looks at politics in a large way, with a view to large results." "I was never," he concluded, "more impressed with the sincerity and strength of the president than when he spoke of his desire for the success of his party in order to insure the success of the reforms which are so near his heart." It is to insure these reforms and purify politics, no doubt, that the president sends a big check to the New York democratic corruption fund, backs up Higgins and Gorman in Maryland, and approves the squeezing of "voluntary contributions" in aid of the democratic party from the department clerks in Washington. "Reform is necessary," and must be promoted by whatever means seem most immediately available.

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive economy of this great medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of roots, herbs, barks, etc., long and favorably known for their power in purifying the blood; and in combination, proportion, and process, Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself.

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures scrofula, salt rheum, all humors, boils, pimples, general debility, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, catarrh, rheumatism, kidney and liver complaints, and all affections caused by impure blood or low condition of the system. Try it.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not know how to do without it." MARY L. PEBLE, Salem, Mass.

THE WARD LINES WILL NOT BE CHANGED.

The bill to amend the charter of the city of Portsmouth was taken from the table in the house of representatives on the 3d inst., and the reports of the majority and minority of the Rockingham county delegation read; the majority report was adverse to the bill, which was to rearrange the ward lines of the city; the minority report favored the passage of the bill in a new draft.

Mr. Colby of Claremont moved the substitution of the minority report for that of the majority, and Mr. Sulloway of Manchester made a hifalutin harangue in favor of so doing. He believed the republicans of Portsmouth should be represented in the legislature; he wanted one man that would stand by the old flag and Governor Sawyer, and so long as the governor lived he was opposed to rotation in office unless the people sent him up higher; this was a political matter, and he would expect republicans to aid it.

On motion of Mr. Hodgdon of Portsmouth the consideration of the bill was indefinitely postponed, 108 to 105.

Sulloway called for the yeas and nays, the roll call resulting in 119 yeas to 108 nays, and the bill was indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Branch of Weare moved to reconsider the vote, and Mr. S. B. Page of Haverhill moved to lay on the table the motion to reconsider, which was carried.

WM. P. BURLEY.

Col. William Porter Burley, whose death in this city has been recorded, was born in Wakefield, N. H., Oct. 26th, 1816. His long connection with the Boston express made him well known, and as highly esteemed as he was well known, to the business portion of our citizens, while his worth received due acknowledgment from many personal friends. He remained in his native place until, at the age of twenty years, he went to Boston and engaged in the furniture business until 1843, when poor health obliged him to return to the old homestead. There he took an active part in military affairs, and received commissions as major and colonel of the 7th Regiment, N. H. V., his military ability, fine personal appearance and excellent horsemanship winning him much favor on parade. He also held many positions of trust, having served as superintendent of surveys, town treasurer and justice of the peace for many years, as well as representative to the state legislature in 1857, taking an active interest in politics until he removed to Portsmouth in 1863. He has for many years been agent for Jackson & Co.'s express, which company greatly lament their loss in his death. He was a consistent member of the Middle street Baptist church and of New Hampshire Lodge, I. O. O. F., of this city. He was twice married, and his widow, one daughter and two sons, residents of other cities, survive him. Funeral services were held in this city on Friday, Oct. 28th, conducted by Rev. Dr. Alden, who also on the following day with other friends and a delegation from New Hampshire Lodge, I. O. O. F., went to East Wakefield, where with further services his remains were placed beside those of his first wife.

At a meeting of the Chelsea aldermen, the Hon. Gasper G. Shannon was appointed a police officer, in place of C. Hutchens, resigned.—Boston Herald.

Mr. Shannon is a son of Charles W. Shannon of this city, who will be remembered as an efficient assistant marshal under a former republican administration. If Mr. Shannon, Jr., only proves half as capable, as a police officer, as his father did, the Chelsea public can find no fault.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Lizzie J. Call, of this port, took on a load of coal in New York this week for Dover.

The schooner A. J. Bentley, Brackett master, arrived at this port on Friday from Port Johnson with a cargo of coal to E. F. Sise & Co.

The schooner Clara E. Simpson, of this port, after an absence of over a year arrived here on Friday from New York, with a cargo of coal to J. Albert Walker.

The three-masted schooner John E. Sanford, of Dennis, Mass., with 560 tons of coal from Little Glace Bay, C. B., for parties in Newburyport and Haverhill, Mass., went ashore on the North Breaker, at the entrance to Newburyport harbor, Nov. 4th, and will probably become a total wreck. The crew, seven in number, were taken off by the life-saving men.

At a meeting of the city goverment on Thursday evening last, when the election of a member of the board of instruction to fill the vacancy caused by Hon. George E. Hodgdon's resignation was under consideration, Alderman Ira C. Seymour remarked that he considered that the aldermen should be careful in the selection of men elected to fill positions on the school board as it was about the only time the aldermen had any voice in relation to the conduct of the schools. The aldermen and council appropriate money and the members of the school board spend it as they see fit without consultation with the aldermen or others in authority. There are, the alderman said, some queer rules governing the school system, and some which it is rather hard to reconcile with his ideas of school laws. He spoke in particular of the rule which excluded scholars from school for the term unless they presented themselves at its commencement. He said further that years ago no such rule was thought of, and some very able men—men who have made their mark in the world—had graduated from Portsmouth's schools. In his opinion there is too much red tape in the school system at present. The teachers of our schools in earlier days did not complain of the admission of new pupils at any time in the term, and he thought they are well enough paid now for the amount of work they do, and should not complain of such a small amount of extra work as these admissions would make.

At a meeting of the Eliot & Kittery Mutual Fire Insurance company, on Monday, Oct. 31st, Alexander Junkins, Esq., resigned as secretary of said company, and Moses E. Goodwin of Eliot was chosen in his place. Mr Junkins has held the office of secretary for twenty-three years, and resigned because he is about to change his residence from Eliot to Greenland, this state.

Col. Cyrus Eastman of Littleton visited his sea-side possessions at Odiorne's point on Friday. The colonel holds that as the first settlement of New Hampshire was made in this region, it will one day become famous for its population of summer sojourners. The best sites for seaside residences on the coast are owned by Col. Eastman, who holds them at prices which will ensure the occupancy only of residents of the best character.

The manner in which ill-looking poles are being stuck down by the telephone company in front of people's parlor windows, or wherever else on our streets they choose, is causing considerable indignant speech. The wrathful householders and storekeepers had better keep still about the matter, as the telephone company may decide to run their wires through the parlors and counting rooms of the complainers.

Mrs. Joseph E. Mitchell, of Biddeford, who was recently burned in a terrible manner while lighting a fire with kerosene, died on the 3d inst.

All kinds of CEMETERY WORK, such as Fencing and Curbing, done in the best manner, (none but experienced workmen being employed,) and at prices not to be outdone by any other firm in New Hampshire. 2m27,y1m

Two large and lofty elm trees in front of the Smith building on Daniel street, recently purchased by Mr. C. H. Mendum, were taken down on Thursday of this week: they were quite old, and regarded as objectionable by the owner of the property, so permission was granted for their removal. Another elm on State street, near the residence of Mr. John H. Cheever, came down on Friday. If a judicious removal of several other unsightly trees could be effected it would improve the appearance of our streets.

New Year's eve coming this year on Saturday, Kearsarge Engine Co., No. 3, will give their annual ball on Friday night, Dec. 30th, in Franklin hall. Reeves' American band, of Providence, R. I., has been engaged to supply the music. Tickets will be put on sale next week. A band concert will be given in Music hall, preceding the dance.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin's Piano Stringer was introduced by them in 1882, and has been pronounced by the trade "the greatest improvement in pianos in half a century."

A circle of astonishing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

An attempt was made in Washington Thursday to blow up Chief Justice Waite. A package was sent him through the post office, and was delivered by a mail messenger, which contained explosives in a glass tube, intended to explode by percussion caps attached to a wire on lifting the cover of the box. The box was of the kind in which valentines are sent. In cancelling the stamp at the post office the blow disarranged the wire and the thing did not explode on opening the box as was intended.

OPIUM Morphine Habit easily cured at home. DR. J. C. HOFFMAN, Jefferson, Wis.

"Ain't this an absurd idea," remarked a fashionable woman, "to cut evening dresses so low in the throat?" "By no means, madam," replied her modiste; "nobody minds a cold these days. You see everybody knows Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup." "Yes, I hadn't thought."

—"Mamma," said a young lady just home from school and gazing upon Alexander Harrison's 'Open Sea,' "is this an oil painting or a water color?" "Sh," answered her mother, with a look of surprise and chagrin. "It's a water color. Don't you see the water?"

We have sold Wister's Balsam of Wild Cherry for many years. Nothing we have sold has ever given such perfect satisfaction for coughs and colds, and in advanced cases of consumption it has shown remarkable efficacy. P. S. Brown & Co., Fall River, Mass.

—"Never contract a friendship with a man who is not better then yourself," says one of those gratis advisers. That is all very well, so far as you are concerned, but how about the other fellow?

Something that will quiet the nerves, give strength to the body, induce refreshing sleep, improve the quality of the blood, and purify and brighten the complexion, is what many persons would be glad to obtain. Carter's Iron Pills are made for exactly for this class of troubles, and are remarkably successful in accomplishing the ends desired, as named above. They are useful for both men and women. Price, 50 cents a box.

—"How did you get your clothes all wet, my little boy?" asked the minister. "Fell into the water, sir," replied little Johnny. "So you were fishing on the Lord's day, eh?" "No, sir; I was on my way to church."

There is no one article in the line of medicines that gives so large a return for the money as a good porous strengthening plaster, such as Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache plasters.

—Reporter: "I've a good item here this morning. I found a person who had been confined to one room his entire life." City Editor: "Good! Send it right up. Who is it?" Reporter: "Why, a three-days-old baby down at our house."

Hundreds of persons who have used Ayer's Hair Vigor attest its value, as a stimulant and tonic, for preventing and curing baldness, cleansing the scalp, and restoring the youthful color to faded and gray hair.

—Oliver Wendell Holmes says that English people are taller, stouter and healthier than Americans. That is not unlikely. The best American beef is shipped to Europe, while the tough and indigestible pieces are sold at home.

To turn gray hair to its natural color and beauty, use Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, the best and most reliable preparation science has given us.

—Stout man (whose appetite has been the envy of his fellow boarders): "I declare! I have lost three buttons off my vest!" Mistress of the house (who has been aching to give him a hint): "You will probably find them in the dining room, sir."

Stop and Think

How much money you have thrown away buying worthless medicines, prepared by unprincipled parties, who care not what harm they may do to your system. You can depend on every bottle of Sulphur Bitters as being a reliable medicine. It searches out and cleanses from the blood all impure matter, and makes you feel like a new person.—Boston Daily Globe.

—Young Mr. Sissy (to his pretty cousin): "I say, Maud, how did my song, 'Home Again, from a Foreign Shore,' seem to impress the company?" Pretty cousin: "Well, some of them, Charley, looked as if they were sorry that you had got back."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. nov.eod,sat.o

Four Kinds of Parisian Restaurants.

The Parisian restaurants may be divided into four classes. First come the "Cremeries," a kind of dairy eating house, and chiefly supported by the lower classes; the "Etablissements Duval," the restaurants "a fixe prix" and the restaurants "a la carte." To the last class belong, of course, the fashionable and expensive cafes of the great boulevards, such as the Anglais, the Maison Doree and the Cafe Bignon. The last mentioned, by the way, is in the Champs Elysees, and its scale of prices is outrageous, probably due to the fact that its patronage is almost entirely English and American. A little further down in the scale come a multitude of restaurants "a la carte," all good and comparatively reasonable. The great trouble is that one dining alone must either be prepared to content himself with a very simple dinner, as far as variety is concerned, or else be obliged to order twice as much as he can eat at a proportionate addition to his bill. One portion for two people is the almost invariable order in a Parisian restaurant "a la carte," and some of them will even serve a portion for three. Unless one dines there in company with a friend or some accommodating stranger, he will find that the saving, as compared with Delmonico's in New York, is little or nothing, except, perhaps, in the single item of wine.

The dinners "a fixe prix" vary, of course, in quality and variety, according to the price. The table d'hote at six or eight francs is far superior to anything outside of France, and from that one may dine as low down as a franc and a quarter. But the cheap French table d'hote is the worst atrocity that a reckless man can inflict on his long suffering self. The service is always poor, the room always crowded, the table, linen and glassware always dirty, and the cooking, with but few exceptions, always bad. The only thing that is almost invariably good is the bread, but then the restaurants themselves do not make it, but buy it from the bakeries.—Paris Cor. New York World.

"Fattening" Camels for the Market.

The method by which camels are suddenly "fattened" for the market is thus described:

An incision, about an inch in length, is made in each ear, between the skin and the flesh. Into this a small tube is fitted and secured by a silk cord. There it remains, hidden from the observation of all but the initiated and ready for use at any moment.

When a merchant who is not acquainted with the blowing up trick comes to buy a camel the dealer takes two tubes, each a yard long, and inserting one end of each in the small tubes just described, through the other ends two Arabs blow with all their might, until the animal has attained the requisite degree of plumpness. The inflating tubes are then withdrawn and the air is prevented from escaping by means of a cork smeared with pitch.

The poor camel now becomes apparently quite lively and frisky, trying to throw itself on the ground or to press against a wall or a tree or whatever other object may be at hand, so as to get rid of the wind. It is generally too well watched by the rascally Arab to succeed in accomplishing its purpose.

Sometimes, however, it manages to elude his vigilance, and then, if the cork is not very securely fastened, the wind escapes with a whistle like that of a steam engine, and the fine looking beast suddenly collapses into the miserable object it really is.—"Among the Arabs."

Talk With a Wine Expert.

"Does wine get seasick?" asked a reporter of a champagne expert.

"Certainly it does," he answered, "and it does not recover from it until it has laid a month undisturbed in a cellar where the temperature does not vary. In warm weather it requires longer rest. This is why our firm imports as little as possible during the summer months. Frost is also a great enemy of pure champagne, and it is dangerous to import it during very cold weather. When touched by frost wine becomes flaky, and it often takes months for it to recover. The facilities for protecting wine from frost while in transit from Reims to the seaboard are very poor, even if the wine was not affected by the voyage.

"Rhine wine and Burgundies should rest a month to recover from the effects of a sea voyage. Rhine wine cannot be imported at all in summer except in glass, and even then it needs rest. Englishmen imagine that champagne is not fit to drink until it becomes mellow with age and has lost its sparkle. This is an absurd idea. In this condition it is really a kind of Chablis. Clarets, with rare exceptions, are unfit to drink after becoming ten years old."—New York Evening Sun.

Mme. Ristori's First Appearance.

The Vienna Allgemeine Zeitung publishes an interesting extract from the forthcoming memoirs of Mme. Ristori, according to which the famous actress made her debut on the stage at the age of three months. Her parents being both actors, they consented to her appearing in the play "The New Year's Present," in one of whose scenes an infant is sent in a basket to its grandfather. Her debut, however, was a failure, as she began crying long before she ought to have done so, totally spoiling the effect. Her second attempt, at the age of 3 years, was not much more successful, for when attacked by the villain in "Bianca and Fernando," who threatened to murder her in the presence of her mother, she resisted desperately, biting and scratching her assailant until the public roared with laughter. A year and a half later she was intrusted with little roles in farces, taking her task seriously and assuming the airs of her older colleagues; and at the age of 13 she was a regular member of a stock company under the management of the actor Moncalvo.—New York Post.

At Peace.

A stomach in revolt is an obdurate rebel. Corrected with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, its dissensions with the food introduced into it in unwary moments of appetite ceases. Then it is at peace. Then dyspepsia abandons its grip. Then such fractious manifestations as heartburn, a sinking sensation in the pit of the abdomen between meals and unnatural fullness afterwards, flatulence, acid gulpings, biliousness, &c., cease to inflict martyrdom. After a course of the national tonic and alterative, the liver and bowels, always more or less disordered during a prolonged attack of indigestion, resume their functions and become regular. Thus not only dyspepsia, but its complaints, constipation and biliousness, are conquered by the medicine, which remedies their fruitful cause, weakness of the organs of digestion. The epigastric nerve, cellular tissue, in short, every organ that bears a part in the digestive processes acquires vigor and regularity from the benign invigorant.

—Father—"Who are the leading men in your class at college, Tom?" Tom—"Let's see. There is Ed Pender, can curve a ball around two posts; Tom Smith can kick nine feet and two inches high; and Andy Johnson can throw any man in the university. Our class is going to make a brilliant record, father."

A single bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will establish the merits of this medicine as a blood purifier. Many thousands of people are yearly cured of chronic diseases by the faithful use of this remedy. It is unequalled for the cure of scrofula.

Regular troops have been ordered to garrison the militia reservation at Chicago.

Bankers,

Doctors, lawyers, carpenters, druggists, engineers, mechanics, in fact we have recommendations from people in all stations in life, testifying to the wonderful cures that Sulphur Bitters have effected. Send for testimonials. See another column.

Miss Kitty O'Neil, variety actress, has been granted a divorce from Harry Kernell.

Dyspepsia in its worst forms will yield to the use of Carter's Little Nerve Pills, aided by Carter's Little Liver Pills. They not only relieve present distress but strengthen the stomach and digestive apparatus.

Professor John E. Rounds, an accomplished linguist and prominent Methodist, is insane.

There are many forms of nervous debility in men that yield to the use of Carter's Iron Pills. Those who are troubled with nervous weakness, night sweats, etc., should try them.

—"I saw at once," said a physician who had been called in consultation, "that Dr. Pellett's diagnosis was wrong; but as he was in charge of the case, of course it wouldn't do for me to interfere." "Did the patient die?" "Oh, yes; died of professional courtesy'—a very common and fatal disease."

The pure and reliable virtues of the Hop Plaster give hope and strength to weak, sore lungs.

Pearline. With this article the family washing can be done with ease, with economy and despatch, and as it is thoroughly disinfectant, it will be seen that whenever used the result is pure and healthful. As there are imitations of this in the market, be sure and get the genuine, manufactured only by James Pyle, New York.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

The Governor's Third Railroad Veto.

The Manchester Mirror asserts, relative to the Quinby bill which provided for low freights and fares, and perfecting the Colby act as it relates to dissatisfied stockholders, that if the governor "had signed this bill every person who pays to ride upon a railroad in this state, every person who sends or receives freight over a railroad in this state, every person who is interested in the price of goods received in or sent out of this state, would have been benefitted. His negation robs them. The state suffers, and universal is the indignation, intense and deep-seated."

Recent changes have been made to the advantage of those buying tickets via the Great Rock Island Route. For circular giving full particulars address E. A. Holbrook, General Ticket & Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

The Legislature.

In the house, on the 4th inst., the senate amendments to the Dover & Winnepesaukee bill came up and were passed. As it now stands, the incorporators of the Lake Shore railroad have until January, 1889, to get the road graded and ready for the iron. If it is not done by that time, the Dover & Winnepesaukee road is at liberty to build the line from Alton Bay to Gilford. The two-cents-a-mile bill was passed, with amendments.

Both branches adjourned at 11:22 A. M. on the 5th to the last Wednesday in May, 1889, after the longest session ever held in the state. In the house, early in the morning, a message was received from the governor, vetoing the act regulating rates and fares on railroads, and to provide for compensation to dissenting stockholders in case of railroad leases, known as the Quinby bill.

Among the bills which failed to become laws are the following: The lard bill did not receive the gubernatorial signature, and therefore died. The trustee bill did not pass; neither did the free text-book bill in its new draft. The Dover & Winnipesaukee bill and the Upper Coos railroad bill became laws. The bills relative to running trains on Sunday, and to prohibit the manufacture of spirits and beer in the state, did not pass.

The Boston Globe, stalwart democratic, says: "We are perfectly frank with our friends, the prohibitionists. We do not attempt to conceal from them, nor do they conceal from themselves, that the democratic party is not in favor of prohibition. We do not deny our motive in welcoming their indirect aid. That motive is the election of the democratic ticket, and, if possible, a democratic legislature." The election of a democratic legislature in Massachusetts means the removal of all restrictions on the liquor traffic; this is avowed; and just how the third-party prohibitionists expect to advance the cause of temperance by aiding to undo all that has ever been done in the shape of legal restriction, is beyond the comprehension of ordinary mortals.

The general impression at Concord last week was that the judges are better politicians than the railway managers. The judges, it is said, had their salaries raised by the aid of the Boston & Maine advocates, who labored with the representatives from the back towns. The result was the bill was passed nem. con. The railway men are now taunted by the suggestion from the victorious Concord side that the veto was consummated by one of the members of the bench of whom different results had been anticipated. Verily, there is no gratitude in politics.

The Knights of Pythias at Nashua cleared $1500 by a big fair at which $1000 was distributed in prizes.

Thomas Owens, a carpenter who died in Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 3d, confessed that he was the man who threw the bomb in Chicago. He broke his neck by falling from a building.

Sherburne G. Hopkins, from Lewiston, Me., a young dude who is so English, you know, that he has to roll up his trowsers at the bottom whenever it rains in London, and Arthur B. Sperry, a reporter on a Washington paper, have been arrested for sending the "infernal machine" to Chief Justice Waite. The contrivance was a harmless affair, and the silly business was planned by the two fellows to create a sensation and "make the paper sell." They are likely to run foul of the butt end of the joke themselves.

Charles B. Brownfield, a dissipated gambler of Louisville, Ky., killed his wife, daughter and brother-in-law, and then hung himself last week. A letter was found in which he confessed his crime, saying he was tired of life, and did not want to leave his family penniless.

Lewis E. Staples has laid out a small lot of Ladies' and Misses' Winter Cloaks to sell at five dollars a garment. They are broken lines he will not have again. It might be an advantage to see them.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

Chronic Catarrh

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with increased secretion. Thus catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that often its presence is not suspected till it has obtained a firm hold on its victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is exceedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the diseased membrane, and thus soon cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I am happy to state that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GRIFF, 1029 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, Ohio.

WILL MAKE A CHANGE.

At a meeting of the Portsmouth Electric Light Co., held last Saturday morning, it was decided to put in an entirely new system of street lighting. The old system is apparently unreliable and defective, and the street-light service has failed to give satisfaction commensurate with the cost, or with the efforts and outlay of the company. The company are as little pleased with this state of affairs as the public can be, as is shown by the decided action taken on Saturday; and they express a determination to supply a perfect and satisfactory system of illumination, if science and a liberal expenditure of money can accomplish it.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

Gunner John Russell is detached from the Portsmouth navy yard, and placed on waiting orders.

The repairs to the Swatara, at this navy yard, have been completed, and the vessel is ready for a steam trial. The eight boilers with which the ship was originally fitted have been replaced by four of an improved pattern, with the result of giving equal power while affording very much more room for coal and other supplies.

The chief of the bureau of yards and docks, in his annual report on the condition and needs of the several navy yards, says: "The repairs upon the floating balance dock at the Portsmouth yard can be completed from appropriations available, and the entire structure put in good condition during the current year." With all due respect to Commodore Harmony, we don't believe it; it would take a much larger sum than is available from existing appropriations to put the dock in the condition in which it should be put. His estimate for improving the water supply at the yard is $6350, the items being as follows: Cleaning ponds, $1500; building reservoir, $4500; piping for same, $350.

MARITIME NOTES.

The gondola Alice was towed to Exeter on Friday last by the steamer James Sampson.

Axiel Stone, who was picked up in Lake Michigan and is the only survivor of the wreck of the steamer Vernon, says the captain was drunk from time the vessel sailed until she sank, and that he was always drunk when out of port.

The captain and crew of the schooner E. M. Branscombe, before reported as towed into Lanesville, Cape Ann, Nov. 2d, by steamer Jetty, waterlogged and abandoned, were saved, and the captain arrived at Gloucester on the 4th. He reports that he sailed from Portland on the 1st for Lynn with a load of lumber, and soon took a strong gale from the northward. While running before the wind, with close reefed sails, she was struck on the quarter by a heavy sea, and thrown on her beam ends; and though she soon righted she was nearly full of water, and shortly became unmanageable, again going over, and remaining on her beam ends. The crew lashed themselves to windward to prevent being washed overboard by the seas, which made a clean breach over the wreck; and while they were in this plight a British schooner passed without attempting to aid them. Capt. Lakeman, keeper of Ipswich fight-station, saw the vessel and went to her assistance, and landed them at Ipswich.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

Mr. John L. Kennard, night watchman at the Boston & Maine railroad station in this city, met with a quite severe accident on Friday night of last week, slipping on a piece of ice at the end of the station and having one knee seriously injured by falling across the rails. He was taken to his home in Eliot.

Mr. William P. Wallace, night telegraph operator at the Boston & Maine station, was out on the street a short time last Friday, for the first time since receiving a severe shock from the switch board in his office about a week previous. During his enforced absence from the office Mr. Patrick Kane has been acting as night operator.

Mr. Edward Weeks, employed in the night shifting gang in the Boston & Maine freight yard, had two fingers of his right hand badly jammed while coupling cars on Tuesday night of last week.

Mr. Charles H. Ham, watchman at the Hotel Wentworth, Newcastle, last season, and previously employed at the Boston & Maine restaurant in this city, has been appointed manager of the restaurant in the station of the Boston & Albany railroad at Boston.

Mr. Charles W. Fernald, formerly night telegraph operator for the Boston & Maine railroad at Conway Junction, has been appointed station agent at Kittery Junction.

The Boston & Maine railroad has contracted with the owners of the Woodman quarry at Biddeford, Me., for 1000 cubic yards of stone, to be used in constructing the new bridge at Salmon Falls.

E. H. Winchester, Esq., and wife, will spend the winter in San Francisco.

Mrs. Towne, wife of Passed Asst. Engr. Nathan P. Towne, U. S. N., formerly a resident of this city, died in Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 1st.

Mr. William Frazer, manager of the Direct United States Cable Co.'s station at Rye beach, has rented the Carr house on Islington street for the winter.

Mr. Thomas H. Philbrook is on a visit to this city from Haverhill, Mass., where he has been employed in a hat factory for a considerable time, having previously been at Galveston, Texas, since leaving this city.

The big gas-light in the middle of Market square was burning on Friday night, and burned all night, as it used to before the introduction of the electric lights. The reason was, that the electric lights were not showing at all. It was going again on Saturday night, as was also the gaslight in front of the police station.

The late Wm. P. Burley, when he first came to this city, in 1868, and for several years thereafter, was engaged in the livery stable business with Mr. John H. Ferguson, in the stable now owned by R. H. Beacham & Son.

Landlord Wiggin, of the Dover Point house, will winter at Exeter, Florida, where he has taken the management of a new hotel for the season.

On Thursday night of last week a Frenchman employed in burning a kiln of brick for Richard Pinkham of Dover point met with a serious accident. The shed over the kiln took fire, and he went up to extinguish it, when the whole structure fell in a heap on top of the bricks, with him in the middle of the wreck. He was got out by his companions as soon as possible, but not before he was badly burned about his face, arms and legs. His injuries, though very painful, were not regarded as dangerous by the attending physician.

The Weims Concert company will give an entertainment of vocal and instrumental music in Music hall on the evening of Thursday, Nov. 24th, Thanksgiving day. The company includes six artistes, one of whom is Miss Fannie P. Hoyt, and has been giving concerts throughout Massachusetts for several weeks past with great success.

DR. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of consumptive persons in advanced stages of the Disease. For Sale by all Druggists. Price, 25 cts., a bottle.

The United States training-ship Portsmouth, while sailing down the lower bay in New York on the afternoon of the 4th inst., closehauled on the starboard tack, was run into by a coal schooner. The ubiquitous terror of the American navy raked the Portsmouth from stem to stern, carrying away three boats, the maintopgallant mast and buckstays, and doing other damage. The schooner, which was bound for New Bedford, was supposed to be the Loring C. Ballard; she kept on her way by the outside course, with her jibboom and foretopmast carried away.

Naval Constructor George R. Boush, U. S. N., was retired Oct. 23d through limitation of age; he was appointed in 1869. The next vacancy from compulsory retirement will occur Jan. 17th, 1889, when Naval Constructor Samuel H. Pook will go on the retired list.

The grade of Lafayette road, between Middle and South roads, is being raised.

The Portsmouth Gas Co., in Portsmouth, Va., has made a trade with the American Electric Co. of New York. This company proposes to light both the cities of Norfolk and Portsmouth. It is to be hoped that the electric lights in old Virginia will be more reliable on dark nights than they have been frequently in our city of late.

The members of the legislature drew $474 each for their per diem, on Saturday, and mileage besides.

The Methodist society will give a basket supper on Wednesday evening; admission ten cents; baskets fifteen cents each. A musical and literary entertainment will be given.

Representative Winn has travelled more between this city and Concord than any other member of the Portsmouth delegation, but the committee on mileage allowed him just the same as his colleagues.

Malvina Tanchey, wife of Thomas Tanchey of Nashua, and Joseph Pelkey, were arrested on the 4th inst. in Dover, where they were living as husband and wife; they were taken to Nashua for trial. The woman was married to Tanchey on the 21st ult., but they parted almost immediately. Pelkey has a wife, in Canada. All the parties are French Canadians.

Brain Work and Handicraft.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes during the busy years of his life, it is said, was accustomed to rest his brains by working with his hands. Under the great library table was a smaller one, which was a miniature workshop, fitted with a turning lathe and tools, with which the poet made boxes, brackets and toys for his friends.

The little shop moved on a tiny railway track in the floor, so that on the approach of a visitor who could not appreciate "jimcracks," the doctor could push the table, tools and all, under the larger one entirely out of sight.

The majority of brain workers have had some pursuit, taste or handicraft which relieved the tension on the brain of steady application in one direction. Sometimes, as in the case of Mr. Gladstone's tree chopping or Mr. Hawthorne's potato digging, it was severe physical exertion that gave rest to the mind, but oftener it was the employment of the fingers and brain in some lighter work than the daily craft. Hans Andersen cut paper figures with marvelous skill, one of the great Russian novelists makes clay pipes of every shape, and one of the most eminent clergymen in this country dabbles in chemistry, and has nearly blown up his family on several occasions.

Parents and teachers are often annoyed by the persistent devotion of boys to some pursuit which can never serve them as a means of livelihood, a taste for drawing, music or animals. Keep it in its place and you have provided a hobby which may serve as a safety valve for an overtaxed brain or nervous system. The young man with a regular occupation and a taste which gives him rest and pleasure enters life not with one staff, but with two.—Youth's Companion.

The pair of obelisks—one in London and the other in New York city—were erected by Thothmes III, in Heliopolis, before the Temple of the Sun—about 1600 B. C. They were three centuries later removed from Heliopolis by Rameses II, and set up in front of Cæsar's temple, where they obtained the well known name of "Cleopatra's Needles." When his wars were ended, Rameses II caused his name and titles to be inscribed upon the obelisk on each side of the inscriptions of his renowned ancestor, Thothmes III. One of these obelisks was removed to London in 1878, and the other was brought to the United States, and erected on its pedestal in Central Park in January, 1881. Its height, including its base on which it stands, is eighty feet, and its weight, with pedestal and foundations, 712,000 pounds. It is red granite from the quarries of Syene.—"C. P. C." in Magazine of American History.

A lady stood hanging to the strap of a St. Paul horse car when a workingman in the far corner arose and politely offered his seat. "I thank you," said she, "but I dislike to deprive the only gentleman in the car of his seat."—Chicago Herald.

An efficient yet mild detergent without any of the objectionable properties of ordinary soaps, is what recommends the "IVORY" to intelligent and discriminating people. Its cheapness brings it within the reach of every one.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

PURE FOOD ASSURED.

For raising bread, biscuit or other food, only the very best and purest baking powder should be employed. The use of the ordinary cream of tartar, or of a baking powder containing lime, alum or phosphates, carries deleterious ingredients into the food to the prejudice of the life and health of the consumer.

The ordinary baking powder contains either lime, which, introduced into the system in too free quantities, causes serious disorders of the kidneys; alum, a corrosive poison, or phosphates, which are condemned by physicians as deleterious in their effect when taken under certain physical conditions.

The absolute purity of the Royal Baking Powder makes it pre-eminently the most useful and wholesome leavening agent known. It contains no lime, alum, phosphate or other impurity, leaves no alkaline or other residuum in the food, and its use always ensures pure, light and sweet bread, biscuit and cake, that is perfectly digestible and wholesome whether hot or cold, fresh or stale. Its leavening power has been determined the highest whenever tested by official authority, and all chemists and writers on food hygiene commend it for its sterling qualities.

Prof. H. A. Mott, who has examined the various baking powders for the U. S. Government, says:

"The Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequaled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin's Piano Stringer was introduced by them in 1882, and has been pronounced by experts the "greatest improvement in pianos in half a century."

AN EXPERT STENOGRAPHER.

A Man Who Can Write One Thing and Speak Another Simultaneously.

"How long have you lived here?"

The lawyer was taking the deposition of a witness in his office in the Mills building. The pencil of the stenographer was moving rapidly over his paper, leaving behind it a string of pothooks and other absurd symbols of speech.

"You say that you have known the defendant for the past ten years. Now, I want to ask you whether at any time during that period you ever noticed any symptom of insanity in his behavior?" continued the lawyer.

At the instant the lawyer began this query the stenographer turned to the reporter, who was seated by his side at the table, and, without stopping his writing for a second, whispered: "Wait a moment and I'll be through. This won't last much longer."

The reporter looked anxiously at the notes, expecting to see the pencil stop its travels, or at least at the end of the questions, retrace its steps to revise some phrases incorrectly transcribed. But it made no such break. When the lawyer ended his inquiry the pencil stopped.

"Now, sir," continued the lawyer, "you may tell me whether you were well enough acquainted with the defendant to know whether he showed any weakness of mind or not?"

Before the stenographer had completed the second line of his report he again whispered to the reporter not to be in a hurry, and, as before, concluded his work without a particle of apparent interruption. This was the last question, and after the papers were gathered together and the witness had left the office, the reporter asked the stenographer whether he had written correctly all that was said verbatim, or had only epitomized what had been spoken.

"I wrote exactly what was said. Why do you ask?"

"Can you read it without difficulty?"

"Of course I can, otherwise I should not be here; but why do you ask?"

"I didn't see how you could write down what was being spoken and speak to me upon another subject at the same time."

"That is easy enough to do," responded the stenographer with a laugh, "when you only know how and practice long enough. Shorthand writing is very much like playing the piano or repeating something from memory. It is mechanical. I found years ago when I was reporting in a western court, that it was extremely useful to be able to hear and think of other things transpiring in the court room than the evidence itself. I then began practicing so that I could train myself to do two separate things at the same time. I would mentally make note of everything occurring around me and keep on with my writing. At first I would make a mistake or two, but I gradually got so that I could hear everything that was said and understand it too, nothwithstanding the fact that my pencil was moving all the time."

"I should think that when you began to speak it would have thrown you off your track?"

"It did at first. I learned that by committing to memory some poem and repeating it while I was reporting, until at last I could carry on a conversation on almost any subject and write from dictation upon one entirely different. It's a very useful accomplishment, but I wouldn't advise you to learn it unless you intend to become a professional stenographer, and I wouldn't advise that unless you have nothing better to do than to break stones in the streets."—New York Mail and Express.

The Queen's Life at Balmoral.

A correspondent, after picturing the simplicity of the life at Balmoral during the queen's stay there, describes one of her ordinary everyday breakfasts. The following is the menu of the breakfast served one day last week: Scotch porridge, cold rump steak pie, hot rump steak, cold gammon of bacon, boiled eggs, Scotch scones, brown bread, butter, honey, tea, coffee, and a kind of cocoa specially prepared for the queen. The porridge was placed on the sideboard, and was served to each guest in blue and white china basins. These basins were filled by the attendants, as a matter of course, without any question as to whether porridge was wanted or not. It was evidently required by court etiquette that the meal should be begun with this solid foundation, and that individual tastes of the honored visitors had to be kept in abeyance. Our informant expresses surprise that there was no game on the table, considering that to his certain knowledge the larder was full of grouse shot by Prince Henry and the keepers, which certainly wanted eating. He is probably not aware that the queen cannot tolerate the smell of game the first thing in the morning, and only allows it at the later meals out of deference to the tastes of others.—London Cor. New York World.

The Car of Juggernaut.

A Calcutta paper calls attention to a remarkable decline in the popularity of the great Rath Jattra or Car festival at the Juggernaut temple in Orissa. That the number of visitors this year should show a large decrease might have been expected, owing to the recent loss of two pilgrim steamers and to the common belief that the loss of the third had been predicted. It appears, however, that although the falling off is more marked this year, it has been going on steadily for some years past. The religious enthusiasm of the crowd is said to be also disappearing. There is no longer a wild rush for the car, in which the idol is dragged from the temple to a country house and back again, and on several occasions it has been necessary to hire coolies to perform the work.—New York Sun.

The U. S. S. Trenton, which arrived at New York last week from the South Pacific station, on Friday took the berth at the navy yard previously occupied by the new cruiser Chicago. She will receive some necessary repairs, and a change will be made in the detail of officers and men; she will then be ready for squadron duty, and it is reported that she is to be the flagship of the European squadron. She brought home the officers and crew of the flagship Lancaster, of the South Atlantic squadron, and those of them whose three years' terms had expired have been discharged.

There are many forms of nervous debility in men that yield to the use of Carter's Iron Pills. Those who are troubled with nervous weakness, night sweats, etc., should try them.

A man and two women from this city, with one of Stoddard's teams, while driving about Dover on Sunday evening ran against a post on Orchard street, and all were thrown out, though no serious injury resulted to any of them. The team was not damaged much, and after being cared for until Monday morning, was turned over to the party, who returned to Portsmouth with it.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finley (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manu actured. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no sleep. She tried all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years. To you she I cannot help standing to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headache,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat inflamed and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvelous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

Here Bombs.

As the time set for the execution of the anarchist murderers in Chicago, Nov. 11th, draws nigh, the most intense excitement prevails in that city and the state of Illinois, and Gov. Oglesby is swamped with letters from individuals and societies, many urging him to remain firm and let the scoundrels be hung, but more urging him to exhibit firmness enough to commute their sentences to imprisonment for life. Among the inducements presented for clemency, are not a few threats that he and his family shall be murdered, society upset, law abolished and the entire country destroyed by the anarchists not yet under sentence of death, if it is dared to hang the condemned murderers. These threats must have a tendency to promote the hanging, as the American people are as yet hardly ready to yield up full control over everything on this side of the Atlantic to a gang of foreign-born criminals who have not yet learned how to speak English.

George Engel, one of the anarchist murderers, attempted suicide by laudanum last Saturday night, but was saved by prompt treatment.

On Sunday the seven condemned men were removed from the cells they have occupied to fresh ones, and in the cell of Lingg, who made the fatal Haymarket bomb, were found six bombs concealed in a small box. Intense excitement was caused by the announcement of this discovery, but examination indicated that they were feeble affairs, probably intended to be used by the assassins to end their own lives at the last, and thus cheat the gallows, rather than to harm other people.

Tremendous pressure is being brought to bear upon Gov. Oglesby to induce him to commute the sentences of the murderers.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Caroline, Hutchings master, from Rondout, N. Y., with 1000 barrels of Newark Co.'s cement to John H. Broughton, arrived on the 7th inst.

The schooner Erastus Wiman, with 992 tons coal, and the M. Luella Wood with 897 tons, both to J. Albert Walker, arrived at this port on Monday, the 7th.

The ships Granite State, Ross; Gov. Goodwin, Lester, and South American, Tucker, were at Hong Kong, China, Sept. 30th, all on the berth for New York.

The sloop Screamer, Littlefield master, arrived at Philbrick's wharf on Water street last Sunday from Rockport, Mass., with 115 tons of granite to be worked up on the wharf.

The schooner J. R. Smith, Case master, arrived at this port on the 7th inst. from Baltimore, with 1052 tons coal to E. F. Sise & Co.; she will discharge at the Concord railroad wharf.

The schooners Unison, from Bath, Me., G. W. Ralit and Lillie, from this port, Mattie J. Averill and Mystery, from York, and Emily C. Dennison, from Saco, arrived at Boston on Sunday, the 6th inst.

The repairs on the schooner John Lenthal, at the Raynes ship yard, made by a quite large gang of skilled workmen under the supervision of Mr. Warren Keen, have been extensive, and the material used of the best quality; and when she leaves there she will be good for years of service, barring accidents of the sea.

The schooner John E. Sanford, which went ashore on the North Breaker while trying to enter Newburyport harbor last week with a cargo of coal, floated off on the night of the 4th inst., and went on again nearly a half a mile further in, inside the north jetty, where she is now lying, full of water. She will probably be a total loss, but some of the cargo may be saved.

Mr. Joseph A. Meloon, formerly of this city, now of Dakota, is in charge of the Dakota state exhibit at the Mechanics' Association fair in Boston.

The dead body of an unknown man apparently about sixty years old, and who had evidently been dead two or three days, was found on Sunday afternoon lying beside the Boston & Maine railroad track near Castle hill, Salem, Mass. The man was killed by being struck by a train, but by what train is not known.

A Concord despatch says: "The Concord railroad will immediately proceed to put the Nashua, Acton & Boston railroad in first-class condition for through business. A gravel train will be put in service, new steel rails laid, additional side tracks put in, and the road thoroughly repaired, so that the through business of the Concord road can be accommodated on that line."

"Did n't Know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness, indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reestablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go th rough the summer."

Chronic Catarrh

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with increased secretion. Thus catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that often its presence is not suspected till it has obtained a firm hold on its victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is exceedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the diseased membrane, and thus soon cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I am happy to state that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GIBBS, 1020 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, Ohio.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

MONDAY, Nov. 7th.

Edward Goodwin, otherwise known as Eppy Doodah, was before the court once more. On several previous occasions he has had an "H" in the middle of his name, but this time it was omitted; he was drunk just the same as usual, however, and was ordered to Brentwood for thirty days, and to pay $6.90 costs.

Robert Foster, another regular customer, for a similar offence received a like sentence.

John Hurley, for drunkenness, was fined $3, costs $6.90.

John Brown, alias Ipswich Joe, drunk, fine $3, costs $6.90; county farm in default of payment.

TO WAR VETERANS.

Congressman-elect McKinney will be in this city this evening, and invites all war veterans who have pension claims unadjusted to meet him in the mayor's office at half-past seven o'clock, in the city building. He proposes to use his utmost endeavors while in Washington to secure liberal justice for all soldiers and sailors who served their country in the dark days of '61 to '65.

ALL SOULS DAY.

Its Origin, Use, and Present Meaning.

The leading passage in the Universalist sermon last Sunday was Ezekiel 18:4; "Behold, all souls are mine." In the year 1010, when the only existing church organization was the Roman, the monks of an order in France called the Congregation of Cluguy, in their desire to multiply outward religious mechanical festivals, that the reason might be kept quiet, created a holiday for the 2nd of November called All Souls day. They obtained the hint for this in the popular tradition that a volcano of the Lipari islands was the gate of purgatory, and the object of All Souls day was to supplicate for souls confined in purgatory. Their idea was that all future states were physical, an idea which has not entirely loosened its grip upon the world yet.

The church Universal to-day comes as Christ did, not to destroy, but to fulfill, and endeavors, in all reason, that very dangerous thing to old ideas, to show the spiritual nature of God's kingdom, and that all the instruments of Divine economy are in the human soul. Heaven and hell and purgatory lie at the command of the free-will, for God, who made and owns all souls, allows man to eternally choose his own desires, and the laws of the soul are certainly constant.

Whether we are to be thrown into walled abodes, or whether Christ's doctrines of eternal or spiritual soul law, and its eternal or spiritual rewards and punishments is true, makes all the difference between limitarian and Universalist churches. Heaven and earth are uniform. The infinite free-will "stretched in smiling repose" is the field of man's action. And because infinite, All Souls must rest in it at last. None can go outside. A man may say, "I do not believe in a future state, I do not believe in the church, I do not believe in religion, I do not believe in God," it makes no difference; the religious laws of right and wrong, the inherent constitution of his soul, its reflexive joys and sorrows, all follow him, they are an organic part of him. No matter what he believes, he has got to obey. And, woe to the church that teaches things which are not a part of the natural result of man's thinking, for he shakes them off, and calls the church a fraud and a nuisance.

All souls are mine, not only in regard to their inner nature, but in regard to outward life. Mr. Ingersoll, in the last North American Review, says in substance that if he were God he could make a better world for All Souls. He deplores the thunderbolt, the drouth, the cyclone, and all calamity and horror. This seems to us inconsistent for a man who is so consistent on most things. Mr. Ingersoll reprobates entirely the idea of a miracle; yet he either here demands one or he murders civilization. Does he not know that the same power that carries the thrills of his ingenious brain from sea to sea and from shore to shore, in the hands of science's greatest decoration, Uniformity of Nature, must flash from cloud to cloud and from sky to earth, and strike in precise and mathematical ratio? He would by a miracle cut off the power of electricity at his whim. We want no miracles; one thing must be done, either have thunder storms or wipe out the electric transmitters of intelligence. So with drouths. We make the clouds our chariot, because the laws of evaporation and condensation of steam can be depended upon. Uniformity of steam laws are the source of vast traffic, and this man who enjoys himself much at the expense of Jonah and Joshua had better not encourage any such modern miracles.

We thank God that all laws hold constant for All Souls, that the purgatory of life is uniform, and for our faith that places the fullest confidence in Him who said, All Souls are mine.

The firm who are to purchase fish to be landed at Kittery Point this winter desire to have the Kittery Point railroad station removed to a point nearly opposite Fort McClary, or near the Kittery Point bridge. It is suggested that a spur track could be built so that fish could be landed directly on the cars from the wharf, and in summer the Isles of Shoals steamer could receive and land passengers at the same place. It is thought that at no distant day the Boston & Maine railroad will build a wharf at the Point, at which coal can be landed and sent to the interior by way of the Dover & Winnipesseogee and Conway lines at less rates than it can be landed and shipped at any point east of Cape Cod.

Thatcher, Primrose & West's minstrels are announced to be at Music hall on Wednesday evening, Nov. 16th. They claim to have the largest and best company they ever travelled with. This [illegible] discarded burnt cork, and there will be no black faces on the stage.

Mr. Charles A. Green, the Boston & Maine engineer who was so badly hurt several months ago at Prison point, Charlestown, Mass., by being struck by an engine, went on duty again on Monday morning, relieving Mr. James A. Corey, who during Mr. Green's retirement has ably performed his duties.

Four cart loads of sound potatoes from Hon. E. C. Moody of York were brought into this city on Monday, for local dealers. They were of very superior quality.

Fourteen young maples have been set out on Maplewood avenue, on the easterly side of the section between the railroad station and the millbridge, formerly Elm street.

A deed of trust has been entered at the clerk's office of the city of Portsmouth, by the Portsmouth Street Railway company, giving a first mortgage on the property that they now have or may hereafter acquire to the Mercantile Trust company of New York, for $50,000. The company will issue one hundred bonds at $500 each, bearing interest at six per cent, payable semi-annually in gold or its equivalent. This however is the street railway in Portsmouth, Virginia.

The city ordinance against the keeping open of saloons and drinking places on Sunday is much better enforced under City Marshal Rowe than for many years previously, under either democratic or republican rule. The change for the better in the absence of brawls, and the rarity of reeling men and boys on the streets, on the Sabbath, is easy to see; and the marshal will have the support of all reputable citizens in the continuance of his good work in this direction. There is evidence still to be occasionally seen that Sunday liquor selling has not wholly been stopped, but the evil has been very greatly abated, and the marshal merits warm commendation for the goodly measure of success he has already achieved.

The sixth annual elocutionary contest of the Newmarket high school took place on Friday evening, Nov. 4th. The judges were Edwin F. Jones of Manchester, F. H. Pease of Dover, and J. Edward Pickering of Manchester. The programme consisted of ten numbers. The first prizes were awarded to Elvie A. Hutchinson and Bela Kingman; the second prizes to Alice J. Tuttle and Harry W. Joy. The efforts put forth by each contestant were marked; and Newmarket may well be proud of the success attained in this most important branch of education. The pupils were under the instruction of Fred S. Baldwin of Manchester.

A new fence has been erected in front of the Haven school, in place of the old dilapidated one. A number of young maple trees have been set out in the open space between the school grounds and the arsenal.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS. The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with most makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin's Piano Stringer was introduced by them in 1882, and has been pronounced by experts the "greatest improvement in pianos in half a century."

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

It was a kite.

The failure of E. S. Wheeler & Co., at New Haven, Conn., looks worse the more it is looked into. The Chicago Wire Fence Co., with which Wheeler had dealings to immense amounts, turns out to be a "paper" fence company, with no paid-up capital, no business, no assets, not even a seal, and no officers but Wheeler. But he got hold of many thousands through it.

Election Day.

Twelve states hold elections of greater or less importance to-day, the officers voted for being as follows:

Iowa, governor, state officers and legislature.

Louisiana, representative in Congress from the 5th district.

Maryland, governor, state officers and legislature; also, to decide whether a convention shall be held to revise the state constitution.

Massachusetts, governor, state officers and legislature.

Nebraska, supreme judge, and two regents of the state university.

New Jersey, legislature.

New York, state officers, legislature, judges of the supreme court, and two representatives in Congress.

Ohio, governor, state officers and legislature.

Oregon, three amendments to state constitution.

Pennsylvania, treasurer and judge of supreme court.

Rhode Island, member of Congress from the 2d district.

Virginia, legislature.

The Kennebunk Star of last week said: "The Sabbath school convention for York, Eliot, Kittery and Wells met with the Christian society of Ogunquit last Thursday. Many interesting subjects were discussed by the several clergymen and delegates present. The evening service concluded with a sermon by Rev. Mr. Colburn of Kittery. The next convention will meet with the Free-will Baptist church of Kittery Point in December. Rev. J. W. Card was elected president; Rev. Gardner D. Holmes, treasurer; and Rev. Walter Flanders, secretary."

Hon. Nathan Cleaves was on the 5th inst. appointed surveyor of the port of Portland by President Cleveland. Appraiser Pierce says the appointment "makes the election of a democratic representative to Congress from the first Maine district almost a certainty." Besides the appointment of Judge Cleaves, a few more votes will be needed before the democrats can send to Congress a substitute for Hon. Thomas B. Reed.

Big Dinners.

Every day in this city thousand of persons eat too much at dinner, and, as a consequence, suffer from sour stomach, heartburn, indigestion, dyspepsia, etc. If these will take just one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after eating, they will be surprised by the entire absence of those unpleasant feelings which daily distress them, and may continue in their improper course of eating big dinners without fear. Only one little pill, remember.

The remains of a dynamite bomb found in the ruins of the St. Louis explosion, is declared by the police to have been placed there by cranks.

MAKING WOOD PULP PAILS.

A Bucket Without Hoops—Never Leaks Nor Falls to Pieces.

The wood, preferably spruce, although any soft, fibrous wood will answer, is cleared of its bark and cut to a length uniform with the grindstone to be used, generally 16 to 24 inches. It is then placed against the face of a rapidly revolving grindstone, the grain of the wood being in a line with or parallel with the axis of the stone, and a hydraulic or worm screw piston keeping the wood constantly pressed against the stone. The result, which is washed off the stone by a shower of water, after being screened of slivers and sawdust, is a milky white liquid. With the water sufficiently extracted this this is the wood pulp used in the manufacture of paper and indurated fiber-ware.

The process of manufacture of ware from the pulp is exceedingly simple, and is similar in all the lines made by the company. In making a pail, for instance, the machine for first molding the pail from the pulp is provided with a hollow perforated form of cast iron, shaped like the inside of a pail, and covered first with perforated brass and then with fine wire cloth. This form, worked by a hydraulic piston, is pushed up into a large cast iron "hat," which fits over it very tightly. Within this hat is placed a flexible rubber bag, and between this and the inner form first mentioned is admitted the pulp, still in a liquid state. The pulp being pumped in under pressure, the water immediately begins to drain off through the wire cloth and perforations, and the rubber bag swells until it fills the hat. The supply of pulp is then shut off, and water under high pressure is admitted within the hat and outside the rubber bag, thus squeezing much of the water from the pulp. After standing some eight to ten minutes the pressure is shut off, the inner form lowered and the pulp pail removed.

At this stage the pail is nearly 50 per cent. water, but is sufficiently strong to allow handling. This water is first all dried out in dry kilns, and then the pail is turned off on the outside with a gang of saws. After sandpapering inside and out the pail is ready for the treatment house, where it is charged with a waterproofing compound which permeates thoroughly the material of which the pail is made. Baking in ovens at a high temperature succeeds each dip or treatment. The polish which the goods present is described as being the result of the final treatment. After this the handles are riveted on, which are then put on and ready for the market.—Railway Review.

Old Time Witches in Maine.

Whittier has very deftly alluded to the old so called witch, "Goody Cole," of Hampton in his "Wreck of Rivermouth."

In "The Changeling" he tells another Hampton story of the old delusion. People point now at this day to the site of the grave where Goody Cole was buried with an iron bar over her head to exorcise the evil spirit which even death was not supposed to destroy. It astonishes us to hear of these beliefs in that old time, how much more astonishing it is to hear middle aged people now relate the effect that this delusion had on their fathers. One lady tells me that her mother when a young girl slipped a darning needle between the chair and the gown of a certain unbidden guest who so late as that had the unenviable witch taint. The contact of steel was supposed to be witch the witch and hold her fast from movement or evil doing. "She was sitting near the fire," my entertaining raconteuse went on naively, "and she kept complaining and complaining of the heat, but she never rose and moved away until that needle fell!"

Another story followed of the lady's grandfather, who, perceiving the approach of this same possessed one, flung his hatchet into the ground before her. The witch harangued and stormed, but would not pass on until the hatchet was removed from the path!

"Oh, I don't believe in witchcraft, but it was qucer, wasn't it?" my story teller concluded.

Antidotes of Poisonous Chemicals.

As antidotes of some of the poisonous chemicals used in various industries, The Moniteur des Produits Chimiques recommends that for arsenic and its compounds the subject use mustard and dialyzed iron with magnesia, and afterward oil, milk or mucilaginous liquids; for the compounds of baryta or lead, use mustard as emetic with warm water, Epsom salts or Glauber's salts in water; for oxalic acid and its salts use lime or lime water, and afterward castor oil; for the nitrous fumes from the manufacture of nitrate of iron or of sulphuric acid take acetic acid, as strong as can be endured, in small quantities at a time; for ammonia, soda, potassa, the silicates and the alkaline hydrosulphates use vinegar, and afterward oil or milk; for prussic acid and its salts, the cyanides of potassium and mercury, the sulphocyanides, oil of bitter almonds or nitrobenzine, pour water on the patient's head or spinal column, put mustard plasters on the soles of the feet and on the stomach, and do not let the patient go to sleep; for ether, petroleum, benzole, fruit essences and concentrated alcohol, take strong mustard as an emetic, with much warm water, cold baths and fresh air, also keeping awake. —Chicago Journal.

The Eccentricity of Genius.

Swinburne is one of the most vindictive and ill mannered fellows in literature. As a sample of the latter trait is cited an account given by a lady high in Boston society, who met the poet one evening at a house in London. Swinburne threw himself down on a rug before the fire like a dog, and by there grovelled at full length through the evening. Joaquin Miller never carried the "eccentricity of genius" further in all his London career. —Cleveland Leader.

William Niederman, who was one of the two brave men of the De Long party who went ahead in search of succor after the landing of the shipwrecked party on the Siberian coast, has for some time been employed in the Brooklyn navy yard, in the equipment department, but was recently discharged. The Brooklyn Eagle (democratic) thinks it very harsh that he should be discharged at the opening of winter, "especially when the working force there is being largely augmented in nearly every department." But the force has been increased, as the Eagle probably understands, solely for political reasons, and the unfortunate Niederman, not being a voter and having no political pull, doesn't "count."

It was necessary to order out the militia at Zanesville, Ohio, to quell a disturbance between gangs of track layers of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Zanesville, Mt. Vernon & Marion railways.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John F. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to Druggist John F. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and permanent relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and an IMPROVED INHALER, price, $1.

THE ELECTIONS.

Elections were held in twelve states on Tuesday, Nov. 8th, and we give the results as received up to two o'clock A. M. on the 9th. In Massachusetts the revival of war issues by the democrats failed to defeat Gov. Ames, the republican candidate for re-election. In New York the administration, Secretary Whitney and the friends of the boodle aldermen, appear to have had things pretty much their own way; in Virginia, Gen. Mahone met his Waterloo; and in Maryland it appears likely that Gorman, Higgins, Cleveland & Co. triumphed, though the returns from that state give nothing definite. As to which party carried the New Jersey legislature, and the Rhode Island and Louisiana congressional elections, we received no returns.

MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, 8:00 P. M.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bogalos, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

Catarrh in the Head

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with unusual secretions. Thus catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that often its presence is not suspected till it has obtained a firm hold on the victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is excedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the diseased membrane, and thus soon cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I take pleasure in stating that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GINN, 1359 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, Ohio.

A LUCKY ESCAPE.

A gentleman living at the south end was aroused from sleep about eleven o'clock last Friday night by sounds as if some person was trying to break into the house of his next door neighbor. Arming himself with a stick of wood which would answer very well for a sled-stake, he proceeded to investigate, and found that the noises were occasioned by the neighbor himself, a reputable gentleman verging on three score and ten, who, clad in but a single light garment and shivering in the frosty air—for the night was the coldest one of the season up to that time—was endeavoring to break into his own domicile through the rear entrance, and had succeeded in forcing his way into the woodshed, but could not get from there into the kitchen, the well bolted back door being too stout. How the old gentleman came there he could not tell; all he knew was that he went to bed as usual, his wife having gone away on a visit, and went to sleep; and the next he knew he found himself on the ground under his chamber window, from which he had fallen or jumped, or dropped, a distance of sixteen feet, barely missing the cellar-way, and waking up to find himself very sore along the side he probably struck on. The other gentleman procured a ladder, with which an entrance to the house was effected by means of the chamber window, the somnambulist being well satisfied to escape so easily, when he might easily have been killed or badly injured.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

TUESDAY, Nov. 8th.

Michael Monday, Patrick Burke and Patrick Hagan, for drunkenness, were fined $3, costs $6.90, each, and all sent to the county house of correction for not paying.

Jeremiah Murphy, common drunkard, sixty days at the county farm, costs $5.76.

THATCHER, PRIMROSE & WEST.

Lovers of minstrelsy are assured of a treat in the appearance at Music hall next Tuesday evening of Thatcher, Primrose & West's minstrels, with new songs, new acts and new specialties, including a novel and original transformation first part set, for which they claim that "for splendor and brilliant surprises it has never been equalled on either side of the Atlantic." In their advance notice, speaking of American minstrelsy they say:

"Until of late years, its humor was but a reflex of the ludicrous absurdities of the plantation darkey, and its sentiment drawn from the pathos of slavery; but now that slave-life is numbered with the things that were, minstrelsy has been compelled to look to other and varied sources for its success; and that amusement lovers take kindly to this new order of things, is evidenced by the increased patronage extended to latter-day minstrels. Now, while burnt cork and minstrel comedy seem as closely allied as the words and the melody of a song, it is doubtful if the charm of music, whether instrumental or vocal, is enhanced by a blackened face; Thatcher, Primrose & West, the originators of all that is new and good in minstrelsy, have resolved to test the public taste on this question; this season marks the new departure.—their vocalists and instrumentalists will appear sans cork. All the artistes appearing in the first part scene will be attired in the incroyable dress of the Directoire period, with all the elegance that satins, velvets and precious stones can lend to such a dress. A proof of the elegance and historical correctness of the costumes worn in this scene, is that they were made by the Evans Costuming Co., of New York."

A HEAVY TRAIN.

The Boston Post of the 8th inst. in its railroad article says: "The official figures of the Boston & Maine-Eastern railroad system of 1886-87 gives to the Eastern railroad this year (aside from the saving in interest) the sum of $436,000, the equivalent of six per cent on the stock of both the Eastern and the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway, and the directors will declare a full six per cent dividend on Eastern common stock at their very next meeting, which is quite a different thing from two per cent, the dividend set for it last week."

PROBATE COURT.

The probate court was engaged most of the day on Tuesday in a hearing concerning the account of the assignee in insolvency of the late firm of Wm. Downs & Son. The question was as to partnership and private debts and assets. Messrs. Frink & Batchelder, and Page, appeared for the accounting assignee; Messrs. Hatch, Hodgdon and S. W. Emery for certain creditors and parties interested. The assignment was made in 1883, and the question seems to be how the assets shall be apportioned. From the simultaneous bursts of eloquence which at times reached the ear of the court, it is to be inferred that the sum to be divided between the lawyers and the creditors might be considerable.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Cosmos, of Boston, has arrived here, and will engage in winter fishing out of this port under command of Capt. Oren Caswell. Capt. Charles Allen will sail the schooner Starry Flag, of Gloucester, and Capt. John Gray the schooner Fannie Reed, of Cape Porpoise, the coming winter, both intending to fish out of this port.

The schooner Frances Ellen, which was beached in Rye harbor about three weeks ago to keep her from sinking, has been floated off, towed to this city and berthed at Call's wharf, inside the Noble's island bridge, where men were on Tuesday at work dismantling her. She is a small craft, registering a little over sixty tons, and was built in Belfast, Me., over forty years ago. She has been condemned and sold, D. H. Smith of Boston being the purchaser at $150.

Deputy Sheriff J. P. Hill of Waterville, Kennebec county, Me., was in this city on Tuesday to examine the records in the office of the collector of internal revenue, for evidence to be used in the prosecution of parties who have paid the special United States tax as retail liquor dealers in that county.

Reeves' American band, of Providence, R. I., celebrated the 50th anniversary of its organization Nov. 7th. This band will furnish the music for Kearsarge Engine Co.'s ball in this city on the night of Dec. 30th.

At a meeting of the board of instruction, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Alfred Gooding was chosen as trustee of the public library, vice Mrs. Anna B. Wilson, deceased.

A "Harvest excursion train" left Conway at 7:35 o'clock Tuesday morning for Boston, arriving in this city at 12:15 P. M., and leaving after a stop of about ten minutes. The train consisted of twenty passenger cars drawn by two locomotives,—the Portsmouth, No. 156, "Hod" Thompson engineer, and the Longfellow, No. 210, J. Fletcher engineer; the train being in charge of Conductor William Jefferson. There were 1050 passengers on the train, and during the brief stop at this station the restaurant presented a very lively aspect. The tickets on which the excursionists were travelling are good for a return trip on any regular train for a week from date.

Mr. William A. Ashe has taken the position of messenger of Jackson & Co.'s express, made vacant by the death of Col. Wm. P. Burley.

Mr. Usher B. Thompson of Newfield, Me., formerly clerk in the department of yards and docks at the navy yard, was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. Harry Marvin, formerly of this city, is now acting as assistant to Mr. Jos. A. Meloon, in charge of the state exhibit of Dakota at the Mechanics' fair in Boston. After the close of the fair Mr. Marvin will go south, having accepted a position with an extensive shoe firm.

ELIOT ITEMS.

ELIOT, ME., Nov. 8th.

The executive committee, and subcommittees on entertainment, of the Eliot Library Association, at a special meeting held for the purpose of perfecting arrangements for the entertainment in aid of the fund to be given on the 15th inst., of which the public will have due notice and particulars, were greatly edified by the receipt from a gentleman in New York of a check for $100 toward the brick building the association propose to erect. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Libbey, which is the name of the gentleman sending the check. The entertainment will consist of remarks, declamations, vocal music, violin solo, piano solos and duets, etc. A meeting in aid of the library scheme, held at the Methodist Episcopal church at the back part of the town was well attended and very enthusiastic; and there is good reason to hope for a great success for the entertainment. Such should be the case, for the people of the town ought to encourage the efforts being made to second the excellent work inaugurated by Prof. Farmer and his people.

Mr. Edward H. Adams is at home for the winter, and will be engaged in teaching the school in district No. 6.

Miss Lulu Reeder is at home with her parents for a short time.

Mrs. Ellen Dame, who has been passing a few days with friends in Boston, arrived home on Monday.

Mr. Samuel Dixon has just returned from a trip to Canada, whither he went with the intention of purchasing largely of poultry for Thanksgiving; but he was unable to secure any, both geese and turkeys being so scarce as to be unobtainable in quantity. He telegraphed to Quebec about geese, but could get no encouragement as to obtaining any there. We understand he will make another attempt to secure a supply before the great New England festival arrives. HARRY.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., Nov. 7th.

There were seven three-masted vessels in the harbor to-day; the tug boats have been quite busy all day long.

The new fish house is about completed, and we understand the fish firm will take charge this week. We wish them all success. This place will be much easier of access for our fishermen than the cities where they have usually sold their fares.

Mr. Wallace Chase and family occupy the Park-Field cottage this winter. We hear that the grounds around the Park-Field are to be improved before the house opens again, and a part of them laid out in flower gardens. Flowers will make still more homelike this already pretty, homelike place.

Prof. J. C. Tilton of Portsmouth opened a singing school in the vestry of the Freewill Baptist church to-night. There were about thirty present, and much interest was manifested. It has been some time since our young people have had the opportunity of attending a good singing school, as this bids fair to be, and many of them intend to make the most of this privilege.

It is rumored that Mr. Warner's new house on Gerrish's island is to be called Rock Cottage. It is a most appropriate name, for the first story is built of the rough pasture rocks, many of them moss-grown and gray.— It is pleasantly located in a little valley with rocky hills on either side, and a gradual slope to the beach in front. It is between the old Seawards place and White rocks. It overlooks all the harbor, the village of Kittery Point, and across the river the shores of New Hampshire; while out beyond the island the broad Atlantic may be seen, and on fair days the Isles of Shoals look very near.

Mrs. Carrie Tobey has moved into the house occupied by Mrs. R. H. Bowman, and Rev. E. A. Hall, pastor of the Freewill Baptist church, will move in where Mrs. Tobey moved out.

Rev. H. S. Ives resigned his pastorate of the Christian church last Sunday; his resignation will take effect in the month of February.

To-day has been a regular Indian Summer day. The air has been warm and summer-like all day, and many of our people made the most of it for out-door recreation. Riding and boating were as pleasant as in September. One boat came in laden with dark green and silvery grey mosses and red berries, and prettily-shaped cones.

Miss Mabel Ames Young is very sick at her home in Rochester, N. H.

Some of our little folks like to use big-sounding words at times, whose meaning they do not know. "Mamma," said a little boy, "I went out in the field, and looked all around for Rover and could not see him; but pretty soon I despised him sitting by the fence." "Look, mamma!" said little Ina, who had cut her apple in a dozen pieces; "see, I have covided my apple." AUNT MOLLY.

Jay Gould on his passage to Europe saw some heavy seas roll on board the Umbria, drenching everything on deck, and injuring some of the steerage passengers. No harm was done the New York capitalist, however. In fact, he has been so accustomed to heavy waterings that he regarded this overflow as a matter of course.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, Rockingham ss.

By the Hon. Judge of Probate for said County.

TO the heirs at law and creditors to the estate of JOHN H. GRANT, late of Portsmouth, in said County, deceased, intestate, and all persons interested in said estate.

YOU are hereby notified that GEORGE W. SMITH, administrator of the estate of said deceased, has filed his account of administering said estate in the Probate Office for said County, and will present the same at a Court of Probate to be holden at Portsmouth, in and for said County, on the second Tuesday of January next, at 10 o'clock A. M., for examination and allowance.

At the same Court the Report of the Commissioner of Insolvency on said estate will be taken into consideration for allowance.

YOU are therefore hereby cited to appear at said Court to be heard thereon, and to make such objections as you may then have. And notice is hereby required to be given by causing this citation to be published three weeks successively in the PORTSMOUTH DAILY CHRONICLE, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth, in said County, the last publication thereof to be at least one week prior to said Court.

Dated at PORTSMOUTH, Nov. 8th, A. D. 1887.

WE have now on hand and offer for sale a fine lot of Yorkshire and Chester White Shoats, weighing from 40 to 150 lbs.

JAMES R. YEATON, Oak Hill Farm, Rockrimmon Avenue.

THE clearness and brilliancy of handsome cut glass is always impaired if washed with soap containing resin, which invariably leaves a thin semi-transparent coating in the grooves of furrows, giving the article the appearance of cheap moulded glassware. IVORY SOAP contains no resin, is easily rinsed off, and if used with tepid water and a soft brush, will give your cut glass that clearness and brilliancy which produce the beautiful prismatic effects.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

LITTLE OLD FASHIONED.

As prim as a lily in some quiet nook,
She sits by herself, with her slate or her book,
And hears with an air patronizingly say
The voices of other sweet children at play.
Demurely she sights, by which you infer
That such romping and merriment are not for her;
But some one's heart whispers that she is her pearl,
Her little home body, her old fashioned girl.

She "plays tea" alone by a sofa or chair,
Rocks baby to sleep with a maternly air,
Then sews by the cradle. With glasses on, she
A pocket edition of granny would be.
When mother looks careworn, ah! quickly she sees,
And knows how a few soothing love words will please,
Then in that dear lap lays each soft, shining curl;
She's mother's own comfort, her old fashioned girl.

When twilight has mellowed the loud playtime din,
She quietly asks, "Are the children all in?"
Or, watching the step, when a footstep comes near,
She whispers, "That's father; I'm so glad he's here!"
The youngest of shoulders, the oldest of heads!
Does any one know a wee darling who sheds
A joy and a sunshine, 'mid life's tireless whirl,
Like mother's home body, her old fashioned girl?

AN ACTOR'S LOVE LETTERS.

And Other Matters for the Hopper of the Secondhand Paper Stock Dealer.

"Love letters? oh, yes, we come across them quite often in our stock; but we have no time to read 'em. You see business, not sentiment, is my motto," said a down town dealer in paper stock. "When people are leaving a house they have lived in a good many years they don't care to be bothered with old papers, and they just sell them to us at so much a pound, whether it is love letters, or magazines, or whatever it may be.

"I did have rather a notable experience with a love letter once, though. I was sorting over a bundle which had just arrived from a house up town—for we always sort over in case there should happen to be anything valuable—when a monogram on a letter met my eye. I knew that monogram, and I thought that perhaps it might be something that ought to be sent back. I glanced at the letter, and then I saw what it was. It was from a lady belonging to one of our first families, so called, to a well known actor, who made a furor in New York quite a number of years ago. The actor had stopped in that house awhile, and didn't seem to have thought the letters worth taking with him, or perhaps he forgot them. At any rate they came down here in that bundle, an ocean of them, and some of them had not even been opened, which shows how little actors think of that kind of correspondence. The whole lot went for paper stock. No, I didn't keep one. It would not have been business like.

"And we have old checks and old telegrams by the ton. All business houses get rid of them as old paper after keeping them for a certain length of time, and sometimes the price of the waste paper is all they get out of a good many of the checks. It all comes into the hopper at from a cent to a cent and a quarter a pound, for paper stock just now is very low; it has never been lower.

"Those album covers? They come to us at a price a little above waste paper, and sometimes we get quite a good figure for them. You see, the wholesale houses that deal in albums send out only the covers as specimens, and when a cover is out of date it comes into the second hand dealer's hopper.

"At the new directory season we reap quite a crop of the last year's directories, all as waste paper, and sell them for $1 apiece. A good many would just as soon have them as the new ones.

"But aldermen and other politicians are among our best customers in old, or rather second hand books. May seem queer, but it's a fact. They get heaps of books from Washington, besides state and city documents, and they just put them to one side until the heap gets inconvenient, and then they pack them off to the paper stock dealer. In many instances such books have not been even taken out of the packages. But it's all the same to us. We pay a cent and a quarter for them."—New York Sun.

Disappointed Nimrods.

Some days ago a number of sportsmen went across the lake on a hunting and fishing excursion. The party was composed of a well known engraver, one of the artists employed on a popular magazine, a printer, a young literary man, and others of lesser note. The programme, as laid down on the start, was, that deer, bear, elk and other game should be shot by the hunters, sketched and engraved by the artist and engraver, and that a full account of the trip should be written by the literary man, set up by the printer, published after the party came back, and sold in monthly numbers, forty-eight in a set, at twenty-five cents each. The nimrods took ammunition enough with them to kill all the game from New Brunswick to Manitoba. After a week of tramping they succeeded in bagging a hedgehog and a crow, and in capturing two bass, "a great many of which would weigh a pound." It is unnecessary to add that the apparatus for sketching, engraving and type setting, which formed no inconsiderable portion of the baggage, was not unpacked.—Rochester Post-Express.

The Pop Balls of Dakota.

The pop weed is a Dakota curiosity. Its stalk is like that of a cabbage, with a large, round top, the size and color of a Hubbard squash. The "northwesters" in the fall blow the pop balls off the stalks and roll them for miles over the prairies till they reach uneven country, where they pile up like snowbanks and serve buffalo herds as a shelter from the winter blizzards. A pop ball, which meets any hard object explodes with a tremendous report and sends about thousands of fine, needle like seeds in every direction.—Philadelphia Call.

At Peace.

A stomach in revolt is an obdurate rebel. Corrected with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, its dissensions with the food introduced into it in unwary moments of appetite ceases. Then it is at peace. Then dyspepsia abandons its grip. Then such fractious manifestations as heartburn, a sinking sensation in the pit of the abdomen between meals and unnatural fullness afterwards, flatulence, acid gulpings, biliousness, &c., cease to inflict martyrdom. After a course of the national tonic and alterative, the liver and bowels, always more or less disordered during a prolonged attack of indigestion, resume their functions and become regular. Thus not only dyspepsia, but its complaints, constipation and biliousness, are conquered by the medicine, which remedies their fruitful cause, weakness of the organs of digestion. The epigastric nerve, cellular tissue, in short, every organ that bears a part in the digestive processes acquires vigor and regularity from the benign invigorant.

Near Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 8th, two negroes who had assaulted a young white woman were chained to a pile of logs and burned to death.

A single bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will establish the merits of this medicine as a blood purifier. Many thousands of people are yearly cured of chronic diseases by the faithful use of this remedy. It is unequalled for the cure of scrofula.

Baker & Whitmarsh, shoe manufacturers with a payroll of $1000 a week, have moved their business from Abington, Mass., to Brockton.

James Bowie, aged twenty-one years, has been arrested at East Cambridge, Mass., for the murder of a man in Nova Scotia four years ago. Bowie's father is in prison for life for abetting the murder.

Dyspepsia in its worst forms will yield to the use of Carter's Little Nerve Pills, aided by Carter's Little Liver Pills. They not only relieve present distress but strengthen the stomach and digestive apparatus.

James H. Tolles, democrat, was reelect mayor of Nashua on the 8th inst. The councils are republican.

There are many forms of nervous debility in men that yield to the use of Carter's Iron Pills. Those who are troubled with nervous weakness, night sweats, etc., should try them.

The lighthouse board has been informed that a piece of the copper-covered bottom of the missing lighthouse tender Mignonette was recently washed ashore on the Texas coast. There is no longer any doubt of the loss of the vessel and her crew of eighteen men.

Avoid the harsh, irritating, griping compounds so often sold as purgative medicine, and correct the irregularities of the bowels by the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. They are invaluable as a family medicine.

—"Just think," said Mrs. Watkin to her modiste, "the very next day after my new black suit was sent home I was called to go out of town to a funeral." "Wan't that nice?" was the absent-minded reply.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

Election Notes.

In Massachusetts, at the election on Tuesday, the 8th inst., the total vote was fully 23,000 larger than last year, the republican vote increasing about 14,000, the democratic vote about 7000, and the prohibition vote about 2000, the latter party throwing some 10,000 votes this year. Gov. Ames had 9,463 plurality over Andrew in 1886; his plurality over Lovering is about 17,000. In Boston last year Andrew's plurality was 8295; Lovering's is 5312. In Lynn, Lovering's home, his plurality was 356. Lowell disregarded Ben Butler's advice, gave Ames 466 plurality, and elected a republican senator. The republicans made substantial gains in both senate and house.

In Maryland the Gorman-Higgins-Cleveland ring had things their own way, elected their candidate for governor by 10,000 to 12,000 majority, other state officers by about the same figures, and a large majority of the legislators. The Baltimore correspondent of the Boston Post (democratic) says "the falling off in the colored vote was almost unprecedented. Where they tried to vote, the usual tactics were adopted, names were misspelled on the poll lists or initials were omitted, and the voter was disfranchised because of his ignorance of etymology. Repeaters were thick, owing to the rank laws. Any man versed in the art of repeating, who had a majority of the election officers on his side, found little difficulty in voting 180 times, once in each precinct, at least, so that fifty competent heelers could, and doubtless did, overturn the will of the real majority. The Knights of Labor forgot their grievance against Jackson, the democratic nominee for governor, and voted for him as solidly as ever. Wherever the independents could be sure of a fair count heavy gains were reported throughout the day, but these gains are affected by the fine work which the ring has been able to accomplish wherever its tools have control. 'Puddin' ballots were sent out in blocks to the eastern shore yesterday, and that is the reason that the state may be depended upon to roll up a majority of any needed dimension if the southern and western counties prove too strongly antagonistic and defeat is threatened. It will be late to-morrow before full returns can be received."

In Rhode Island's second congressional district the republicans elected Warren O. Arnold by a plurality of 838 over Charles S. Bradley, democrat, who last fall had a plurality of about 600. The prohibition vote fell off two-thirds.

In Nebraska the republican candidates for judge of the supreme court and regents of the university were elected by 20,000 to 30,000 majority on a very light vote.

Dakota voted heavily in favor of a division of the territory, and prohibition will probably have a small majority on the final count.

In Mississippi very few ballots except democratic ones were thrown, and the legislature is almost entirely democratic.

Reports from Virginia were meagre up to midnight on the 8th. Returns from eight counties showed a republican net gain of one member of the house of delegates. For the first time in twelve years the city and county of Alexandria went republican, defeating Speaker Stuart of the assembly by 223 votes.

Pennsylvania went republican by a reduced majority, stated anywhere from 10,000 to 25,000. Philadelphia went democratic by three to five thousand—a big turnover.

In Ohio, Gen. J. B. Foraker's stand on the rebel flag business seems not to have hurt him greatly, his majority over T. E. Powell, democrat, Seitz, union labor, and Sharp, prohibition, being much larger than that over Hoadley last year, when Gov. Foraker was 17,000 votes ahead. Hamilton county gave 3000 or more republican majority, and the chairman of the republican state committee at midnight claimed at least 25,000 majority in the state.

New York city, with one district not in, for district attorney gave Fellows, democrat, 90,255; Nicoll, ind. dem., 71,202; Post, 29,548; Searing, 4095; Minierre, 543. The democrats at midnight claimed the state by 20,000 majority, and they made some gains in the legislature. In the Syracuse district the republican candidate for Congress, Belden, had an overwhelming majority. At Chenango Bridge eleven women voted the straight prohibition ticket.

Oregon defeated the prohibitory amendment by seven to eight thousand. The amendments to change the time of election and to allow the legislature to fix the salaries of the state officers, were also lost.

New Jersey, which elected a legislature, was totally ignored in the returns of election day; as was also Louisiana, which elected one congressman to fill a vacancy.

The republican plurality in Pennsylvania was put at 34,000 on the evening of the 9th inst. In Philadelphia, where the democratic candidates for sheriff and controller were elected by 5000 and 10,000 plurality respectively, the republican candidates for state offices had from 12,000 to 15,000 majority each. Not such a very democratic city, after all.

Returns received from New Jersey on the 9th show that the republicans retain control of the senate and have made large gains in the assembly, giving them control of the latter body.

The Bribery.

Mr. Fred S. Mosely denies unqualifiedly that he is in any way or manner made any improper suggestions to Senator Worcester as to the Hazen bill. Mr. Mosely's affidavit gives a version of the affair which shows that he said nothing which an honorable business man should not properly and honestly say. The bribery business seems to have been on one side, and the friends of that side appear to have raised a cry of "wolf" against the other side to distract public attention from their own operations. It will probably turn out in the long run that the Durgin approach was the only defile through which any member was attempted to be reached.

OPENING.

Ladies, you are cordially invited to the opening at Foye's, Nov. 10th and 11th, to inspect the goods displayed in the Art Needle Work Department.

—Mistress: "I'm sorry to have you leave me, Mary." "Mary: "And I'm sorry to go. There isn't anybody I'd sooner do a favor sor." Mistress: "Ah, indeed! Then won't you be so kind as to give me a recommendation to hand to the next cook that applies?"

—"What kind of boys go to heaven?" asked the Sunday-school superintendent. "Dead boys!" yelled the youngest member of the infant class.

"Did n't Know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness, indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reëstablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the maladies and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go th rough the summer."

Catarrh in the Head

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with increased secretion. Thus catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. The catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that at first its presence is not suspected by the sufferer, and a firm hold on its victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is exceedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the diseased membrane, and thus soon cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I am happy to state that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very troublesome, especially in the winter, causing constant disclosure from my nose, and pains in my ears, and pains in my head. The effect is clear my head, hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GIBB, 1029 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, Ohio.

A SNAG AHEAD.

Representative-elect McKinney's purpose to aid the soldiers and sailors in obtaining pensions, if intended as a legitimate aid to these worthy claimants, is to be commended. A little experience, however, in this line, will convince Luther that he has entered upon a big undertaking. The pension office requires evidence to support claims before it. The later the claim has been filed the more difficult of course is the chance of obtaining required testimony. If the claim agents are unable to make out a case upon proof it is not likely that a representative can accomplish more unless he introduces a private act giving a pension, when the presidential veto comes in because the claimant has gone to Congress over the pension bureau! Mr. McKinney is entitled to all praise for his patriotic, unselfish devotion to the interest of the soldiers of his district. If he follows this field of worthy employment to any considerable extent, he will not find time for the discharge of many other congressional duties.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, Me., Nov. 8th.

We notice a statement made by the correspondent of the Biddeford Journal from the Point last week, that the late term of the free high school was one of the most successful since the establishment of the school, — which we think was a little extravagant, if the reports year after year can be relied on. But if this is the case, a longer term would be a waste of time and money. Consistancy is a jewel, and we do not object to any amount of it.

Mr. William M. Otis, one of our best known and most respected citizens, died at his home at the Foreside on Sunday evening last, after a long sickness, he was aged fifty years.

The sensation caused by the attempted suicide in North Kittery last week has created quite a stir, and caused much comment in this and adjourning towns. What caused the lady to do such a rash act, we are unable to say.

Mrs. Shadrack Littlefield has recovered sufficiently from her injuries to return to her home in Berwick.

Miss Ruth C. Parker returned to her home in Boston on Saturday after a plessant visit among relatives and friends in town.

Mrs. P. P. Morrill has returned to Boston after an extended visit here.

The P. E. T. Club will give an assembly in Trefethen hall on Thursday evening, the 10th inst.

Miss Emma H. Gerry will teach the winter term of school in district No. 2.

Rev. Eugene E. Colburn of the Second Christian church will exchange with Rev. Kingman Atkinson of Eliot next Sunday.

The second Methodist church at the Foreside are preparing for an "Old Folks' concert." SUB ROSA.

An Old Map.

Among the old papers packed away in the city building was found some time since an old plan or map of the compact portion of the city of Portsmouth. It was made in 1812 by F. G. Hale or Haley and looks to have been a very correct plan. Portions of the corners have been broken off and the map is cracked in several places across the center. The map has just been carefully mounted and framed to prevent its further destruction, and will hereafter hang in a conspicuous place in the city clerk's office. At the time the map was made many of the streets were called lanes and the names are plainly printed on the old map, since which time many have been changed to the names they now go by. Congress, Deer, Vaughan, Penhallow, Daniel, Water, Wentworth, Livermore, Bow and Ceres streets and others were then in existence, and we notice Fore street extending by the river, Jaffrey street now Court street, Buck street, Maudlin street and numerous other peculiar names applied to many now familiar thoroughfares. The old map is a valuable document and the authorities have done well to take steps for its preservation.—Times.

Referring to the elections in twelve states on the 8th inst. the Penny Post says: "The cheering election news causes republicans to feel particularly good." And the Times, referring to the same, says: "Democratic skies bright. The democratic column marching on." Very nice election, which more than satisfies both sides.

The schooner Charles H. Trickey has been chartered by George T. Vaughan & Co. to take 100 tons of old iron from the navy yard to Brooklyn, N. Y. The schooner Thomas W. Haven has been chartered to take iron from the navy yard to Philadelphia.

Foye's "ad." changed to-day. Read it.

The Biddeford Journal has the following to offer: "Maine is still a good state to emigrate from—to get married. Six of the twenty-four couples married in Dover, N. H., last month, were from this state. Marriage laws are curious things. While the marriage laws of New Hampshire or New York would not be tolerated for a moment in Maine, parties once married under them have the free run of all creation. It matters nothing how or where or under what form people are married only that they are able to produce a certificate from somebody or other saying they are husband and wife. Marriage contracts made in one state may be annulled in any other state for whimsical reasons. In fact, getting married and unmarried nowadays, in many of these United States, is not many removes from Mormon polygamy, which we all cry out against."

Dennis Shea, for twenty-five years draw-tender at No. 2 draw on the Boston & Maine railroad at Charlestown, Mass., was instantly killed at about six o'clock in the evening on the 8th inst. He was standing near the edge of the draw and was struck by a shifting engine, which threw him into the water, also cutting off the top of his head, it being found on the track.

Lewis E. Staples has laid out a small lot of Ladies' and Misses' Winter Cloaks to sell at five dollars a garment. They are broken lines he will not have again. It might be an advantage to see them.

Mr. Michael Cunniff, of Boston, democratic boss, had a permit to use Faneuil hall on the evening of election day, the intent being to celebrate Lovering's election as governor by a genuine old-fashioned democratic love feast. The jollification was postponed for reasons beyond the control of Mr. Cunniff and his friends.

Our Naval Officers.

According to the annual Naval Register, just issued, there are 1,322 naval officers in the active service of the United States navy, besides 184 warrant officers and about 250 naval cadets. The list of commissioned officers includes one admiral, one vice admiral, six rear admirals, ten commodores, forty-five captains, eighty-five commanders, seventy-four lieutenants, seventy-five junior lieutenants, besides 188 ensigns, and sixty-nine naval cadets performing two years' sea service.

During the year there were 52 resignations, ten deaths, nine were honorably discharged, and three dismissed.

There are eighty-four serviceable vessels, and ten are unserviceable. Of the former nineteen are armored, and twelve are sailing vessels.

The marine corps maintains a colonel commandant and five general staff officers, one colonel, two lieutenant colonels, four majors, twenty captains, thirty first lieutenants and fifteen second lieutenants.

We clip the following from the Times of the 9th inst.:

Congressman McKinney visited the navy yard to-day and immediately saw plenty of chances to call for increased appropriations at the coming session of the congress. We hope he will get one sufficient to make the repairs necessary at the yard and make work enough for every democrat who wants a job there to work, and after all the democrats have found employment, a portion of the republicans of the city.

If Mr. McKinney can get appropriations enough for the yard to employ all the democrats of this city, Newcastle, Kittery and Eliot, with a few from York and more distant towns, he will do all that is required; the republicans will find plenty of work off the yard then.

A cabinet crisis in the Sandwich islands is looked for.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finley (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am now a sound healthy man. There is now no doubt about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures many actuated. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning; she had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. She got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life, and I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and spitting headaches—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and what free in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment, unlike scores of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon debilitated nervous system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and the IMPROVED INHALER, price, $1.

EXPERIMENTS IN HYPNOTISM.

Strange Doings of the Doctors in Paris. Startling Mental Phenomena.

Dr. Luys recently made a communication to the Academy of Medicine on this subject which electrified the members present. It was on the action, both at a distance and by direct contact, of certain medicated and fermented substances on hypnotic subjects. The latter were all women who could not possibly have got their cue beforehand, and were being observed while Dr. Luys operated by a jury of scientists above all suspicion of having lent themselves to any trickery. A tube in one instance was filled with sulphate of strychnine by Dr. Luys, and the subject, who was not present, was told to put it to the left side of the nape of her neck. Soon after there was a telephonic message from the foreman of the jury to say that the patient suffered in the left side from muscular contractions, convulsive starts and a rigid body. When the drug was placed on the right side of the nape (in imagination) the same phenomenon took place.

An experiment, or rather experiments, was made on subjects who were brought in to the operator. They had no idea what Dr. Luys was going to use. Alcohol when put to the nape in a tube no larger than a homeopathist's vial and hermetically sealed produced exactly the same effect as if imbibed at a bar. Absinthe, haschish, opium, morphine, beer, champagne, tea and coffee were in succession tried with their characteristic effects. But "the cup which cheers but not inebriates" was found too exciting for French neuropaths. Valerian caused the deepest sadness. The thoughts of the patient were centered in a grave. She was impelled irresistibly to stoop down and scratch the ground, and thought herself in a cemetery exhuming a deceased relative whom she loved. Under the illusion she fancied herself picking up bones belonging to this skeleton, which she handled with tender reverence, and when there was an imaginary mound of them she placed, with dep drawn sighs and tears and genuflections, a cross above them. Under the influence of haschish everything looked rosy and gayety prevailed.

The subject was a young girl, very fond of the drama. She fancied herself on the stage and playing a part which suited her to perfection. It was in a bouffe opera and she sang her score admirably. The sentiments were expressed with delicate feeling. Dr. Luys can, according to the substances he uses, run through the whole gamut of human passions and emotions.

What is most strange is that no trace of the fictitious world in which the hypnotized subject has been wandering remains when real consciousness is restored. It is very rare for even the idea of having been in dreamland to survive the awakening from the hypnotic trance. Dr. Luys says that hypnotic suggestion sometimes has periods of incubation more or less long. The subject is at first gently drawn to do a certain thing or things, and then the drawing becomes an irresistible impulse. They are first as if tempted and then as if possessed. They can no more help themselves than a man who had got to the verge of Niagara Falls in a boat could help going over.

Dr. Roger moved that the academy name a commission to inquire into hypnotic suggestion, near and at a distance. Dr. Bromardel supported him. He said: "All that Dr. Luys has alleged and shown cannot fail to make a noise throughout the world. Nobody but MM. Burot and Bouron have gone so far as Dr. Luys. He not only forces on the attention of the academy the question of hypnotism, but of persons being affected by poisonous substances which do not penetrate, or it may be even touch their bodies. This is from a legal point of view a great danger. A great social responsibility is involved in the matter. It is the duty of the academy to have the experiments of Dr. Luys repeated, with others that bear upon them."—Paris Cor. New York Tribune.

The Italians of Philadelphia.

The Italians of Philadelphia are almost entirely of the lower class. The chief occupations by which these people gain a livelihood are rag picking, street cleaning, vending fruits and nuts and grinding so called music out of wheezy hand organs. An early riser will see the rag pickers out at break of day with bags and iron hooks, prodding into ash and garbage barrels, turning the contents over carefully and selecting what they want with the air of a connoisseur, and to tell what they leave would be easier than to enumerate the articles they stow away within the folds of their bags. The street cleaners, too, are out and hard at work at daybreak, doing tasks and enduring wrongs no American would undergo at any price. The fruit dealers and the organ grinders appear on the scene about 7 o'clock and a day's work for them ends about 11 at night.

The Italian is a hard worker and content with small pay, two facts which make him very popular with contractors. There is no idleness tolerated in their households. While the husband is gathering rags the wife is tending a fruit stand or selling trinkets from door to door. The boys who are large enough are furnished with a "kit" and become bootblacks, while the smaller brothers add their mite to the general fund by gathering cigar stumps from the gutter.—Philadelphia Times.

Watch Dogs for Sentry Duty.

One of the latest freaks of military science is the training of watch dogs for sentry duty. The French war minister has given orders that dogs shall be tried in connection with advance post duty and taught to bark at the approach of an enemy or stranger. Dogs are also to be used as scouts, and if they prove useful they are to be attached to all the line regiments and stationed regularly with the double sentries. "Letting loose the dogs of war" thus promises to have a literal as well as a metaphorical meaning.

How a Dying Child Was Saved!

CICERO, HAMILTON Co., IND., Sept. 12, 1887.—The following is a true account of what your S. S. S. has done for our little daughter, Hazel, now four years old. When 12 months old a lump appeared on her heel, which slowly grew larger. The family physician in sight it was caused by a piece of broken glass or needle, but failed to bring anything to light. The child became feebler all the time, seeming to lose the use of her leg, and finally quit walking entirely. The middle finger and thumb of either hand became enlarged, the flesh becoming hard. The hip joints became involved, so that when seventeen months old she could not stand, having lost the use of leg and arm. Partial curvature of the spine also followed. The nervous system was wrecked, muscles contracted, and there was general wasting of flesh and muscle. At eighteen months of age she was placed under the treatment of a prominent physician of Boston, Mass., but at the end of ten months she had declined to such a degree that she was in a dying condition. This was in April, 1886. We took the child away not knowing what to do. In this dreadful dilemma we were over-persuaded by friends to try "one bottle" of Swift's Specific, which we did, and before it had all been taken we saw a change for the better in her symptoms. We kept it up, and have done so to this day, and will keep it up, if the Lord wills, for many days to come, for it has brought our dying Hazel to life, to vigor, to strength and health again. The sallow hue of her cheeks has changed to a rosy tint. She is able to walk anywhere, her languor and melancholy have passed away, and she is now a blithe, cheerful, happy romping child. Should you wish to increase your testimonials of proof of the virtue of S. S. S., our names and what we have said is but a portion of what we owe to you, should you wish to use them.

Kindly yours,

Robert McQuindall, a workman on the Boston & Maine iron train, on the 7th inst. had one of his feet caught under the wheels of a car at Biddeford, and had it crushed off. He was taken to the Portland hospital, where the leg was amputated.

At Peace.

A stomach in revolt is an obdurate rebel. Corrected with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, its dissensions with the food introduced into it in unwary moments of appetite ceases. Then it is at peace. Then dyspepsia abandons its grip. Then such fractious manifestations as heartburn, a sinking sensation in the pit of the abdomen between meals and unnatural fullness afterwards, flatulence, acid gulpings, biliousness, &c., cease to inflict martyrdom. After a course of the national tonic and alterative, the liver and bowels, always more or less disordered during a prolonged attack of indigestion, resume their functions and become regular. Thus not only dyspepsia, but its complaints, constipation and biliousness, are conquered by the medicine, which remedies their fruitful cause, weakness of the organs of digestion. The epigastric nerve, cellular tissue, in short, every organ that bears a part in the digestive processes acquires vigor and regularity from the benign invigorant.

Prince Bismark's organ eulogizes the late E. B. Washburne for his services to Germans in Paris during the seige and the commune.

A single bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will establish the merits of this medicine as a blood purifier. Many thousands of people are yearly cured of chronic diseases by the faithful use of this remedy. It is unequalled for the cure of scrofula.

The Rhode Island legislature has been called to meet in extra session to revise the state constitution.

Bankers,

Doctors, lawyers, carpenters, druggists, engineers, mechanics, in fact we have recommendations from people in all stations in life, testifying to the wonderful cures that Sulphur Bitters have effected. Send for testimonials. See another column.

Dr. Vantentake, a distinguished Dutch scientist, is in Washington, en route to Arizona to hunt for prehistoric relics.

Dyspepsia in its worst forms will yield to the use of Carter's Little Liver Pills. They not only relieve present distress but strengthen the stomach and digestive apparatus.

The British cabinet have decided not to convoke parliament until the end of Febuary, in order to avoid the embarrassments of parliamentary criticism of the course pursued by the government in Ireland.

There are many forms of nervous debility in men that yield to the use of Carter's Iron Pills. Those who are troubled with nervous weakness, night sweats, etc., should try them.

Dartmouth college and the New Hampshire agricultural college both show an increase in the number of students.

Avoid the harsh, irritating, griping compounds so often sold as purgative medicine, and correct the irregularities of the bowels by the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. They are invaluable as a family mepicine.

Thomas Maguire of Somerset, Mass., a hard working man with a family of four children, is one of six brothers and sisters who are to share a fortune of $2,500,000 left by a bachelor brother, Bartholomew Maguire, who died lately at Denver, Col.

Prof. Loisette's Memory Discovery.

Prof. Loisette's new system of memory training, taught by correspondence at 237 Fifth Ave., New York, seems to supply a general want. He has had two classes at Yale of 200 each, 350 at Oberlin College, 300 at Norwich, 100 Columbia Law Students, 400 at Wellesley College, and 400 at University of Penn., &c. Such patronage and the endorsement of such men as Mark Twain, Dr. Buckley, Prof. Wm. R. Harper, of Yale, &c., place the claim of Prof. Loisette upon the highest ground.

"What a nice time the scissors-man and the umbrella-menders can have now," remarks a little girl, looking out at the window. "Why?" asked mamma. "Oh, they can walk in the mud and snow all day, and go home and take Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup all night."

The republicans made a gain of fourteen members in the Maryland legislature, but the Gorman-Cleveland ring still have seventy-one majority on joint ballot.

For Scrofula, Impoverished Blood and General Debility,

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, has, no equal in the whole realm of medicine. Read the following: "I gave one bottle of Scott's Emulsion to my own child for Scrofula, and the effect was marvelous." —O. F. Gray, M. D., White Ball, Ind.

Hart, republican candidate for state treasurer in Pennsylvania, has 37,000 plurality.

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

FRIDAY NOVEMBER 11, 1887.

The Late Issue.

The result of the elections shows that where the democrats expect to achieve satisfactory results at the polls, they must spend money freely to hold the votes of the naturalized men which once were counted on as sure for the party. And further, that when money has to be expended there will be found plenty of smart fellows to act as disbursing agents of the funds which the liquor men have to contribute. The dealers and brewers paid immense sums in New York into the democratic treasury. The boys took good care of it. They made it a principle that if the liquor interest is to be cared for by the democracy all the year round, they should suffer at least, an annual squeeze at election. Large sums were expended, but the way in which large amounts went into the pockets of the faithful strikers on Tuesday, and stuck there, is said to be marvellous. There was no honor among thieves this time. The election in New York was simply a contest between the liquor dealers, brewers and saloons, backed both by the Cleveland and the Hill administrations; and the people, who think there should be a control over the liquor traffic and an observance of the law against dram shops being opened for business on the Sabbath. This seems to be the coming issue everywhere. The liquor interest, like the slave holders, will grow arrogant and dictatorial, but eventually will have to succumb before the voice of the people.

The Anarchists.

All day Wednesday, the 9th inst., Gov. Oglesby of Illinois was receiving petitions and delegations in favor of commuting the death sentences of the anarchist murderers, among them being an appeal by Judge Gary, who tried them, for clemency to Samuel Fielden. The pressure brought to bear in their favor was tremendous, and it was generally believed that Fielden, Schwab and Spies, who had petitioned for mercy, would escape hanging.

On the 10th Louis Lingg, the most desperate ruffian of the lot, who made the bombs for the Haymarket riot, and in whose cell six bombs were found on the 6th, placed a fulminating cap in his mouth, and exploded it with a candle which was burning in his cell. The noise made was very great, and Lingg's mouth, throat and jaw were terribly torn and shattered, and it was thought he could not live till the time set for the execution on the 11th. The cap was a small affair, and could easily have been smuggled into the jail.

The friends of the condemned murderers on the 10th gave up hope of executive clemency in the cases of those who refused to ask for it.

Winter Trips to California.

The charms of the California winter climate are becoming well understood in the east, and it is evident that a larger number of tourists than ever before in a single season will cross the continent the coming winter. Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb are making their famous excursions more popular than ever, not only in an increased number of trips and widening their scope on the Pacific coast, but in presenting a choice of routes, and above all, in providing their new and unsurpassed accommodations for the comfort and enjoyment of their passengers. Their new trains of vestibuled Pullman palace cars are the finest productions of the kind yet built. Dining-cars will be run across the continent on every train. This feature of itself is important, since it ensures meals at regular hours, and the fact that the management of the dining-cars has been entrusted to the commissary department of the Pullman company is a sufficient guaranty of the excellence of the menu. Two parties will leave Boston early in December, one starting Monday, December 5th, and going through to the famous Hotel del Monte, at Monterey, which has just been reopened, and the other leaving Thursday, December 8th, for The Raymond, at East Pasadena, and Los Angeles. Vestibuled trains will be run in connection with both trips. Circulars giving full particulars of the winter tours may be obtained of W. Raymond, 296 Washington street, opposite School street, Boston.

Hon. Benjamin F. Prescott of Epping, ex-governor of New Hampshire, was on the 9th inst. appointed railroad commissioner for three years, to succeed E. J. Tenney of Claremont, whose term has expired.

Lewis E. Staples has laid out a small lot of Ladies' and Misses' Winter Cloaks to sell at five dollars a garment. They are broken lines he will not have again. It might be an advantage to see them.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS.

There will be a Ladies' Temperance Prayer meeting at the North Chapel on Middle street, Saturday morning at ten o'clock, continuning one hour; it is hoped that as many as possible will be present. This meeting is held in response to the call from the National Officers of the W. C. T. U. for the observance of the 12th and 13th of November as days of prayer for the Temperance work and workers; it will be a World's day of prayer.

There will also be a Children's Meeting Saturday afternoon at the Universalist church at half-past two, to which all the children and young people are invited. Rev. Mr. Fisher will deliver the address.

Sunday evening, a Union Temperance Meeting will be held at the North Church conducted by the pastors of the different churches. A collection will be taken at this meeting.

THE EASTERN'S SURPLUS EARNINGS.

Some interesting figures are printed by the Boston Advertiser relative to the probable income of the Eastern railroad from the Boston & Maine & Maine company for the past fiscal year, under the terms of the existing lease. The showing is as below:

Received from Boston & Maine Railroad for fixed charges for year ending Sept. 30, 1887	$862,046
For organization expenses	10,000
Proportion of surplus earning	436,000

To pay six per cent on Eastern common stock and the same rate on $599,000 of the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway stock, not owned by the Eastern company, would require $935,796, leaving a surplus of $33,002. Indeed, from the showing made, it appears that as much as 6 1-2 per cent could be paid on these two stocks, but the general sentiment of the directory favors only six per cent, and some of its members are inclined to advocate the payment of only four or five per cent. The total value of the sinking fund at the close of the current month will be something over $560,000, and under the present arrangement it increases about $120,000 per annum.

The annual statement of the trustees of the Eastern railroad to the railroad commissioners of Massachusetts in regard to their sinking fund shows that Nov. 27, 1886, it amounted to $440,223; received during the year, $155,904, making the total, Sept. 30, 1887, $596,127. Of this amount $323,135 was invested in railroad bonds, $38,437 in city bonds, $90,000 in secured notes, and $144,554 was on deposit at four per cent interest.

DEATH OF WM. G. PERRY.

William G. Perry, who was superintendent of the Amoskeag corporation in Manchester for several years at the time Hon. E. A. Straw was agent, died in Hampton on the 9th inst. He took up his residence in Manchester in 1857, and made that city his home until about five years ago, when he moved to Hampton, he being then in failing health. While in Manchester he was a representative from ward one in the lesislature, was a member of the board of aldermen in 1867 and 1868, and served as a member of the school board. Two sons now survive him, William A. Perry, who lives in Boston, and Fred G. Perry, of Hampton.

MISSIONARY CONVENTION.

A missionary convention is to be held in the Methodist church at East Eliot on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the 21st, 22d and 23d insts. On Monday evening an address will be delivered by Rev. O. S. Baketel of this city; on Tuesday evening Rev. W. S. Jones, presiding elder of the Portland district, will deliver a lecture; on Wednesday afternoon Miss Cushman, a returned missionary, will give an address, and on Wednesday evening Rev. Theodore Gerrish of Biddeford will lecture on "War Reminiscences."

Storer Relief Corps, No. 1, auxiliary to Storer Post, G. A. R., will give a literary and musical entertainment, and supper, at Grand Army hall this evening; the Music hall orchestra has been engaged. Admission (including supper) twenty cents; all are cordially invited.

Mr. Williams, the eminent Shakesperian reader who so delighted a select audience at Miss Morgan's school some weeks ago, will read in this city again on the evening of Thursday, Dec. 1st, under the auspices of the Young People's Association of the North Parish. At the former entertainment, admission was by invitation only; for the coming one, tickets will be sold to the public generally.

Market street, now that the cobble stones are buried under a smooth and hard surface, is becoming quite a popular place for the owners of fast horses to speed their animals on. The practice should be stopped; the street is an important one for business, and the horse racers should be confined to some other locality; they have no busines there.

The "Wolfe Tavern," as it was in good old times known, and later called the Merrimac house, on State street, Newburyport, was opened this week by W. E. Carter, well known as a successful manager of hotels at Rye beach. The Wolfe, under the new landlord, after its extensive repairs and improvements, will be an attractive place of resort in the good old city on the other side of the Merrimac.

Newburyport has done the proper thing in electing a man like Luther Dame as representative to the General Court. Mr. Dame is a native of Portsmouth, and son of the late Joseph Dame.

The Remick bridge, which carries the highway over the York Harbor & Beach railroad tracks in Rice's hollow at Kittery, is now open to public travel.

G. F. Putnam, Esq., of Kansas City, has been in town this week.

Miss Sarah Bean of Newington, teacher of the Plains school, is reported to be seriously ill with brain fever.

At the annual meeting of the Maine Eye & Ear Infirmary, in Portland on the 7th inst., Payson Tucker was elected first vice president.

Lieut. Comdr. Charles W. Tracey, U. S. N., and family, left town on Thursday last for Housedale, Pa., where they will pass the winter, their residence on Lincoln avenue remaining closed in the meantime.

The United States ship Saratoga arrived at Norfolk on the 7th from New York. The election being over in Virginia, the repairs upon the Saratoga will be less than was anticipated.

The coal schooner John E. Sanford, ashore at the entrance to Newburyport harbor, has been condemned.

The brick schooners Estella and Hattie Lewis, from this port; the Chilion, from York; the Sharon, from Cape Neddick, and the Susan Stetson, from Bangor with lumber, arrived at Boston on the 9th inst.

The Early Americans.

The early Americans were representatives of the stone age in most cases, although a few possessed the knowledge of metals. They were particularly clever stone workers, and the samples of their workmanship show them well versed in the arts of the potter. In clay molding they were also skillful. The textile arts were practiced, such as cotton and wool spinning and weaving. Cotton was extensively raised in Mexico and Yucatan, and two species of goats were acclimatized to Peru for the sake of their wool. —Boston Budget.

Sensibility of Thermometers.

The sensibility of thermometers varies greatly. If the capacity of the reservoir is large, compared with the bore of the tube, a slight change of temperature will materially affect the height of the mercurial column. If small, and the glass bulb is thin, the mercury contained in it will be more rapidly affected than if a large amount were to be acted upon. A cylindrical reservoir is better than a spherical one, because it exposes a larger surface.—Chicago News.

Interesting to Antiquarians.

The Russian Novosti states that some stones bearing Syrian inscriptions have been discovered in Semiretchinsk, and that M. Khvolson, corresponding member of the Academy of Sciences, has just written a monograph on those of them that have been deciphered. They are said to be the only Syrian inscriptions yet discovered outside Mesopotamia, and they may be traced to the Nestorians who traversed Central Asia and established themselves on the confines of China.—Home Journal.

French as She Is Pronounced.

I stopped yesterday to price some very beautiful pears which were exposed for sale upon a fruit stand.

"What sort are they?" I asked, "and how much do you charge for them?"

"Fifteen cents apiece," replied the vender, briefly. "They're the real duchy dangle 'em."

It took me until morning to make out that he meant the "Duchesse d'Angouleme"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

New Handkerchiefs in Paris.

A Paris correspondent tells about the new handkerchiefs the ladies are carrying there. The Princess de Sagan's favorite handkerchief is bordered with a garland of scarlet pinks; flowers and leaves embroidered in their natural colors. They are scented with the strong perfume extracted from the same flowers. The blonde Marquise de Grehfuhle has all of her handkerchiefs embroidered with the corn flower in all its variegated blue shades, and her perfume is the sweet scented clover. Pink bastiste, with white lilies of the valley worked on them, is the Duchess de Bragama's favorite handkerchief. The empress of Japan has ordered pale beige ones, worked with chrysanthemums of all existing colors. The widow's handkerchief is a pale lilac, worked with dark purple scabeus.—New York Sun.

I have no faith in medicines. My remedies are fasting and the warm bath. At the same time I have a higher opinion of the surgical profession than of any other —Napoleon.

New Anchor for Steamers.

Experiments have been made during the week in the harbor of Havre and on the Seine with a new cable anchor, which will bring to a standstill the largest steamer going at the greatest speed within a space of ten feet. Large steamers were subjected to the experiment, which in all cases proved successful, and the government commission present recommended the new anchor for use on government ships. This new anchor is described as a huge cloth parachute, anchor shaped, attached to the ship by cables, with a huge iron weight in the middle. This balloon shaped anchor resists the onward movement of ships with tremendous power, assuming very much the singular balloon or bucket shape of "old maid" flounders on the New England coast, which, by so doing when hooked, generally succeed in breaking the line.—Chicago Tribune.

The actual cost of the Imperieuse, one of the latest built British ironclads, was $3,801,625, exclusive of the cost of armament.

The preparations used by barbers are not more vile than much of the soap used for washing the head and hair. Rank with powerful chemicals or with an excess of alkali, they draw the natural oil from the hair, causing decay and baldness. The Ivory Soap, as Prof. Cornwall, of Princeton, says, "Is very well made. The alkali is so thoroughly combined, it can not injure any thing." Insist upon your barber using only Ivory Soap and water when he gives you a shampoo.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Secretary Whitney's Illness.

The New York Tribune of the 9th says: "Information was given out yesterday that Secretary Whitney's condition has really been one of serious illness for some time, but that he is considerably improved. He was afflicted with nervous headaches when he went to Lenox three or four weeks ago, which created such a pressure on his brain that he was completely unfitted for work. The headaches have left him within a week, but he is still weak and prostrated. He tried to take a horseback ride on Monday, but after being out ten minutes was obliged to return to the house. There is no prospect of his going to Washington before December 1st, and unless he improves rapidly will not be able to go that early."

"Victorian Poets." Revised and extended by a supplementary chapter to the fiftieth year of the period under review, by Edmund Clarence Stedman. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. Sold by M. Goodrich; price $2.25.

Mr. Stedman's "Victorian Poets" needs no introduction anywhere, in the world of letters. It's earlier editions have been eagerly and profitably read on either side of the Atlantic. The book has long since become a standard work in English literature. The thirteenth edition now appears, with a new preface. The new chapter added contains a supplementary review of seventy pages. A new copious index which will be found of especial service, is added.

To attempt, in a brief notice of this kind, anything like an adequate portrayal of the excellences of this work, would of course be a failure, at least in degree. The book has been conceded to be one of the very ablest examples of criticism in our literature. It is the result of a careful and catholic study of the writings of every poet of any considerable note who has been heard of in England during the past half century. Mr. Stedman in his prose writings is thorough, methodical and exact. In this volume there is presented to the student of whichever age or accomplishment a most comprehensive survey of the works of the English poets since 1835. Its value in an educational respect to the younger readers of our time is beyond measure. The welcome and generous commendation with which the earlier editions of this valuable publication were received is assurance that with its increased pages it will continue to maintain its high standard as an authority among readers, and will be found in every well selected library. It is of uniform style and binding of the author's "Poets of America," issued by the same publishing house in 1885.

Rev. Dr. A. P. Peabody, well-beloved of all Harvard men, has prepared a volume of "Personal Reminiscences" of Harvard college as it was sixty years ago. It will appear in January from the Ticknor Press.

Big Dinners.

Every day in this city thousand of persons eat too much at dinner, and, as a consequence, suffer from sour stomach, heartburn, indigestion, dyspepsia, etc. If these will take just one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after eating, they will be surprised by the entire absence of those unpleasant feelings which daily distress them, and may continue in their improper course of eating big dinners without fear. Only one little pill, remember.

How a Dying Child Was Saved!

CICERO, HAMILTON CO., IND., Sept. 19, 1887.—The following is a true account of what your S. S. S. has done for our little daughter, Hazel, now four years old. When 12 months old a lump appeared on her heel, which slowly grew larger. Two family physicians pronounced it a bone disease caused by a piece of broken glass or needle, but failed to bring anything to light. The child became feebler all the time, seeming to lose the use of her leg, and finally quit walking entirely. The middle finger and thumb of either hand became enlarged, the flesh becoming hard. The hip joints became involved, so that when seventeen months old she could not stand, having lost the use of leg and arm. Partial curvature of the spine also followed. The nervous system was wrecked, muscles contracted, and there was general wasting of flesh and muscle. At eighteen months of age she was placed under the treatment of a prominent physician of Boston, Mass., but at the end of ten months she had declined to such a degree that she was in a dying condition. This was in April, 1886. We took the child away not knowing what to do. In this dreadful dilemma we were over-persuaded by friends to try "one bottle" of Swift's Specific, which we did, and before it had all been taken we saw a change for the better in her symptoms. We kept it up, and have done so to this day, and will keep it up, if the Lord wills, for many days to come, for it has brought our dying Hazel to life, to vigor, to strength and health again. The ashen hue of her cheeks has changed to a rosy tint. She is able to walk anywhere, her languor and melancholy have passed away, and she is now a blithe, cheerful, happy romping child. Should you wish to increase your testimonials of proof of the virtue of S. S. S., our names and what we have said is but a portion of what we owe to you, should you wish to use them.

Kindly yours,

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

A Climatic Peculiarity.

A correspondent of an eastern paper points out the fact that at Lucerne, in the southern part of this state, a high range of thermometer—he puts it at 116—can be endured even by the workers in the field without a great deal of inconvenience. He attributes the fact to the movement of the coast winds, and the cool nights which tend so much to recuperation. This condition of the atmosphere is not peculiar to Lucerne and southern California. It is common also to central and a part of upper California. It is a well established fact that in this state 90 degs. of heat does not cause a great deal of personal discomfort. It can be endured much more easily than 76 degs. at the east. The higher range with us is not attended with wilted collars, nor crushed wristbands, except in the case of violent exertion. The reason is not exclusively the prevalence of coast winds, but the dryness of the atmosphere. The heat absorbed by the system at once radiates in all directions. At the east, in consequence of the greater moisture of the atmosphere, the heat is retained. Californians have been known to flee precipitately from New York with a thermometrical range of from 76 to 80 degs., though 10 degs. more would not render them uncomfortable in the southern country, or the Sacramento or San Joaquin valleys. The radiation outward of the heat is also supposed to account for the absence of sunstroke, and of rabies among dogs.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Wise Mercantile Maxims.

A thoroughly honest clerk can always command a better salary than one of equivocal habits.

He who has traded out his neighbor's good opinion is pretty sure to die a poor man, however high the price for which he sold it.

When business is attended with minuteness of detail, strict punctuality, it runs evenly, without jar or friction, and insures success.

It is statistical truth that no single cause leads to more disasters than the use of liquors, not necessarily through drunkenness, but the enfeebling of the judgment.

In dress, be neat and unobtrusive. The perfection of dress is to be so perfectly in keeping with your occupation that the attention of an observer is not directed to it at all.

Vainly shall a man hope to live and thrive by buying and selling after his neighbors and customers have learned by sad experience that his word is not reliable, that his representations of the cost or quality of his wares are not to be trusted.

Fuming and fretting in and around a store, finding fault with clerks and employes, denotes a lack of order and business tact, and exposes the merchant to ridicule and unpleasant comments from those from whom he should have respect and confidence.—New York Mail and Express.

Nellie Grant's Little Daughter.

Nellie Grant's daughter, little Vivian Sartoris, is a beautiful child. Playing on the beach at Long Branch with her maid the other day, she was a picture of attractive childhood, delicate, quick and intelligently American, rather than robustly English. She is not in the least like her father, but inherits her mother's eyes, brunette complexion and shapely hands, with a hint of Gen. Grant about the forehead and rather prominent ears. Mrs. Sartoris dresses her with great taste, and the child is an unaffected, happy creature. A lady with two children a little younger than Vivian, chubby creatures both, passed near the child and said something to her little people which evidently interested them very much. The tots looked at each other a minute, then ran up to Gen. Grant's granddaughter and emptied the treasured stones and shells they had picked up in their walk into a dainty straw basket that she carried. They trotted away again without saying a word.—New York Mail and Express.

The Real Hero.

"I never could understand how the newspapers or general public could applaud a desperado who announces his intention of dying with 'his boots on,'" remarked a physician the other day. "A man who calmly faces death from an incurable disease, while he goes about his usual occupation or is cheerful at home, is the one to admire. I have such a patient now. He knows there is no hope, yet he is almost indifferent to his fate. It is difficult to fully appreciate such heroic conduct. His calmness will have one good effect. It will serve to prolong his life. It is even as good as medicine for him."—Philadelphia Call.

A Queer Little Girl from Siam.

A real Yahoo girl is at present on view in the panopticum (dime museum) at Cologne-on-the-Rhine, Germany. It is a little "Krao" girl from Laos, in Siam. Her skin, even that of the face, is covered with hair half an inch to an inch in length, except on the soles of the feet, the elbows, and insides of the hands. She has backentaschen and thirteen dorsal vertebræ instead of twelve. In every other respect it is like a human being with a common amount of intelligence and feeling. The Kraos are a Siamese tribe, all of them, it seems, possessing the same peculiarities as this little girl.—Chicago News.

Kitty Sternly Rebuked.

Little Margery, playing with her kitten, got a rather severe scratch from the animal. Her lip trembled for an instant, and then she assumed the commanding attitude and expression that her mother had assumed under somewhat similar circumstances toward her, and, extending her hand, said sternly:

"Titty, dive me dat pin!"—Boston Transcript.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John F. Finly (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures mankind. I refer to Druggist John F. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the frontal sinuses, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one BOTTLE CATARRHAL SOLVENT and an IMPROVED INHALER; price, $1.

When Your Nerves Bother You, Invigorate them. When your night's repose is unsound or unrefreshing, your appetite jaded or capricious, when child noises cause you to start, and annoyances of slight moment abnormally worry you, know these things, viz.: 1st, that your nerves are weak; 2d, that you need a tonic; 3d, that its name is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the prompteest, safest, most popular article of its class. The nerves are susceptible of invigoration only by promoting an increase of vigor in the processes of digestion and invigoration. Narcotics and sedatives have their utility, but in the main, and if their use be continued, they are unsafe. A wineglass of the Bitters before retiring, and a repetition of the same during the day before or after meals, is far more likely to confer health-yielding sleep than repeated doses of an opiate. Dyspepsia, debility, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, fever and ague, and other malarial complaints, are always dominated and subdued by it.

Dress-reform is receiving attention in Scandinavia. Models of dresses were shown at the Swedish Art exhibition by a Stockholm society, which also offered a prize for the best hygienic boot. Nine shoemakers competed. All the doctors in Sweden have been asked for their support, and several publications are enlisted in the reform.

A single bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will establish the merits of this medicine as a blood purifier. Many thousands of people are yearly cured of chronic diseases by the faithful use of this remedy. It is unequalled for the cure of scrofula.

Senorita Matilde Montoya is the first Mexican girl to become a doctor. A committee of young men of the city of Mexico got up a bull-fight in her honor, and devoted the proceeds to the purchase of books and instruments for her. A country that is civilized enough to have women doctors ought to abandon bull-fights.

Bankers,

Doctors, lawyers, carpenters, druggists, engineers, mechanics, in fact we have recommendations from people in all stations in life, testifying to the wonderful cures that Sulphur Bitters have effected. Send for testimonials. See another column.

Miss Murfree (Charles Egbert Craddock) will spend most of the winter in Boston.

Dyspepsia in its worst forms will yield to the use of Carter's Little Nerve Pills, aided by Carter's Little Liver Pills. They not only relieve present distress but strengthen the stomach and digestive apparatus.

Miss Bradley, a niece of Bishop Neely of Portland, Me., has won a diploma from the famous Paris School of Medicine, passing a brilliant examination and receiving the maximum mark.

There are many forms of nervous debility in men that yield to the use of Carter's Iron Pills. Those who are troubled with nervous weakness, night sweats, etc., should try them.

A severe shock of earthquake was felt in Corinth, Greece, on the 9th inst.

Nov. 9th was the 15th anniversary of Boston's big fire.

Avoid the harsh, irritating, griping compounds so often sold as purgative medicine, and correct the irregularities of the bowels by the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. They are invaluable as a family medicine.

—Prohibitionist (to saloon keeper) — "I wish I could convince you, my friend, that liquor inflicts untold misery upon countless thousands; that water, pure cold water, is what we all should drink; that—" Saloon keeper (convinced) — "You are right, sir, water is a good thing. (To bartender) — Kelly, pour about four more gallons of water into that barrel of whiskey."

—Modesty is not one of Pat Sheedy's weaknesses, evidently. Of the heir apparent to the British throne he writes to a friend in this country: "Me and the prince get along first-class."

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

The Anarchist Murderers Hanged.

Gov. Oglesby on Thursday night announced his decision in the cases of the condemned murderers, commuting to imprisonment for life the sentences of Samuel Fielden and Michael Schwab, and declining to interfere with the course of the law in the cases of August Spies, Adolph Fischer, George Engel, Albert R. Parsons and Louis Lingg.

Of the five depraved and ferocious ruffians devoted to the gallows, one escaped; Louis Lingg, the bomb maker, who partially blew his head to pieces with a fulminating cap on the morning of the 10th, died about three o'clock in the afternoon of that day, after hours of as horrible agony as he aided to inflict on so many others.

The friends of the murderers played their last card on Friday morning, in the shape of an appeal to Gov. Oglesby for a stay of execution for thirty days, on the ground that exculpating evidence had been discovered. The appeal was disregarded, as was proper.

The condemned men all ate heartily at breakfast, and were served with a lunch at about quarter past eleven o'clock. At 11:46 the sheriff finished reading the death warrants, and three minutes later the march from the cage to the gallows commenced. The drop fell at 11:54, and at 12:03 the four men had ceased to live. They all faced their fate with unflinching bravery, and with very little appearance of bravado, up to the very last. Extraordinary measures of precaution were taken by the police authorities, but there was no attempt at disturbance.

A Massachusetts railroad president has gained a new railway experience in the wild west. He experienced two railroad accidents and one attack of brigands. Which such training he would be somewhat qualified to stand the siege of a session of the New Hampshire legislature.

Lovering does not seem to have been a great favorite with the democrats, and very many of the party make no scruple of rejoicing at his defeat. Of course with endorsements from the president and Ben Butler there was no show for an election. But all Lovering wanted was the endorsement of the nomination, that he might be appointed United States marshal next month.

A Washington despatch says "there will be a large surplus of officers for the new cruiser Chicago. The desire for this detail seems very prevalent among officers of the navy. This vessel, when completed, will be the most formidable in the United States navy. It is therefore expected that the duty to which it will be assigned will be of a pleasant character. It will be a show cruiser, and is therefore likely to be sent to the European station. Already the applicants for assignment to the Chicago more than double the number of her detail. There is an evident desire on the part of officers generally to forsake as soon as possible the rapidly decaying wooden war ships which did service in the fifties."

A Good Thing.

President Cleveland on the 9th inst. issued a proclamation announcing the treaty between the United States and the Hawaiian Islands, by which the latter practically cede Pearl River harbor, in the island of Oahu, to the United States, for a naval station. The clause of the treaty relating to this is as follows:

Art. 2. His majesty the king of the Hawaiian Islands grants to the government of the United States the exclusive right to enter the harbor of Pearl River, in the island of Oahu, and to establish and maintain there a coaling and repair station for the use of vessels of the United States, and to that end the United States may improve the entrance to said harbor and do all other things needful to the purpose aforesaid.

This concession is of vast importance. The harbor of Pearl river is of wide extent, perfectly sheltered, easy of access yet capable of being easily defended; and its permanent possession by our government gives us a point of vantage in the Pacific which may at any time prove of inestimable value.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

A PROCLAMATION

For a Day of Thanksgiving and Praise, By His Excellency, Charles H. Sawyer, Governor.

It is an honored custom which has come down to us from the Pilgrim Fathers to observe annually a day specially set apart for thankful acknowledgment of the goodness and mercy of God.

In accordance with this venerated custom, with the advice of the Council, I do hereby appoint Thursday, November 24th instant, as a day of thanksgiving and praise; and I recommend to the people of this state that they forego their usual work and occupations, and assemble in their accustomed places of worship and offer prayer and praise to the Supreme Ruler for the numberless blessings that he has bestowed upon us; for the bountiful harvest, and for the great measure of peace and plenty, health and happiness, that we enjoy as a free and independent people.

And when gathered in our homes let us not forget to contribute to make glad the hearts of the homeless and the destitute, and those whom our bounty may cheer, to the end that all may rejoice in the recurrence of this festal day.

Given at the Council Chamber in Concord, this first day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and twelfth.

CHARLES H. SAWYER.

By His Excellency the Governor, with advice of the Council. A. B. THOMPSON, Secretary of State.

The schooner Mary Willey, Williams master, arrived in the lower harbor from Bangor on the evening of the 10th inst., and came up to the wharf on the 11th. She brought 60,000 feet of long lumber, 250,000 shingles and twenty tons of slate to John H. Broughton.

The three-masted schooner Maggie J. Smith, from Newport News, Va., for this port with 1148 tons of coal, went ashore on the evening of the 18th., two miles south of Narragansett Pier, R. I., and became a total loss. Crew saved by the life saving men.

The new steam tug Cocheco, belonging to parties in Dover, arrived at this port on Thursday afternoon last from Bath, Me., where she was built, making the run around in about nine hours. She is quite a large boat, has a powerful engine and good coal room, and is fitted with a powerful steam pump to be used in wrecking if required.

New York city was visited by a heavy snow squall on Friday.

Chronic Catarrh

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with increased secretion. Thus catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that often its presence is not suspected till it has obtained a firm hold on its victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is exceedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the diseased membrane, and thus soon cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I am happy to state that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. E. GRAY, 1029 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, Ohio.

USE

Horsford's

BREAD PREPARATION,

IF YOU WANT

Delicious Biscuit, Cakes, Etc., that can be eaten hot without detriment.

The acid phosphate in this preparation supplies the vital phosphates essential to the system, and assists digestion. No other baking powder does this.

Dr. F. L. Benedict, of Portsmouth, says:

"I am satisfied that Horsford's Bread Preparation does increase the nutritive value of flour, and renders the bread more digestible. Brain workers especially are greatly indebted to you for this valuable preparation."

Dr. John J. Berry, of Portsmouth, says:

"Horsford's Bread Preparation has come under my observation, and I am familiar with the testimonials of its efficiency submitted. If it really supplies to the blood and tissues the necessary salts as claimed, it is worthy of commendation and general use."

Dr. H. F. Clark, of Portsmouth, says:

"We consider Horsford's Bread Preparation far superior to any baking powder in use, as it supplies the phosphates that are lost in making fine flour. We recommend it to all who appreciate good bread, and want the best."

Dr. S. C. Whittier, of Portsmouth, says:

"The theory of combining the phosphates in Horsford's Bread Preparation with the flour, thereby producing a flour similar to that of our grandfathers' days, is a correct one, and should be endorsed by every practitioner, in the interest of good health.

Dr. H. R. Parker, of Dover, says:

"Endorsing the theory, and owing to the presence of the phosphates therein, I give the preference to Horsford's Bread Preparation over all others for making bread."

Dr. J. H. Wheeler, of Dover, says:

"From what is known of the loss in phosphates in milling wheat, I am of the opinion that Horsford's Bread Preparation supplies a want which is not supplied by any other preparation, and is, therefore, in many cases conducive to health."

Dr. A. J. Young, of Dover, says:

"The dentist is often asked why the teeth do not last as long as the rest of the body. There is no doubt that in separating the coarse, outer portion of the grain from the fine flour, the necessary tooth and bone nutritives are sacrificed, and thus the most essential life-sustaining elements which make and feed the bones, muscles and teeth, are lost. Nature never intended this, but science comes to the rescue. In a great measure, Horsford's Bread Preparation supplies the deficiency by increasing the nutritive value of fine flour."

Dr. L. Chesley, of Exeter, says:

"I believe Prof. Horsford's baking powder a superior preparation, and worthy of universal patronage. We have long used it."

Dr. Wm. G. Perry, of Exeter, says:

"I have not tested practically Horsford's Bread Preparation, though intending so to do. Theoretically I have no doubt that it as all that is claimed for it."

Dr. A. H. Varney, of South Newmarket, says:

"My wife has used Horsford's Bread Preparation for several years with excellent results. It far excels any other baking powder she ever used. I can recommend it to all lovers of good and healthful food."

Dr. Charles A. Morse, of Newmarket, says:

"Horsford's Bread Preparation is undoubtedly the best baking powder in the market. Years of observation and experience have taught me this."

Dr. J. Low Elkins, of Newmarket, says:

"Horsford's Bread Preparation is scientifically correct, and must supply a long needed addition to the economy of bread making."

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS.

There will be a Ladies' Temperance Prayer meeting at the North Chapel on Middle street, Saturday morning at ten o'clock, continuing one hour; it is hoped that as many as possible will be present. This meeting is held in response to the call from the National Officers of the W. C. T. U. for the observance of the 12th and 13th of November as days of prayer for the Temperance work and workers; it will be a World's day of prayer.

There will also be a Children's Meeting Saturday afternoon at the Universalist church at half-past two, to which all the children and young people are invited. Rev. Mr. Fisher will deliver the address.

Sunday evening, a Union Temperance Meeting will be held at the North Church conducted by the pastors of the different churches. A collection will be taken at this meeting.

WRECK OF THE MYSTERY.

The schooner Mystery, of 82.13 tons register, built at Charleston, S. C., in 1855, owned by parties in Kittery, and hailing from this port, was totally wrecked on Jerry's point, Newcastle, on the night of the 10th inst.

The Mystery arrived at Boston on the 6th inst. with a load of bricks from York, and was on her return to this port, the weather being thick and the wind blowing a gale, when she struck on the rocks off the point, and the heavy sea soon knocked her to pieces.

The crew consisted of three persons, Capt. Hubert L. Baker of York, and John Frank Lawry and John A. Mace of Kittery Point. The wreck was discovered about 7:30 o'clock Friday morning by Charles W. Folsom and Albert W. Hanscom of this city, two workmen engaged on the life-saving station at Jerry's point, who first noticed a dog acting very strangely on the beach, and then saw some distance out in the surf a lot of floating wreck stuff, to which two men were lashed; one apparently dead and the other alive. Proceeding with all speed to Newcastle they procured the aid of George W. Davidson, and in his dory the three brave men pulled to the wreck, the venture being hazardous from the roughness of the sea and the quantity of floating driftwood. After repeated attempts they succeeded in getting the living man from the wreck, and took him to Mr. John Albee's house, where he was restored to partial consciousness, and said he was Capt. Baker, the dead body still lashed to the wreck being that of Mr. Lawry; the other man, Mr. Mace, he said was washed overboard soon after the vessel struck. In his dazed condition the captain was not sure as to the time the disaster occurred, at one time placing it between eight and nine o'clock in the evening, and again at about eleven o'clock, or midnight. The dead body of Mr. Lawry was taken from the wreck about an hour after the captain's rescue, by parties from Newcastle.

The old schooner went all to pieces almost immediately on striking, and on Friday forenoon was but a tangled mass of rubbish and old ropes, floating level with the water, about fifty yards from shore, and apparently held there by her anchors. The captain's trunk was washed ashore during the forenoon, containing his clothes and $112 in money.

Mr. Lawry was about twenty-two years old, and has a wife and child living at Kittery Point. Mr. Mace was aged about twenty-five years, and has a wife and two children living at the Point. He was a member of the life-saving crew at Rye beach two years ago, and was we are informed an applicant for a position on the crew of the new station at Jerry's point, within a few hundred feet of which the Mystery went to pieces; he was a powerful young fellow, and a cool-headed, brave and skillful surfman. Capt. Baker, though greatly exhausted by the exposure and the terrible strain on his nerves for so many hours, will come out all right.

Late Friday afternoon the very pleasant intelligence was brought to this city from Kittery Point that Mr. Mace had arrived home, severely bruised and very sore, having walked from York beach, to which point he had drifted on a piece of floating wreck! Considering the state of the wind and sea on Thursday night, the distance from Jerry's point to York beach, and the broken water all along the coast in such weather as then prevailed, it seems incredible that a man could have made such a trip. But our informant insisted that Mr. Mace had reached home, safe if not sound, in which case his preservation is a remarkable one, wherever he may have landed.

BEAUTIFUL SNOW.

There was a slight snow-squall on Friday morning, lasting only a few minutes, and hardly extensive enough to be counted "the first snow."

The first fall of snow for several years past has been as follows: In 1882, Nov. 16th; in 1883, on the same date, Nov. 16th; in 1884, Oct. 18th; in 1885, a trifling fall on Oct. 30th, the next one, on Nov. 25th, covering the ground to the depth of several inches; in 1886, Nov. 13th.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

A called meeting of the common council was held on Thursday evening for the purpose of considering an ordinance providing for a loan of $30,000 for the purchase of a suitable lot and the erection of a proper building for a school house. After some discussion of the bill on its merits, the matter was referred to the committee on school houses, to report.

"What think ye of Christ?" will be the question in the Universalist church to-morrow. The subject may be looked at in connection with some modern sins. No evening service. Mass-meeting at the North church in the evening.

Mr. John B. Downs on Friday bought of Mr. Benj. Russell the house corner of Hancock and Water streets, and will occupy it as a residence.

The Eliot & Dover bridge, after being closed several weeks for repairs, has been reopened to the public. It has in the interim been replanked and otherwise put in good condition.

Damon Lodge, Knights of Pythias, will give a social assembly in Mechanics' hall on Friday evening, the 18th inst.; music by the Music hall orchestra.

The work of rebuilding bridges along the line of the Boston & Maine railroad between Exeter and Kennebunk, and widening them for double tracks, is fast being pushed. Beyond a doubt the laying of the double track will be extended from West Biddeford to Salmon Falls next summer.

The new Jones brewery building has been roofed in; work on the tower, which is to be forty feet higher than the main building, has been suspended for the winter, and the opening roofed over.

Twenty young people went from this city to Kittery on Thursday evening last in a barge, and enough others in a four-seated team and several single teams to raise the number to thirty-five, to attend the first dance of the season given by Adams & Wood in Trefethen hall. There was a large attendance and a pleasant time, and the result was so satisfactory that the managers have decided to give a series of similar assemblies through the winter.

One of the buildings of the Eldredge brewery is being raised, and is to have a tower which will rise 125 feet from the ground.

A Boston paper says it is probable that the bronze equestrian statue of Fitz John Porter in this city, erected through a legacy left by R. H. Eddy of Boston, will if completed be unveiled on the 1st of July, 1888, the anniversary of the battle of Malvern hill.

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

SOME FAMOUS OLD TREES.

A List of the Big Trees Found in Various Parts of England—Noted Specimens.

Eden hall, the residence of the late Sir Richard Musgrove, is famed for several memorable trees. The finest are two remarkable specimens of cedars of Lebanon, supposed to be 270 years old. The trees are planted as a pair and have a spread of 105 feet diameter, with great bushy heads, and are still quite healthy and sound.

Brougham hall, the residence of Lord Brougham and Vaux, is notable for a famous old avenue of oaks and walnut. Originally it was formed of two rows of oaks and one of walnut. Only two walnut trees now remain, but the oaks are still nearly intact and sound, healthy trees. This avenue was planted as an approach to the fine old castle, and must date from an early period, as they are all shown in full growth on some very old plans of the castle grounds. One oak girths sixteen feet, with at least twenty feet of a straight bole, and all are about sixty feet high.

Dalemain, the residence of Squire Hasell, has avenue oaks which form one of the sights of Cumberland. They are planted in two distinct avenues, the first as you approach the hall from Penrith and the second by the private road from Dacie hall and church. On either road you may drive through an avenue of oaks, each avenue about a mile long.

Greystoke castle, the residence of H. C. Howard, Esq., is surrounded by fine plantations, which were formed in 1746 by the into duke of Norfolk. Owing to their high elevation these have not attained remarkable dimensions, but they are decidedly remarkable for the great improvement they have made in the landscape of the district and for their forest value. A remarkable specimen of the silver fir (abies pectinata) stands near the castle, which is ninety-seven feet high and measures fifteen and a half feet girth. It has a fine tapering habit, and is still a sound, healthy tree.

Lowther castle, the residence of the historic family of Lowther, is famed for its arboricultural gems of antiquity. The oaks can safely be registered as one of the "county lions," particularly those which are dotted over that portion of the park called the Elysian field, all being noble specimens and several supposed to be 1,000 years old. They show their antiquity by having hollow trunks, but still show good heads of foliage.

The common ash is represented at Lowther by two venerable trees, now by reason of their age hoary with antiquity. They are very appropriately called Adam and Eve. They are supposed to be about 800 years old. Their girth is twenty-two feet four inches and twenty-one feet seven inches respectively.

Edmond Castle, the residence of Reginald Graham, Esq., has many noble trees, prominent being the Lebanon cedars planted by the late F. H. Graham, Esq., Stone house, Hayton, the residence of Gen. Sir John Ross, has some interesting trees. One is a fine specimen of the evergreen oak, the finest in the country. Brayton hall, the residence of Sir Wilfrid Lawson, possesses some fine trees. Three remarkably formed larch trees grow on the lawn, and are supposed to have been of the original trees introduced into this county. All are about fifty feet high, with fine sound boles and beautiful rough ribbed bark. There also is a fern leaved beech about sixty-three feet high; girth nine feet two inches, and 192 circumference of spread in splendid foliage. It is of a fine bushy pyramidal form. This is the largest and best specimen in the country.

Carby castle, the residence of P. J. C. Howard, Esq., is famous for its romantic position and the beautiful sylvan views beside the banks of the Eden. The plantations were formed by Thomas Howard, Esq., about 1720, and he formed them principally of Scotch pine and larch. These have attained maturity, and the greater portion have been cut. The old oak, elm, and sycamore that remain are evidently of a much older date.

Naworth castle, the residence of the Earl of Carlisle, was famed in history as the home of the border chief "Belted Will," who flourished about the year 1560. A fine old specimen of the common yew, sound and healthy, still remains close to the castle, which is mentioned in the records of the period of 1560 as a fully developed tree, and according to which it is safe to presume that this tree is at least 500 years old. That the the tree, after so many centuries of growth, should still be in the greatest health and vigor is certainly remarkable. —Gardener's Chronicle.

Wretched and Miserable Homes.

It is a constant subject of inquiry why there are so many deserted wives in our city; why so many men, when trouble overtakes them, run away from their homes, leaving the burden of toil and sorrow to fall upon the wife and mother; why it is that so many men get drunk, neglect their wives, neglect their children, making their homes wretched and miserable when those homes should be as they are intended to be, spots of earthly paradise? The answer will be found in the disposition to separate families, young children being sent to the west, a sick child or a sick father to the hospital, all resulting from the overcrowded dwellings of the masses and in the street influences so destructive to the tender associations of the home. Persons so reared are ill fitted to assume the responsibilities of married life, and when such duties come to them know little of what is required of them. A poor home is better than no home, and poor nursing at home is more to be desired for the individual and the community than the most skillful nursing in the hospital.—Physician in New York Tribune.

"Mamma," was the criticism of a very young gentleman at a rendering of Wagner music during a Philharmonic concert, "it sounds just as if they were tearing cotton cloth!"—The Epoch.

When Your Nerves Bother You, Invigorate them. When your night's repose is unsound or unrefreshing, your appetite jaded or capricious, when slight noises cause you to start, and annoyances of slight moment abnormally worry you, know these things, viz.: 1st, that your nerves are weak; 2d, that you need a tonic; 3d, that its name is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the promptest, safest, most popular article of its class. The nerves are susceptible of invigoration only by promoting an increase of vigor in the processes of digestion and invigoration. Narcotics and sedatives have their utility, but in the main, and if their use be continued, they are unsafe. A wineglass of the Bitters before retiring, and a repetition of the same during the day before or after meals, is far more likely to confer health-yielding sleep than repeated doses of an opiate. Dyspepsia, debility, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, fever and ague, and other malarial complaints, are always dominated and subdued by it.

—Poots: "I saw Robinson was getting a pretty big load on, and spending his money right and left, so I asked him to lend me $20 just to save what I could for him, don't you see." Dunkly: "And did he lend you the money?" "Oh, yes." "Heavens! he must have had a load on."

Bankers,

Doctors, lawyers, carpenters, druggists, engineers, mechanics, in fact we have recommendations from people in all stations in life, testifying to the wonderful cures that Sulphur Bitters have effected. Send for testimonials. See another column.

—Sister Clara (practicing at the piano): "Wasn't that young Mr. Featherly, Bobby, who spoke to you on the street just now?" Bobby: "Yep, he's goin' home to dinner." Sister Clara (simulating indifference): "Did he have anything particular to say?" Bobby: "He asked me if that was the piano tuner in the parlor."

Thin hair thickened, baldness cured, and grey hair made to return to its youthful color by the use of Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer.

—Omaha man—"As your first baby is a boy I suppose you have the privilege of naming it?" Young father—"Yes sir-ee. I wouldn't let any one else name that sherub." "Have you thought of a good name for him yet?" "Dozens of 'em; splendid names; just the thing; but they won't any of them do." "Why not?" "My wife won't have 'em."

If people, troubled with colds, will take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral before going to church, they will avoid coughing. The Pectoral soothes and heals the irritated tissues, and controls all disposition to cough.

—Stranger in Kansas drug store—"I want to get fifty cents' worth of calomel." Proprietor — "Fifty cents of what?" "Calomel." "What is calomel?" "Don't you know? What sort of a place are you keeping, anyhow?" "This is a drug store, and if you want anything don't sling around any fancy names. Is it a pint or a half pint you're after."

Palpitation of the heart, nervous headache, cold hands and feet, pain in the back, and other forms of weakness are relieved by Carter's Iron Pills, made specially for the blood, nerves and complexion.

The republicans of Nashua ask a recount of the votes cast at the late election, when their candidate for mayor was defeated by eight votes.

Business Chances.

Chances for business are numerous but a man suffering from backache, kidney diseases or sore lungs wants instant relief. The Hop Plaster affords immediate and lasting relief for any kind of pain or soreness. Twenty-five cents or five for $1.

The æsthetic wave seem to flourish and continue to roll, under the management of Oscar Wilde; and under the management of every person Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will have the same success.

In Littleton, on the 10th inst., a bobbin factory, planing mill and carpenter shop, stanchion factory, tannery, two store-houses and a double tenement, were burned. All the buildings belonged to the Saranac Glove Co., whose loss is $30,000; insurance $11,300. Other losses $3800; no insurance.

Only a Step.

When catarrh has progressed to a certain extent it is a step to that terribly fatal disease, consumption. If you have catarrh, even slightly, it is a terrible mistake to allow it to continue its course unchecked. If you will only read, you will find conclusive reasons why you should take Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, in the statements of many people who have been completely cured of this disease in its most severe forms. Send for book containing abundant evidence to C. I. Hood & Co., proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla, Lowell, Mass.

Baker Brothers' store in Kingston was entered by burglars on the night of Nov. 11th, and a small sum of money and a lot of underwear taken. The safe was blown open, breaking the windows and arousing people living near by, the noise causing the thieves to leave without taking anything from the safe.

Bound to Head Off Hill.

It is said that since the election Mr. Cleveland has determined to accept the advice of some of the democratic leaders, and that he will discard his pretended hobby of civil service reform and will mount the old democratic war-horse of spoils renown. He is assured that unless he does this he is not likely to succeed. The result in Maryland and New York has inclined him to a change of base in this respect.

Naval Intelligence.

Lieut. S. H. May has been ordered to temporary duty in the bureau of ordnance; Lieut. James M. Helm to the Saratoga; Lieut. J. B. Milton to the Ossipee; Lieut. George T. Emmons and Ensign A. W. Dodd to examination for promotion; Medical Director George Peck as a member of the board of medical examiners, Washington; Asst. Engr. C. E. Manning to duty in the bureau of steam engineering.

Lieut. Comdr. W. H. Parker has been detached from the hydrographic office and ordered to the Portsmouth; Lieut. H. L. Tremain from the Portsmouth, and placed on waiting orders; Lieut. F. W. Coffin from duty as inspector of steel at Pittsburg, and ordered to the Albatross; Lieut. Dewitt Coffman and Ensigns W. B. Fletcher and Marbury Johnson from coast survey duty, and placed on waiting orders; Ensigns H. P. Jones, Jr., and Henry A. Field from the coast survey, and ordered to the Nipsic; Ensign H. E. Parmenter from the coast survey, and ordered to the Saratoga; Ensign H. B. Wilson from the Saratoga, and ordered to the hydrographic office, Philadelphia; Pay Inspector L. J. Billings from the bureau of provisions and clothing, and granted six months leave of absence; Passed Asst. Engr. H. N. Stevenson from the coast survey steamer Patterson, and placed on waiting orders; Cadet S. R. Arnold from the Marion, and ordered to the Boston.

Capt. R. L. Mead, U. S. M. C., has been ordered to duty at the Boston marine barracks, relieving Capt. George C. Reid, who will proceed to duty at the marine barracks in Washington.

The U. S. S. Alliance arrived at Santos on the 7th inst.

A quarrel between Secretary Lamar and Land Commissioner Sparks is announced, the secretary having announced to the president and the commissioner that unless Sparks retires or is retired, he (the secretary) will leave the cabinet. It is considered certain that Asst. Commissioner Stockstager or George W. Julian will succeed Sparks.

Boston tax-payers who have become disgusted with the utter extravagance and profligacy of the democratic city government are looking around to find a strong candidate in opposition to O'Brien. The trouble is, the West End horse railroad probably wants a city government like the present, where the control can be easily assured.

THE STATE TAX APPORTIONMENT.

Under the new apportionment bill the several counties will pay their proportion on each $1000 of the State tax as follows: Rockingham, $129.31; Strafford, $109.75; Carroll, $29.86; Belknap, $45.58; Merrimack, $148 32; Hillsboro, $275.61; Cheshire, $98.38; Sullivan, $44; Grafton, $85.19; Coos, $33.94.

The new iron bridge erected by the town of Newmarket to replace the old one carried away by last spring's flood, was opened for the passage of teams on Tuesday of last week, and public travel through the mill yard ceased that evening. The Newmarket Manufacturing Co. have presented the town with a little bill for some $860, for damages resulting from the use of their yard and bridge as a public highway during the past three months.

Lewis E. Staples has laid out a small lot of Ladies' and Misses' Winter Cloaks to sell at five dollars a garment. They are broken lines he will not have again. It might be an advantage to see them.

Mr. Searles, who married the rich Widow Hopkins, giving his youthful heart of fifty-five summers for the widow sweet and sixty with a little boot of twenty-five or so millions to keep away the wolf from the door of the house in the Berkshire hills, is described as an architect. An architect, as we understand it, is the man who permits another to build just such a house as the drawer of plans would like to see erected. Mr. Searles comes later. He orders and arrays the interior decorations for which the modern mansion is noted, whether hideous or tasteful that—depends. Mr. Searles however is an architect of his fortunes. In fact he has builded better than he knew. This last phrase is not exactly our own, and might have a slight odor of the shop about it. But we think it comes in right, all the same.

Catarrh in the Head

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with increased secretion. This catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that often its presence is not suspected till it has obtained a firm hold on its victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is exceedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the diseased membrane, and thus soon cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I am happy to state that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GINN, 1629 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, Ohio.

A GOOD THING.

The Portsmouth Seaman's Friend Society for a long time, up to a few years ago, maintained a Seaman's Home, including a restaurant where excellent and abundant meals were served at low prices to transient callers, and a pleasant reading room, in a building near the foot of State street; this institution was largely patronized by sea and river men, and also disposed of large quantities of cooked food at cheap rates to outside parties; and that its benefits were large in proportion to the outlay, none who looked into its workings could doubt. Since its dis-continuance there has been no similar establishment in the city, and we are glad to learn that it is to be revived, on a more extensive scale and with better accommodations. A suitable location has been secured on Market street, and all that is needed to assure its prompt re-opening is sufficient pecuniary aid from the public to permit of needed repairs and alterations in the premises; this aid should be forthcoming at once—it is a chance to put a little money where it will do much good.

UNION TEMPERANCE MEETING.

A union temperance prayer meeting was held in the North church on Sunday evening, in response to the call of the national officers of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union for the observance of the 13th of November as a day of prayer for temperance work and workers throughout the world. The church was filled, all the churches of the city omitting their evening services, and the several pastors being present. The exercises were earnest and interested, all the clergymen taking part. A collection in aid of the Seaman's Friend Society was taken up, and a generous sum realized.

DEATH OF A. S. PEIRCE.

Relatives in this city of Mr. Albert S. Peirce last week received from Washington, D. C., information that he had been dead some two weeks; no particulars were given, and though telegrams were sent asking for further information, none had been received up to Sunday evening. Mr. Peirce was about fifty-three years of age, and when a young man was engaged in hotel business here, at one time being landlord of the American house on Vaughan street, which afterward bore various names, the last being the Gibson house, its title at the time it was burned. For a number of years past he has lived in Washington.

DEATH OF H. S. BODGE.

Mr. Henry S. Bodge, a Pullman car conductor on the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad, dropped dead at No. 131 Hancock street, Boston, last Friday, probably from heart disease. Mr. Bodge was a native of this city, and aged about fifty-one years. He learned the business of watchmaker and jeweller, and was at one time associated with his brother, the late Robert Bodge, who carried on the watch and jewelry business on the corner of Congress and High streets, where Mr. Joseph Pettigrew's shoe store now is; after the death of Robert, the store was for several years conducted by Henry, since which time he has been mostly employed out of the city, for a number of years as traveller for a large firm of manufacturing jewellers in Providence, R. I. For some months past he has been in charge of the Pullman parlor car "Maritana." Mr. Bodge was a member of St. Andrew's Lodge of Masons, of this city, a delegation from which will go to Boston this morning to bring the body here for interment.

THE MINSTREL SHOW.

To-morrow evening, in Music hall, Thatcher, Primrose & West's minstrels will give an entertainment. It would be useless for us to give commendatory notices of this combination from other papers, if we had room for them, for our theatre-goers know just as well as anybody that the title "Monarchs of the Minstrel World" was fairly earned, and that Thatcher, Primrose & West always give the very best entertainment in their line. Tickets now on sale at Goodrich's.

Capt. Hubert L. Baker, late of the wrecked schooner Mystery, was taken to his home across the river from Mr. John Albee's residence at Newcastle on Saturday in a carriage, having sufficiently recovered from the effects of his terrible experience on Thursday night to be able to bear the removal.

The schooner Mary Willey, Williams master, found her way into the lower harbor during the gale and thick weather of Thursday evening, and had to run up abreast of Clark's island before she could find a place to anchor, the harbor being packed full of coasters and fishing vessels. She came up to Broughton's wharf Friday morning, discharged her cargo of lumber, and on Sunday morning at nine o'clock sailed for Bangor, via Portland, with a spanking breeze, on her last trip for this season. We hope Capt. Zach won't have such hard luck as he had on his last trip last year.

The wreck of schooner John E. Sanford, ashore at Newburyport, was sold on the 11th inst. to G. H. Smith of Boston for $190, and the sails, rigging and anchors to John W. Handren of Dennisport for $1000.

The big three-masted schooner Maggie J. Smith, 761 tons register, before reported ashore near Narragansett Pier, R. I., on the way from Newport News, Va., to this port with a cargo of coal, has become a total wreck.

An associated press despatch of the 11th inst. from Marblehead, Mass., says: "Last Sunday morning, fishing schooner Flying Cloud of Kittery, Me., Captain Joseph Burnett, and crew of three men, arrived here from Swampscott and sailed the same day for Gloucester, but when off Half-way rock was put about and returned. Captain Burnett, his son Joseph and W. W. Sherman came ashore, leaving John Hanson on board. The captain claimed to have lost overboard some $900, being the amount stocked during the season, and this was the reason for the vessel's return. On Wednesday two men arrived from Kittery, took charge of the vessel, and with Captain Burnett sailed for that port, leaving Hanson here without money. Hanson's story is to the effect that the crew went on shares; that the vessel stocked some $900, which the captain kept in his possession, refusing all requests of the crew for money during the trip, saying that he would not divide it until they had completed the trip; and that he believes the captain's story about losing the money to be false. An attempt was made to-day to obtain a warrant for the arrest of Captain Burnett, but without success. Hanson, who is in a destitute condition, will be sent to his home in Norway by interested citizens. It is possible that the captain may be able to make a satisfactory explanation, but at present popular indignation is very strong against him."

An unknown two-masted schooner was on the 11th inst. reported sunk on Shoveloful shoal. Nothing was known of the fate of the crew, but it was hoped they had been saved by the boat from the Monomoy life-saving station.

The shears at the navy yard were taken down on Saturday to be repaired. When nearly down a turn-buckle of one of the guys broke, letting the shears down by the run, and breaking them in the middle, rendering them worthless. No person was hurt, though a good many men were working at the job.

Washington despatches of the 12th say that a naval court martial is almost certain to be convened, to investigate charges against Lieut. Emory H. Taunt of the navy. Lieut. Taunt is well known in this city, having at one time been stationed at this navy yard; and he married, at the navy yard, the daughter of Commodore Earl English, then commandant of the yard. When Commodore English was promoted to rear admiral, and assigned to the command of the European squadron, Lieut. Taunt accompanied him; and when the admiral was retired, the lieutenant was sent on an exploration of the Congo river in Africa, and on his return made a very able and interesting report of his performance of that duty. Soon after his return from Africa he was ordered to the Nipsic; it is charged that he failed to report for duty, and that a search resulted in finding him in New York, living in a clandestine manner.

At a public installation of the officers of Mt. Vernon Lodge of Masons, of Malden, Mass., Wednesday evening, Nov. 9th, Clarence O. Walker, formerly of this city, was installed worshipful master.

Joseph W. Brooks, a leading citizen of Biddeford, formerly city marshal and at another time chief engineer of the fire department of the city, died Nov. 11th.

The new engine Tiger, No. 8, on the Concord railroad, has arrived at this station and been put to work, taking the place of the old Lawrence.

So much freight has of late been offering for transportation over the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad that the regular trains, though heavily loaded all the time, have been unable to move it all, and two extra freight trains have been put on, leaving Boston and Portland every evening at 8:45 o'clock, in the endeavor to clear the stations of their accumulations.

Freight train No. 252, bound west, passed through this city with thirty-five cars of live stock on Thursday of last week.

The Boston & Maine road has erected gates on the crossings at every station on the Western division.

Workmen are now putting in side tracks at Kittery Point, on the York Harbor & Beach railroad, to accommodate the fish business which it is proposed to carry on at that place the coming winter.

Enough snow fell in this city on Friday night to give the roofs a white look at sunrise Saturday morning, but it soon disappeared. Eight inches of snow fell at Warren, and a foot at East Warren, on Thursday night and Friday. At North Troy, Vt., fifteen inches fell, and the sleighing on Friday was good.

Mr. Horace Tarlton and wife, of Haverhill, Mass., are visiting at Mr. Warren P. Webster's on Union street.

A Famous Doctor

Once said that the secret of good health consisted in keeping the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open. Had this eminent physician lived in our day, and known the merits of Ayer's Pills as an aperient, he would certainly have recommended them, as so many of his distinguished successors are doing.

The celebrated Dr. Farnsworth, of Norwich, Conn., recommends Ayer's Pills as the best of all remedies for "Intermittent Fevers."

Dr. I. E. Fowler, of Bridgeport, Conn., says: "Ayer's Pills are highly and universally spoken of by the people about here. I make daily use of them in my practice."

Dr. Mayhew, of New Bedford, Mass., says: "Having prescribed many thousands of Ayer's Pills, in my practice, I can unhesitatingly pronounce them the best cathartic in use."

The Massachusetts State Assayer, Dr. A. A. Hayes, certifies: "I have made a careful analysis of Ayer's Pills. They contain the active principles of well-known drugs, isolated from inert matter, which plan is, chemically speaking, of great importance to their usefulness. It insures activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. Ayer's Pills contain no metallic or mineral substance, but the virtues of vegetable remedies in skillful combination."

Ayer's Pills,

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Dealers in Medicine.

SOME grocers are so short sighted as to decline to keep the "IVORY SOAP," claiming it does not pay as much profit as inferior qualities do, so if your regular grocer refuses to get it for you, there are undoubtedly others who recognize the fact that the increased volume of business done by reason of keeping the best articles more than compensates for the smaller profit, and will take pleasure in getting it for you.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory;'" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

THE CRUCIAL TEST.

The severe analytical tests to which the various baking powders have from time to time been placed have demonstrated clearly to the public the relative merits of the different brands from a scientific point of view. The Government chemists, for instance, have found in their official tests that the Royal Baking Powder gave off the largest amount of leavening gas, and therefore was the most economical for general use. For this reason it was placed at the head of the list and recommended for Government use. In addition to this, the chemists found the Royal to be absolutely pure, and the only baking powder that did not contain either lime, alum, or bone or rock phosphate.

But the crucial test of the kitchen is, after all, the most satisfactory to the housekeeper. A baking powder that never fails to make light, sweet, wholesome, and palatable bread, biscuit, cake, etc., upon all occasions, is the one that will be placed at the head of the list by the practical housewife, and received into her kitchen for continuous use. This test the Royal Baking Powder has stood for over twenty years without a single failure, and hence its reputation as the best baking powder made has spread from house to house, until its use has become as universal as its merits are unrivaled.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts can be made for it in New York.

Jesse Pomeroy, the two-legged beast whose worse than worthless life was spared through a mawkish sentimentalism years ago, has made several attempts lately to escape from the Massachusetts state prison, undoubtedly having outside aid. Twice he has cut the bars of his cell, and a few days ago he attempted to blow up the part of the prison in which he is confined with gas, and did effect an explosion which dislodged a lot of heavy stones, and it is said destroyed his sight. The miserable cur should have been buried in a guano heap long ago.

—Customer (in a drug store): "I see you advertise selling off at cost." Druggist: "Yes, sir." "What are you getting for Dr. Dropsy's Killemquick cure for consumption, large bottles?" "One dollar." "But that's the same old price." "Yes, sir. We are selling off our one and two-cent postage stamps at cost. We are carrying a larger line of them than the present stagnation warrants."

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), recommended the CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me, and I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life, and I can find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

EDWARD LUEDER, 1505 Broadway, N. Y.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from hoad colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford indescribable relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic form, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, thick tenacious mucus hawking and spitting and fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphatic powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER Co. 106 Wall Street, New York.

Mr. James E. Meeds, the U. S. Light House Keeper at Fort Carroll, near Baltimore, Md., says: He was afflicted with rheumatism in his legs and ankles the past six months, constantly suffering great pain. Having tried a great many remedies and getting no relief, he was advised to try Salvation Oil and it relieved him entirely.

—Visitor (in a Georgia prison) —"Oh, what a horrible looking villain that is in yonder cell. See the evidence of crime in grained in his very physiognomy. What is the crime, warden?" Warden—"He was sent up for two years for teaching his child in a nigger school he was principal of."

Almost Killed.

I was almost killed by the doctors, who treated me for bleeding piles. It cost me over $100 without relief. I took Sulphur Bitters for two months, and now I am well.—Gus Hall, Troy, N. Y.

—A Michigan girl surprised a thief in the barn, and chased him with a pitchfork until he had dropped the harness he had stolen. It is reported that she is receiving an average of fifteen offers of marriage a week.

Do you suffer with catarrh? You can be cured if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier. Sold by all druggists.

—"Do you know anything about Robinson's reputation for veracity?" "It ought to stand very high. He told me his new dog cost him twenty-five dollars. He paid Dumley ten dollars for it. A man who can confine himself as strongly to the truth as that when talking about his dog deserves the confidence of the community."

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

—Clara —"And there comes Georgie Gussie now, dear papa, to get your consent." Papa—"Georgy Gussie! What do you know about Georgy Gussie? Is he a business man?" Clara—"He's all business, papa. He's perfectly devoted to money-getting. You just ought to hear how he praises your thrift in amassing a great fortune."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla acts directly and promptly, purifying and enriching the blood, improving the appetite, strengthening the nerves, and also invigorating the system. It is, in the truest sense, an alterative medicine. Every invalid should give it a trial.

— Here is an advertisement appearing in the Utah papers: "Wanted, information of John Edmund Kettle, age twenty-six, formerly of London, England, latterly of Salt Lake City, by the undersigned, Marietta Kettle, Rosa V. Kettle, Lillian O. Kettle, Katherine K. Kettle, Mattie S. Kettle, Susan T. Kettle, Fannie B. Kettle, Constance C. Kettle, Margaret A. Kettle and Julia A. Kettle, all of Salt Lake City."

Backache is almost immediately relieved by wearing one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters. Try one and be free from pain. Price 25 cents.

—She: "James, do you know you put three buttons on the plate in church today?" He: "I knew what I was about.' She: "James, perhaps you don't know that I bought those buttons yesterday for my new dress, and paid fifty cents apiece for them."

For any case of nervousness, sleeplessness, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia, try Carter's Little Nerve Pills. Relief is sure. The only nerve medicine for the price in market

Constitutional Cough Syrup.

Constitutional Cough Syrup is sold on the "no cure, no pay," principle. It contains no opium nor anything injurious. Why suffer with coughs and colds when for twenty-five or fifty cents you can get a bottle at the drug store of Dr. Kimball.

—Parent: "Who is the laziest boy in your class, Johnny" Johnny: "I dunno." "I should think you would know. When all the others are industriously writing or studying their lessons, who is he who sits idly in his seat and watches the rest, instead of working himself?" "The teacher."

For Scrofula, Impoverished Blood and General Debility,

For Children and Pulmonary Troubles.

Dr. W. S. Roy, Point Pleasant, W. Va., says: "I have made a thorough test with Scott's Emulsion in pulmonary troubles and general debility, and have been astonished at the good results; for children with rickets or marasmus is unequalled."

—At the theatre: Husband: "I promised to see a fellow for a few moments, my dear. I shall be back in a minute." Husband's returns within a quarter of an hour. Wife (tartly): "He kept you some time. I should think your friend was Scotch, judging by your breath."

W. C. Potter, of Waterford, N. Y., was confined to his house for nearly a year from liver complaint, being unable to attend to business. His physicians gave him no relief. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry cured him.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. mon,wed,sat-g

THE OLD FASHIONED WAY.

Herbs Given for Ailments—Women in Council Over the Sick—Good Nursing.

All women believe in herbs. Men, at least, pretend not to. But it is a part of manhood to laugh at us and our notions; but I notice that John is always ready to take, or even call for, a decoction of some of my fragrant bunches when he gets under the weather. In the spring of the year a bowl of boneset tea is sure to be needed, and it saves doctors' bills. I know they laugh at it and wish instead that I shall take a thirty-third dilution of deadly aconite or nightshade. I do not see why we should throw away innocent herbs for rank poisons, or why mineral drugs should be more honorable or safe than vegetable. So I shall cling to my old fashioned ways and have faith in the virtues of hyssop and mint. Heaven help us! but I am afraid to have their poisons growing in my beds of flowers lest a child will chew one of them and die.

I am just old enough to remember one or two old style kitchens—twenty feet square and full to the muzzle of good things. The ceiling was low—only over a tall man's head—and you should see how the great beams were hung with apples on strings, and bunches of parsley, and dill, and mullein, and rue, and savory, and mints, and saffron, and tansy, and a dozen more of nature's healers. It was around an enormous chimney, eight feet square, I think—and the odors were as sweet as the smell of the doughnuts that were skimmed from the lard, in the big kettle, that swung on a crane over the backlog. Have I owned too much as to my age? A woman must not have too ancient a memory, yet I cannot help it. I do remember those herbs, and days of herbs, with delight—all but the cookies with carroway seeds in them. I preferred fennel—and now people will have neither one nor the other.

In those days doctors' bills were never allowed to swallow up a farm and turn folks out of doors. The grandmother was chief doctor, and her experience was considered authority; but all the women in the neighborhood held council, and each one advised and prescribed. So it happened one was well purged, and sometimes terribly dosed. If one dose did not do the thing, another would. First one, then the other. We had in our family the castor oil party, and the salts party, and when one of us had indiscreetly loaded in too many plums, she was sure to have to swallow both salts and oil. So much for parties and sects. And when one has down pennyroyal and rhubarb and senna and cherry bark, who is to tell which it is does the work? If one did but get well, the glory of it was enough to go round, and each would claim the success; but if the patient died, who, indeed, was to blame? It was the other party's medicine that did it.

But it was the nursing that did the curing in those days. I would gladly be sick once more if I could again feel the touch of that soft hand smoothing my pillows. If I should live 1,000 years there will never be a sensation so good as that—the mother's hand. All other hands are more or less selfish, but the hand of a mother brings in it the whole soul. And the smell of those lavender and sweet clover sheets and pillows! How could disease face such love and sweetness! But there were then no diphtherias and a hundred more sicknesses of modern invention. There were measles and mumps and chicken pox for everybody. We went to school to learn spelling and catch the regulation diseases. Then the right herbs were sure to be on hand to cure them. They had faith, too, in those days—if not in Mother Eddy, at least in the real mother who bore them and nursed them.

Many plants give us health by the smell, as well as by taking them into the stomach. But dogs and cats find common grass to have medicinal qualities. Before a rain Roger and Bess will nibble quantities of grass; and it is one of the best weather signs. Our own health is affected quite as much by what we inhale as by what we imbibe. Pine woods give us invigorating odors. Many of the garden flowers give us ozone, which we breathe and get strength from. But the garden herbs are especially valuable in the same way. I confess that what I like best about the herbs is the sweet odors. A crushed handful of peppermint or pennyroyal, or summer savory, or even horse mint, is delightful.

Every autumn I go on several herb excursions, and if it happens, I do not hesitate to gather a few roots as well. Mullins I must have for drafts. Boneset is invaluable for jaundice. Every American is entitled to get bilious. It is a prerogative of all pie and pork eaters. Then he must have his thoroughwort tea. For a stouter bitter it is well to have wormwood in the house. Peppermint and catnip are specific for colic. Blackberry roots are the best of remedies for diarrhea and choleraic difficulties. This is charming to be one's own doctor; to learn the sympathy of each part of the body for special vegetable growths.—Mary E. Spencer in Globe-Democrat.

A Holiday in Geneva.

The Genevese have one holiday sacred to the firecracker and the small boy. It is the 16th day of December. On that day sixteen hundred and something (this is not a history) the Savoyards planned a night attack on Geneva. The soldiers were silently scaling the walls to surprise the garrison when they were discovered by an old woman, who was cooking the food for the camp. As she gave the alarm she emptied the pot of hot soup and vegetables on the heads of the foremost soldiers, who, naturally disconcerted at the unusual mode of attack, retreated from the shower of grease, and the city was saved.

The memory of Mere Guitine is kept green on each anniversary by much music and fireworks, a carnival in the streets and masquerade parties at home. A fountain in the Rue des Allemands commemorates this event.—Charlotte Reeve Going To Europe.

The Increasing Demand Abroad for a Famous Medicine.

Mr. J. W. Rankin, the secretary and manager of the Swift Specific company, of Atlanta, Ga., sailed last Saturday on the steamship Servia, for Liverpool, accompanied by Dr. J. Emmett Blackshear, of Georgia, whose services have been secured as medical director of the company at their headquarters in London. The purpose of Mr. Rankin's trip is to supervise the business interests of the Swift Specific company in Europe, and superintend the necessary advertising, placing it upon the same extensive and through scale which has for years been adopted with such signal success in America. The main office, established less than a year ago in London, has been crowded with orders to an extent taxing its facilities to the utmost, and imperatively demanding immediate enlargement to meet the rapidly increasing demand for the famous S. S. S. medicine in Great Britain and on the continent.

"Tanglewood Tales for Girls and Boys, being a second wonder book by Nathaniel Hawthorne;" with illustrations by George Wharton Edwards. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. Portsmouth, for sale by M. Goodrich; price $2.50.

This new issue of Hawthorne's fascinating version of the old Greek mythological romances is likely to be one of the favorite gift books of the approaching holiday season, with the young people; and the greybeard or staid matron who cannot re-read it with delight, and go back to the time when its wonders were all real, when the slaying of the minotaur was a personal victory and the abduction of the gentle Europa by the wicked white bull a serious personal sorrow, must have been sadly hardened by contact with a rough world. To us, the wonderful charm of Hawthorne's writings is nowhere more conspicuous than in the two marvellous wonder books that he wrote for children; and the Tanglewood Tales, in the sumptuous dress and with the artistic illustrations as issued from the Riverside Press, are more delightful than ever. It is beautifully printed on heavy paper, with gilt edges and illuminated covers.

"The Boys of 1812, and Other Naval Heroes:" by James Russell Soley, author of "The Blockade and the Cruisers." Bound in cloth, 8vo; 338 pp.; illustrated. Estes & Lauriat, Boston, publishers; sold in Portsmouth by M. Goodrich; price $2.50.

"The Boys of 1812" is an interesting account of the growth of the United States navy before and during the war of 1812. Professor Soley, its author, enjoys peculiar facilities for obtaining authentic information from the documents at Washington; and this, his latest book, is full of interesting incidents and adventure, and sets forth in most readable form the exploits of Paul Jones, Biddle, Barry, Barney, Decatur, Bainbridge, Lawrence, Stewart, Macdonough and others of our naval heroes. Every healthy boy will want and should have this capital volume, which, with its numerous illustrations drawn specially for it by F. T. Merrill, Hendry, and others, is easily the leading war book for the young issued this year. The publishers' series, beginning with Coffin's celebrated "Boys of 61," will be completed another year by "Sailors Boys of '61," now in preparation by Professor Soley, making an entire library on this country's military triumphs.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co., of Boston, have just brought out a new edition of the Portrait Catalogue of their publications. It contains a list of all the books they publish, and portraits of thirty-nine authors whose works are included in it: Agassiz, Ajdrich, Hans Christian Andersen, Bjornson, Browning, Bryant, John Burroughs, Alice and Phoebe Cary, Joseph Cook, Cooper, Charles Egbert Craddock (Miss Murfree,) Emerson, Fields, John Fiske, Bret Harte, Hawthorne, Holmes, Howells, James, Miss Jewett, Lucy Larcom, Longfellow, Lowell, Parton, Miss Phelps, Saxe, Scudder, Stedman, Mrs. Stowe, Taylor, Tennyson, Mrs. Thaxter, Thoreau, Charles Dudley Warner, Whipple, Richard Grant White, Mrs. Whitney and Whittier. In addition to the works of the aboved-named authors, this catalogue comprises some or all of those of the following writers: Bacon, M. M. Ballou, Bishop, The British Poets from Chaucer to Wordsworth, Dr. John Brown, Bunyan, Carlyle, James Freeman Clarke, F. Marion Crawford, Richard H. Dana, Jr., De Quincey, Dickens, Frothingham, Goethe, A. S. Hardy, Mrs. Harris, Homer Hoppin, Hughes, Mrs. Jameson, Samuel Johnson, Starr King, George H. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Mr. Thomas McDonald, of 56 Albermarle street, Baltimore, Md., recommends "Salvation Oil" with all his heart, for it rid him of rheumatism in the shoulder which he had suffered with for many months. If cured him entirely.

Four thousand policemen and several hundred soldiers prevented 100,000 socialists from holding a meeting in Trafalgar square, London, on Sunday. There was much disturbance, but no serious rioting.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

It Must Come.

The financial editor of the Boston Advertiser says:

The Boston & Maine people are going straight ahead in their preparations for control of the New Hampshire roads as though the Hazen bill was an acknowledged law. I hear that John H. Pearson of the Concord has been hedging of late. There is but one end, and that inevitable, of this struggle. The Boston & Maine will win.

It will be but a question of time when the Boston & Maine bulls will break down Mr. Pearson's hedge, and roam through his preserves. The Concord magnate was able to hold the fort this year by means of the veto of the governor. It is hardly in the nature of things, that even if all Mr. Pearson's associates in the ownership of the Concord railroad remain loyal to his idea of anti-consolidation, and the interests of the controlling shareholders in the Boston, Concord & Montreal also keep on his side, without a breach of faith and brotherly love, the Concord can long hold out against this principle of absorption which has gone through the land from Canada to California.

It has come to be regarded as so much a matter of course for through lines to consolidate that the result is considered inevitable, not so much perhaps from any premises indicating a change of front by the "high contracting parties," as from the universality of the rule in such cases, to which, disinterested and sagacious railway men say, the Concord cannot afford to be an exception.

"WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST?"

This potent inquiry was considered in the Pleasant street church last Sunday, and the preacher said:

There are many men in the world who think about Christ. The temptation often arises to ask, what they think about him. When we see men, working in his name, who are very different from him, we cry out "Why, what are you thinking about Christ?" The church has always been strenuous, not only on a belief in Christ, but also as to many things which have been gathered about him by wonder-seeking men. A correct belief concerning Christ, and what he wants, is very essential to the world.

The silliest of all silly twaddle is the assertion that "it doesn't make any difference what a man believes." A man's honest belief regarding Christ governs his attitude toward all moral and spiritual truth. It makes a vast difference to a man in what light he holds the Moral Truth of the world. It makes a vast difference to a man whether he believes arsenic is poison or whether he believes it isn't. Likewise of many other things. It is not to be said that we are holden to any man's idea of Christ, but to Christ as he is:

1. He, Jesus of Nazareth, was the son of Joseph and Mary. The poetry of the Gospels, saying that he was born of Holy Spirit, contains a great truth. Every boy is born under the control of some spirit, either of justice, as Socrates; poesy, as Shakespeare; invention, as Morse and Edison. But the spirit that filled the incipient soul of Jesus domes over them all and governs them all,—the religious spirit. It was his genius, his talent, his gift, and in being endowed with that gift he is the anointed, the Christ.

2. Jesus the Christ has a peculiar greatness. Some men are great because they meet the wants and expectations of to day. Jesus was great because in the face of three parties who gnashed their teeth at him, he taught and lived what is true in relation to humanity, to eternity, to God. He was not God; men who say that he is either never felt, or have forgotten the greatness that burned in the Galilean breast.

3. He revealed the true God, in saving the lost, in comforting the sorrowful, in rebuking the hypocrite, just as he would to-day.

4. His revelation of God is thus the salvation of the human race, and being eternal will work in the human heart forever.

5. If this is too much for a man to do, then there is one man greater then all gods but the One. Only what man has done holds forth hope to man.

Mrs. E. G. Caswell says: "Rob the workingman of his franchise, and his wages will depreciate one-half. He knows the ballot is the lever that moves the world, and accordingly he holds sacred his political rights. The toiling American woman also knows the value of the elective franchise, and she, too, wants it in her hand."

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, Rockingham ss.

By the Hon. Judge of Probate for said County.

TO the heirs at law and creditors to the estate of JOHN H. GRANT, late of Portsmouth, in said County, deceased, intestate, and all persons interested in said estate. GREETING:

YOU are hereby notified that GEORGE W. SMITH, administrator of the estate of said deceased, has filed his account of administering said estate in the Probate Office for said County, and will present the same at a Court of Probate to be holden at Portsmouth, in said County, on the second Tuesday of January next, at 10 o'clock a. m., for examination and allowance.

At the same Court the Report of the Commissioner of Insolvency on said estate will be taken into consideration for allowance.

YOU are therefore hereby cited to appear at said Court to be heard thereon, and to make, such objections as you may then have. And notice is hereby required to be given by causing this citation to be published three weeks successively in the PORTSMOUTH DAILY CHRONICLE, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth, in said County, the last publication whereof to be at least one week prior to said Court.

Dated at PORTSMOUTH, Nov. 8th, A. D. 1887.

A MISPLACED STUMP SPEECH.

At the union temperance meeting in the North church, Sunday evening, at which most of the clergymen of the city were present and took part, Rev. John A. Hainer, pastor of the Court street Christian church, was one of those assigned to speak, and it is no exaggeration to say that his remarks caused a greater sensation than all the others put together. He announced that being a Canadian, and not naturalized, he could speak of the political parties here without bias; and then launched forth into a partisan stump speech against the republicans, declaring that they had elected the last president they ever would elect, and intimating that republican politicians who claimed to be in favor of prohibition were but distantly acquainted with the truth, while republican editors who said the third-party prohibitionists aimed to aid the democracy were not on speaking terms with the truth at all. We will not enter into argument to prove that there may be republican politicians—even republican editors—possibly as temperate in speech and act, and as truthful, as the reverend speaker; but we will assert that the tirade was listened to with pain by many true friends of temperance, and no doubt largely neutralized whatever good influence the meeting might have otherwise exerted.

The person who attends a democratic rally expects to hear partisan democratic talk; at an avowed republican meeting, he expects to have the democracy held up as being positively no better than they should be; but he does not attend a Sunday evening gathering in a church, advertised to be a "union temperance prayer meeting," with the expectation of being regaled with a virulent and abusive partisan harangue, and when such a speech is "rung in on him" under such circumstances it is more likely to rouse his antagonism to and contempt for the cause attempted to be advanced by such an agency, than to draw him to its support.

And it appears almost presumptuous for a gentleman born under another flag and still owing it allegiance, to ruthlessly sit down upon and flatten out the hopes of thirty millions of American citizens—for we may assume that about half the American people are republicans, and have hopes of the future success of their party. Zeal is a good thing; but it is none the less admirable when tempered with discretion—which means common sense.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

MONDAY, Nov. 14th.

William H. Randall, known among his associates as "Rapp," and William H. Ayers, were each fined $3, costs $6.-90, for drunkenness, and both sent to Brentwood.

ANOTHER GOOD THING.

Editor Chronicle: In your short article Monday morning, entitled "A Good Thing," you seem to imply that since the closing of the Seaman's Home restaurant no temperance, low-priced eating-house was to be found. This is not correct. In the same building, at the foot of State street, such a restaurant is now kept, and has been for two years or more. It is conducted on strictly temperance principles, furnishing excellent food, well-cooked, at low prices; and to my certain knowledge has done good and efficient work in the cause of temperance and of humanity. Those who conduct it are not in the habit of always telling all they do, but circumstances have come to my knowledge that made me feel that at least these few words were their due.

There is no rivalry between this establishment and the one which it is proposed to open at the North End—very probably they will work together. That the new Seaman's Home may start, well provided and well equipped for doing a little of the work which is so desperately needed in this city, we all, who have any regard for decency and good order, devoutly hope. But meantime let us not slight what work is even now being done, and encourage those who are laboring quietly and unobtrusively in the good cause. F.

MINSTRELSY TO-NIGHT.

This evening, at Music hall, the minstrel entertainment of the season will be given, the Thatcher, Primrose & West combination not only holding the highest reputation but giving the best minstrel show of any troupe in the country. Many new features will be introduced, and the managers believe will be received with favor by the public here, as they have been elsewhere. See advt.; tickets at Goodrich's bookstore.

REV. SAM SMALL IN PORTSMOUTH.

We are pleased to announce to the people of Portsmouth and vicinity that arrangements are fully completed for Rev. Sam Small, the celebrated evangelist of Atlanta, Ga., and co-worker with the no less celebrated Rev. Sam Jones, to give his great lecture "From Bar-Room to Pulpit" in Music hall, Portsmouth, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 22d. Mr. Small is one of the most remarkable men of the age, and is greeted by immense audiences wherever he goes, which are limited only by the halls in which he speaks; it will doubtless be so in Portsmouth. The price of tickets will be placed low, that the masses may hear him. All who desire to hear this man should secure seats early. Look for the regular advertisement in this paper.

COMMENCED WORK.

The new tugboat Cocheco went into commission on Monday. In the forenoon she made her first visit to her hailing port, Dover, having on board her owners, who came down by train for the purpose of making the trip, and a number of invited guests. In the afternoon she made her first tow, taking down a three-masted schooner, and as she passed along the city's water front with colors flying she was greeted with salutes from the whistles of other steamers and the Portsmouth brewery.

The dimensions of the Cocheco are as follows: Length, eighty-eight feet one inch; breadth of beam, twenty feet; depth of hold, eight feet; draught of water, eight feet six inches aft, six feet forward. She has a single engine of the latest improved English pattern, cylinder 20x22 inches; the boiler, a horizontal return-tube steel one, 4x7 1-2 feet, is allowed to carry 100 lbs. of steam, which will give the engine 200 nominal horse-power. She has a surface condenser, and is fitted with appliances for service as a fire boat or for wrecking. Her fresh water tanks hold 4000 gallons, and she has bunker room for thirty tons of coal. Capt. Drew and Engineer Tibbetts, late of the tug Ann, occupy similar positions on the new boat, which has sleeping accommodations for eleven men. She appears to be an able boat, but 8 1-2 feet seems a large draught of water for up-river towing.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

The railroad commissioners arrived in this city Monday evening at 7:12, coming from an examination of the Conway division of the Boston & Maine railroad by a special train. The commissioners will examine the Eastern in New Hampshire, the Portsmouth & Dover and the Dover & Winnepiseogee railroads to-day.

In the case of the Boston, Concord & Montreal railroad against the Boston & Lowell railroad, now pending in the United States Circuit court, to set aside the lease of the Montreal road to the Boston & Lowell, the taking of testimony on the part of the complainants will be commenced at Concord before William H. Hackett, the special examiner of the court, next week.

MARITIME NOTES.

The boilers of the steamer Mystic were inspected on Monday by the United States officials designated for that duty.

The lighthouse board gives notice to mariners that the engineer department of the United States army has replaced the beacon on Avery's ledge, off Sandy bay, Cape Ann, Mass. The spindle is of iron, surmounted by a ball painted red, which is twelve feet above high water level. Vessels should not approach within 400 feet of this spindle.

The unknown schooner reported sunk on Shoveful shoal, on the 11th inst., proved to be the Josepeh Lindsey, from Boston for Wood's Hole with guano. She springs her mainmast and lost her jib in the gale on Thursday night, 10th, drifted on the shoal, anchored in shoal water, and on the ebb tide pounded heavily, and rolled over on her beam ends, full. The crew hung astern of the wreck in their boat until daylight, when they were rescued by the crew from the Monomoy life-saving station. About five hours later the Monomoy boat rescued the crew from the schooner Helen Mar, ashore on Handkerchief shoal. This schooner collided with the Pollock Rip lightship during the gale, lost bowsprit and head gear, drifted on Handkerchief shoal, and filled. Her crew were nearly used up when the life-saving crew reached them.

The electric light box in the hall of the city rooms caught fire Monday afternoon about four o'clock. Officer Peverly with the fire extinguisher put it out without farther damage.

The house and land at the Creek belonging to the estate of the late David Shaw, sold at auction last week, were purchased by Alderman D. J. Ayers of ward three.

The funeral of Mr. John F Lawry, late of the ill-fated schooner Mystery, took place at the Freewill Baptist church, Kittery Point, on Sunday afternoon last. A large gathering of the townspeople were present.

Mr. Robert Anderson has received a letter from Capt. Theodore F. Kane, U. S. N., commanding the gunnery training ship Minnesota, intimating that Mr Anderson's son, John J. Anderson, will probably be drafted for service on the U. S. S. Trenton.

Mr. F. W. Hain, watchmaker, has removed his business to the quarters on Daniel street recently occupied by the Baltimore & Ohio telegraph office.

George Francis Train passed through this city Monday evening, on his way to St. Johns, N. B. He can't stand "the states" any longer.

Very many of the teams in which is hauled coal to Rye and North Hampton are loaded so that coal drops all the way over Lafayette road as the carts go over rough places. A teamster in town the other day was accosted by an acquaintance, and told that his cart seemed light and that the usual dropping of coal would not be likely to occur on that trip. "No," said the freighter, "I am always particular about that when I team my own coal. This is my load."

The collection taken up at the mass temperance meeting in the North church on Sunday evening, in aid of the Seaman's Home, amounted to about $23.

The Exeter Gazette suggests a big celebration next year, of the 250th anniversary of the founding of the town of Exeter.

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

A Real Deluge.

A despatch of Nov. 12th from Shanghai, China, says: "The floods in Hou-Nan are increasing. Hundreds of thousands of the inhabitants of that province are destitute. In one place 5000 men who were repairing embankments were overwhelmed by the flood, and 4000 of them drowned. Another terrible inundation has occurred at Sze-Chuen."

We have received The Berwick Scholar for November, being No. 2 of Vol. 1. It is published monthly during the school year by the pupils of Berwick academy at South Berwick, Me. It contains a good deal of news and information of interest to those who are or have been students at the academy, and has a formidable editorial board—in numbers, we mean—including three or four young ladies. In the "Scholastic" column the young editorial fraternity exhibit a strong bias toward allusions and hints which can have no meaning except to a limited few, and are hopelessly mysterious with the general public. Tyros in journalism almost always adopt this style, not probably because it is so easy, but because it appears smart; they get over it after they have been in the business long enough to graduate as "journalists," and become "newspaper men." The following item from the bright little paper is of local interest: "It seems that the Dover High School nine have been repaid for their thievish act of keeping the ball from the victors. In a recent game at Portsmouth with the High School nine of that place, the D. H. S.'s were treated to the same kind of fruit."

The Lake Village Times, which under its new ownership has been much enlarged and otherwise improved, has had its name changed to Belknap Republican, the former name seeming to the proprietors to convey too restricted an impression to be borne by the only republican paper in Belknap county, and a live one at that, with a wide circulation which we suppose and hope is steadily increasing, as it should.

Rosa Bonheur, the celebrated artist, once had a "philopena" with a Russian prince, and the prince lost. He asked what he should give her as his forfeit. She answered, jokingly, "Oh, any pretty little animal that I can use for a model." Several months after, when she had almost forgotten the affair, she received her philopena present—three enormous white bears.

So far as is known, there are only fourteen Chinese women in New York city. Of these, nine are married. They obey to the letter the customs of their own country, where the wife is the property of her husband.

One bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup cured me of a bad cough and I can recommend this valuable article to my friends. C. L. Williston, 81 Maiden Lane, New York City.

Clara Louise Kellogg is reported to have been married.

The worst feature about catarrh is its dangerous tendency to consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures catarrh by purifying the blood.

The postmaster general's annual report shows the department to be on a paying basis.

Almost Killed.

I was almost killed by the doctors, who treated me for bleeding piles. It cost me over $100 without relief. I took Sulphur Bitters for two months, and now I am well.—Gus Hall, Troy, N. Y.

Ernest Good of Hallowell, Me., drowned himself in Central lake, Newton, Mass. on Sunday last.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla acts directly and promptly, purifying and enriching the blood, improving the appetite, strengthening the nerves, and also invigorating the system. It is, in the truest sense, an alterative medicine. Every invalid should give it a trial.

A strike among the McKay stitchers in the shoe shops of Beverly, Mass., is threatened.

Backache is almost immediately relieved by wearing one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters. Try one and be free from pain. Price 25 cents.

Charles Francis Adams brought suit to compel Lawson Valentine to purchase a piece of real estate. The court has decided that Adams' title is defective, and Valentine is not obliged to buy.

For any case of nervousness, sleeplessness, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia, try Carter's Little Nerve Pills. Relief is sure. The only nerve medicine for the price in market

Thirty buildings, including two hotels, a bank, several large storehouses, etc., were burned at St. Peter, Minn., on the night of the 12th; loss $100,000.

W. C. Potter, of Waterford, N. Y., was confined to his house for nearly a year from liver complaint, being unable to attend to business. His physicians gave him no relief. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry cured him.

Business Chances.

Chances for business are numerous but a man suffering from backache, kidney diseases or sore lungs wants instant relief. The Hop Plaster affords immediate and lasting relief for any kind of pain or soreness. Twenty-five cents or five for $1.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

Dogs in Bavaria.

Bavaria has succeeded in doing what no other country has yet been able to accomplish; she has practically stamped out hydrophobia. During the last seven years there have been only three deaths of human beings from hydrophobia in a population numbering close upon 6,000,000; and since 1876, when the present severe dog laws came into operation, there has never been more than one death in a year. Previously to that time deaths were very frequent. Between 1863 and 1876 the death rate from hydrophobia in Bavaria was never less than fourteen in a year, and once it reached the high percentage of thirty-one. The regulations which have banished this terrible malady from a whole kingdom are very minute, and perhaps some little vexatious; but it is assuredly worth while to take a little trouble for so desirable an end.

Every dog in the country is bound, upon pain of instant death, to bear upon his collar a metal tally, upon which is inscribed his number upon the register of his district. The color and shape of this tally, which is really the dog's passport, are changed every year, and the police are thus able to see at a glance if a dog is "in order." Once a month all dogs have to be examined by a veterinary surgeon, and if they are not in good health they are detained in a kind of dogs' hospital until they recover. If an animal changes hands, the transfer must be at once notified to the police, and any breach of the regulations—even a delay of a few days in the payment of the tax—is visited by a heavy fine. The tax varies from three shillings a year in the country districts to fifteen shillings in the large towns.—St. James' Budget.

Tobacco in Persia.

Tobacco is indulged in to an incredible extent. It is mostly smoked in Persian water pipes (ghalyan). If the tobacco is of the Shiraz brands it is very good, but strong; and the Persian smoker will smoke so many pipes a day—often forty to fifty—as to be in a "state of happiness," called "keff," early in the afternoon. This means a species of narcosis brought on by their peculiar manner of smoking, that is, inhaling the smoke, allowing it to penetrate the lungs, and then letting it escape by the nose and ears. As tobacco is excessively cheap and time no object to the average Persian, this variety of dissipation is the most prevalent one, and one not forbidden by the Koran either. While the "keff" lasts the pupils of the eyes are dilated, and a sort of drowsy indifference to all outside objects seems to pervade the smoker. A curious fact in connection with the use of tobacco in Persia is the manner in which its solace is provided by venders in the streets to all passers by. Cigars are not sold there, but the venders, each carrying a goodly supply of pipes and tobacco with him, are plentiful. For two cents anybody can sit down in the street and smoke a well filled ghalyan. This takes him about thirty minutes to do.—The Cosmopolitan.

Peculiarities of the Swordfish.

When excited, Professor Goode says, the swordfish's motions are most quick and nervous. The fish are sometimes seen to leap entirely out of the water. The pointed head, the fins on the back and abdomen simply fitting into grooves, the absence of ventrals, the long, lithe, muscular body, sloping slowly to the tail, fit it for the most rapid and forcible movement through the water. It strikes with the accumulated force of fifteen double headed hammers. Its velocity is equal to that of a swivel shot and is as dangerous in its effects as a heavy artillery projectile. Many very curious instances are on record of the encounters of this fish with other fishes, or of their attacks upon ships. What can be the inducement for it to attack objects so much larger than itself it is hard to surmise. It surely seems as if a temporary insanity sometimes takes possession of the fish. An old swordfisherman told Mr. Blackford that his vessel had been struck twenty times. There are, however, many instances of entirely unprovoked assault on vessels at sea.—New York Mail and Express.

Diseases Which Follow Anger.

In diseases of the heart, anger is a potent agency of evil. If death does not occur from a sudden, intense shock, the organ is enfeebled by every fit of passion. In persons of a plethoric habit and given to excesses in eating, and in those in whom the coats of the blood vessels of the brain have been weakened by degenerative changes, anger increases the danger of apoplexy. A variety of other diseases is liable to follow immoderate anger; among them may be mentioned paralysis, epilepsy and hysteria. Anger, or violent or ungovernable temper, as it is sometimes expressed, holds, according to the reports of the different lunatic asylums both in Europe and America, a prominent place among the causes of insanity.—Good Housekeeping.

Pipes of All Nations.

One of the most valuable collections of pipes in the world belongs to Capt. Bragge, of London. It contains 5,000 specimens and is called by the captain "Pipes of all nations." There are in it many pipes found in American mounds. The collection is so complete that it comprises the common as well as the most richly carved pipes that have been manufactured. There is no nation or tribe of whose workmanship in the making of pipes he has not a specimen. The captain is very proud of his collection, and has frequently put it on exhibition in the Alexandra palace for charitable purposes.—New York Evening Sun.

Easily Accounted For.

The extraordinary supply of grouse in London on the first day the shooting law was up is now accounted for by the information that the grouse had been kept for ten months in ice cellars at a temperature of 28 degs. They were very much relished.—New York Sun.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finley (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the state. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to Druggist John P. Finley and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and an IMPROVED INHALER; price, $1.

When Your Nerves Bother You, Invigorate them. When your night's repose is unsound or unrefreshing, your appetite jaded or capricious, when slight noises cause you to start, and annoyances of slight moment abnormally worry you, know these things, viz.: 1st, that your nerves are weak; 2d, that you need a tonic; 3d, that its name is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the promptest, safest, most popular article of its class. The nerves are susceptible of invigoration only by promoting an increase of vigor in the processes of digestion and invigoration. Narcotics and sedatives have their utility, but in the main, and if their use be continued, they are unsafe. A wineglass of the Bitters before retiring, and a repetition of the same during the day before or after meals, is far more likely to confer health-yielding sleep than repeated doses of an opiate. Dyspepsia, debility, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, fever and ague, and other malarial complaints, are always dominated and subdued by it.

THE TRIBUNE for 1888.

GREATLY ENLARGED.

MUCH THE BIGGEST OF ALL THE NEW-YORK WEEKLIES.

Greater Variety of Contents, New Presses, New Type and New Appliances.

AT THE HEAD OF THE REPUBLICAN PRESS.

THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TRIBUNE will be enlarged on or before the 1st of January, 1888, by the addition of from four to eight more pages of actual reading matter—an increase of size of great expense to THE TRIBUNE, but without expense to the subscriber.

A complete outfit of the new folding and inserting presses will be put into THE TRIBUNE'S press-room in November and December; and the extra sheet will be folded and inserted in the main sheet before it comes from the press. The enlarged TRIBUNE will be the biggest and best of all the New York weeklies, and the new machinery will print it, in the enlarged form, at the rate of seventy-two thousand copies per hour.

New features and a greater Variety of Contents will be added to THE TRIBUNE during the coming year. Readers will be given nearly a half more for their money than ever before.

Pensions for the old volunteers, especially Service Pensions, are being vigorously agitated in THE TRIBUNE; much space is given to every issue to this subject. Better Protection to Farmers under the tariff; the salvation of the country from the curse of intemperance; and the rescue of the national government from the hands of the rebel brigadiers; these, and all the other live issues of the day are receiving aggressive, earnest and loyal treatment in THE TRIBUNE.

THE TRIBUNE does not attempt to supersede the local State and county press. But, in the great Presidential conflict now at hand, every thinking Republican, old soldier, farmer and temperance man, should have his local paper and THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

Subscript on Rates—WEEKLY, $1 a year; extra copy with every five. SEMI-WEEKLY, $2 a year; extra copy with every five. DAILY, $6 a per year. SUNDAY TRIBUNE, $1.50. New subscribers receive the paper until Jan. 1, 1889. Remit always by draft, check, express or postal money order or registered letter.

Premiums—(1.) THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE'S History of the United States and Pocket Atlas of the World, 16mo., 284 pages, 50 maps, 50 colored diagrams; price, 50 cents; to subscribers, 20 cents; premium, premium of the year—a fascinating running account of the history of the country, with a great variety of statistics and general information. (2.) Presidential Pocket Knife; subscribers' name and picture of his choice for President on the handle; send for descriptive circular; price at retail, $1.75; but given with THE WEEKLY one year for the same money. $1.75; two other styles, for less money. (3.) Popular Picture Gallery—6 fine large pictures, including the new officers of the G. A. R., Mr. Blaine, Senators Sherman and Hiscock, "Return of the Mayflower," "Christ Before Pilate," and "Children Writing to Santa Claus;" send for circular. (4.) Waltham Watch; a standard time keeper, stem wind, stem set, seven jewels, nickel case, thoroughly reliable, and an excellent watch; with THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE, 1 year, for $7.50. (5.) TRIBUNE'S "Book of Open Air Sports." (6.) Webster's "Unabridged Dictionary." (7.) Wood's "Household Medicine." These premiums cannot be described in full here. Send for circular.

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

End of the Mackerel Season.

The Portland (Me.) Argus reports a very unprofitable season for the mackerel fishermen of that port. It says:

With the exception of two vessels the Portland mackerel fleet have returned home, and the footings show the poorest results of any season for forty years. Less than 10,000 barrels of mackerel have been packed out at this port. Out of some sixty vessels that fitted out here not more than a dozen have paid their bills, and only four or five have made any profit. The schooner Lizzie Maud, Capt. Sparling, is high line of the mackerel fleet, having stocked nearly $13,000; and the schooners Mergenhan and Henrietta Francis have made a successful season. The fishing steamer Novelty, Capt. Joyce, has also made a profit for her owners. The schooner Ethel & Addie, Capt Dyer, has stocked the most money of any sailing fisherman out of this port, having been engaged in cod-fishing as well as mackereding. Several of the best vessels in the fleet are now fitting out for winter fishing, and will carry large crews.

The Boston Fish Bureau's report of last Saturday had the following to say in regard to the mackerel fishery:

The great point with all dealers is how they are to supply their customers with mackerel from January to June of next year. Stocks are smaller than ever before known, and there is no chance of getting any increased supplies from any quarter until the next fishing season. Most of the mackerel fleet are now in, and the season is virtually closed. Nine vessels that went to the North bay from Wellfleet averaged only thirty-eight barrels of mackerel each; after returning from the Gulf of St. Lawrence they caught enough off the New England shore to save themselves from loss. The total amount of mackerel landed at Portland this year is about 8000 barrels, the smallest catch for many years. The high prices obtained will partly compensate them for the small catch, but it is understood that many of the vessels have come home in debt after their season's work.

The total catch to date is only 78,048 barrels, against 80,092 barrels at the same time last year, 329,108 barrels in 1885, and 418,418 barrels in 1884. From this it will be seen that there is a decrease of about 2000 barrels as compared with last year, and a large falling off from previous years. The provincial catch has also been light, and the fall run in Nova Scotia has been unusually small. It is estimated that the stock to come forward from the provinces will not be more than 3000 or 4000 barrels. After this time last year 12,000 to 15,000 barrels were received.

Thanksgiving at the New Hampshire Orphan's Home.

FRANKLIN, N. H., Nov. 15th.

We are about ready to occupy the new brick building. The steam fitter, plumber, carpenter and painter have been busily at work, and the future home for homeless ones will have everything convenient and comfortable for the cold days and months that are coming.

It is proposed to celebrate the occupancy of the new home by a genuine Thanksgiving dinner. If any of the numerous friends of the Home would like to contribute something toward making the little hearts glad and happy this coming Thanksgiving day, it will be gratefully received. J. NOYES, Supt.

Self Mending Insects and Snakes.

There recently appeared a communication from Oliver White, secretary of the Peoria, Ills., Scientific association, headed "Self Mending Snakes," in which he relates of breaking one of these reptiles into pieces from one to two inches long, from the anus to the tip of its tail—two-thirds of the whole length of the way—then placing a cage over him. On returning to the place twenty-four hours after the snake was there, sound and whole, in full length.

A similar operation is performed by the insect known as the earwig. One resting on a board was cut in two with a knife, when the head half crawled away about a foot, and, after making a circuit, came back to the tail half, butted against it, and was again united wit, when the severed insect became whole—a perfect, living, moving object. Can you or any of your readers, Mr. Editor, give a scientific reason for or an explanation of this most marvelous operation of the self mending snake and the earwig? Are there any other insects, reptiles or living objects that do the same?—Charles Marseilles in Scientific American.

Have You Ever Thought of This?

A great national danger lurks in the game of baseball. It is essentially dangerous to republics. All readers of ancient history remember that the Greeks nearly lost their country by remaining at their games after Xerxes had crossed the Hellespont, and that sacrificed King Leonidas and his heroic band to their selfish love of outdoor sport. Of course the Greeks did not play baseball, no Greek being bold enough to act as umpire, but their passion was similar to ours. History repeats itself so often that the American citizen may yet see the American people of the Union deeply absorbed in baseball while a foreign invader is landing its hosts on our unprotected coasts. Let congress consider this matter and find some means of preveting so alarming a situation.—Flatonia (Tex.) Argus.

Remedies on the Railroad.

All the conductors on the Maine Central railway have been provided by the management of the road with cases containing remedies to be used in cases of accident, such as linen and rubber bandages, plaster, surgical instruments, medicines, liniments, etc., with books of directions. Every conductor will be his own doctor. The occasions are frequent also, in times of accident, when physicians are passengers upon trains; but they are often handicapped by lack of proper instruments. A further step in the right direction would be to have all train hands and employes instructed in "aids to the injured."—Popular Science News.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, Rockingham ss.

By the Hon. Judge of Probate for said County.

TO the heirs at law and creditors to the estate of JOHN H. GRANT, late of Portsmouth, in said County, deceased, intestate, and all persons interested in said estate. GREETING.

YOU are hereby notified that GEORGE W. SMITH, administrator of the estate of said deceased, has filed his account of administering said estate in the Probate Office for said County, and will present the same to the Court of Probate to be holden at Portsmouth, in and for said County, on the second Tuesday of January next, at 10 o'clock A. M., for examination and allowance.

At the same Court the Report of the Commissioner of insolvency on said estate will be taken into consideration for allowance.

YOU are therefore hereby cited to appear at said Court to be heard thereon, and to make such objections as you may think proper. And notice is hereby required to be given by causing this citation to be published three weeks successively in the PORTSMOUTH DAILY CHRONICLE, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth, in said County, the last publication whereof to be at least one week prior to said Court.

DATED at PORTSMOUTH, Nov. 8th, A. D. 1887.

By order of the Judge:

ANDREW J. BROWN, Register of Probate.

Chronic Catarrh

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with increased secretion. Thus catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that often its presence is not suspected till it has obtained a firm hold on its victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is exceedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the Catarrh membrane, and thus sure cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I am happy to state that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GIBB, 1023 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, Ohio.

MR. HAINER'S STUMP SPEECH.

The Times argues that as the stump speech delivered in the North church on Sunday evening by Rev. John A. Hainer, under the pretence that it was a temperance address, was directed solely against the republican party, it was a very proper harangue to deliver under the circumstances. The Times has a perfect right to its opinion, and to express the same if it chooses. We have already expressed our opinion of the reverend gentleman's performance, and have nothing to add or retract.

BURGLARIES AT YORK.

The stores of W. M. Walker and Junkins & Sons at York village were broken into on Monday night. At the former place the thieves apparently found nothing they cared for; at Junkins & Sons' they ransacked everything, and apparently concluded to steal the safe, in pursuance of which they rolled it out of doors and into a wagon they had stolen, but the vehicle broke down under the weight, and the thieves ran away, leaving the broken wagon in the road, and the unopened safe beside it.

THE DRIVEN WELL PATENT.

Thousands of farmers throughout the country, and a considerable number in this vicinity, will be pleased to know that the United States supreme court has decided the so-called "Iowa driven well cases" against the owners of the alleged patent, which is decided to be invalid.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, Me., Nov. 14th.

The shipwreck of last week has cast a shadow over the entire village. It is many years since anything of this kind has happened to our seamen in our own harbor. The survivors are said to be quite sick at their homes.

The funeral services of John F. Lawry, who perished from exposure on the wreck, were held at the Freewill Baptist church Sunday. The edifice was filled, and a very impressive sermon was delivered by the pastor of the church. The casket was covered with floral gifts from friends of the deceased.

Miss Mabel A. Young died on Thursday last at her home in Rochester, N. H., and was burried at that place on Saturday.

Mrs. Chas. F. Brown presented her husband with a fine baby girl last week. Mr. and Mrs. Brown moved from South Berwick a few weeks ago, and now occupy a house near Kittery Depot.

Mr. Noah Eaton, Jr., and Miss Etta Eaton, have returned from a visit to Malden, Mass.

Prof. J. C. Tilton's singing school was well attended to-night. The book in use is Jehovah's Praise. Several new pupils were present at this session.

The Ladies' Circle connected with the Christian church meets with Mrs. Abby Sawyer this week.

A little girl came home from school one day and told her mamma the committee man had visited her school. "Well, what did he say?" asked her mamma. "Oh," replied the little one, "he said lots of things, but they didn't amount to much anyway."

AUNT MOLLY.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, Nov. 14th.

Yesterday was a lovely Sabbath; although the trees and earth had lost their verdant beauty, quiet and cleanliness everywhere prevailed. Chrysanthemums of different hues adorned the pulpits in the several churches.

Rev. J. A. Ross is delivering a series of lectures to the young; he is an earnest worker, and we trust the youth will be benefitted.

The excursion of the 4th was enjoyed by a large number of our citizens; we hope for another in the near future. The day was fine, and lovely scenes greeted our eyes throughout the day.

The shoe factory is soon to start, though several alterations are being made. The engine has come, and the boilers are expected to-morrow. Indications are of plenty of work for carpenters the coming winter, as there are only a few tenements to let, and 150 workmen are coming into town.

Rev. J. B. Merrill of the Baptist society is doing quite a business in "shucked clams." Some being sent him from Old Orchard early in the season, the people liked them so well that they desired him to get for them, which resulted in quite a traffic. They come once a fortnight. Two weeks since he had eighteen gallons, and did not have enough; last week he sent for twenty gallons; they are the finest we ever tasted.

Mr. John Johnson is doing a good business in selling the fuel burners; he is an expert, and is sure to find all the new inventions.

A new freight house is being built near the crossing, excluding the sight of trains and filling up the driveway to the popular dry goods store of T. N. Chase, much to the disgust of all citizens.

DARTMOUTH ITEMS.

HANOVER, Nov. 14th.

The football game between Amherst and Dartmouth resulted in a score of 52 to 0 in favor of the latter. It has been somewhat of a surprise for Amherst this fall, as they expected to easily defeat both Dartmouth and Trinity, but have been beaten in both games. The men here have been assiduous in their training, and feel confident that if the games were played over between Stevens and Tech. with fair judgement they could easily win the championship.

The first lecture of the course of 87-'88, was given Friday evening, Nov. 4th, by Robt. J. Burdette, who by his inimitable expressions kept the audience in nearly a continual state of merriment, yet at times drawing shades and shadows which caused expressions of mirth to give place to those of a more serious nature. The second event was a concert by the Temple Quartette, Friday, Nov. 11th, and was enjoyed by many besides members of the college.

Many of the fellows are intending to spend Thanksgiving at their homes, providing they can obtain the necessary permission for absence.

Several inches of snow fell during the past week, as if to remind us that the beautiful fall weather that we have enjoyed since our arrival cannot continue much longer. Nevertheless the warm, sunny days seem loath to depart.

The Dartmouth Glee Club gave an entertainment at Bellows Falls, Saturday evening, Nov. 12th. They report a successful and pleasant trip.

Several societies have had their initiations. Nearly all of them have received large delegations from '91, and several have also received members from the upper classes.

Prescott, '90, who broke the record for a half-mile run at Hartford last spring, is suffering from a kick received from a horse last July. It is hoped that he will recover sufficiently to train for the spring athletics.

Moore, '89, who has been teaching during the fall in Wells, has returned to college. B.

The tide on Tuesday was the highest for many months; most of the wharves were more or less overflowed, and some lumber and wood were floated off. The "dump," from the city yard to Richards avenue, was completely out of sight.

The tower of the Eldredge brewery will be 132 feet high when completed, and will contain a large clock illuminated by electricity.

Thatcher, Primrose & West's minstrels gave a fine entertainment in Music hall on Tuesday evening, to a great audience.

Miss Fanie Packard Hoyt, the charming young violinist, will play Vieuxtemps' famous "Ballade et Polonaise" at Music hall on Thanksgiving evening, Nov. 24th.

The Electric Light Co. say that if the public will have patience for a couple of weeks more, they will have a service of street lights that will be entirely satisfactory to all concerned, and not surpassed in any city anywhere.

Miss Nellie Salome Thomas, one of Boston's favorite sopranos, will command the admiration of all who listen to her popular selections during the grand vocal concert to be given in Music hall by the Wemyss Concert Co. on Thursday evening, the 24th inst.

The entertainments in aid of the building fund of the Eliot Library Association will be held every second Tuesday evening during the winter, weather permitting; on the alternate Tuesday evenings the association will hold business meetings.

An examination for admission to the Portsmouth Training School will be held at the office of the Superintendent of Schools, City Building, Tuesday, Nov. 22, at nine o'clock.

C. H. MORSS, Supt.

Lewis E. Staples has laid out a small lot of Ladies' and Misses' Winter Cloaks to sell at five dollars a garment. They are broken lines he will not have again. It might be an advantage to see them.

The Boston Herald of Monday evening says: "A short time ago an express wagon valued at $40 was stolen from Henry M. Tucker of Portsmouth, N. H. Dennis Noonan of Charlestown, who had no knowledge that it had been stolen, bought it. Tucker began an action of replevin to recover it in the district civil court. Judge Emmons gave a decision this morning in Tucker's favor; whereupon Noonan appealed. The expenses of the case have already been double the value of the wagon, and are now likely to be quadrupled."

A new way to shut off the rain was discovered on Tuesday. The "no school" signal was sounded by the fire alarm at 1:30 P. M., while the rain was falling in sheets, and before two o'clock the sun was shining brightly.

A saloon in Dover kept by James Sullivan, in which a fight took place Sunday, the 13th, was raided by the police on Monday and a lot of liquors seized. Sullivan was fined $20 and costs for keeping open Sunday, and held for the supreme court for keeping liquor for sale.

Four Dover boys were caught robbing John McIntyre's store on the 14th inst., at noon. McIntyre, who had been several times robbed within a few days, hid away in the ice chest when the clerk locked up for dinner, and saw the boys come up through a trap door.

$500 Reward.

If you suffer from dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; if the eyes are weak, watery and inflamed, and there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking and coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers, the voice being changed and having a nasal twang, the breath offensive, smell and taste impaired, experience a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough, and general debility, then you are suffering from chronic nasal catarrh. Only a few of the above named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case at one time, or in one stage of the disease. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, less understood or more unsuccessfully treated by physicians. The manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy offer, in good faith, $500 reward for a case of catarrh which they cannot cure. The remedy is sold by druggists at only fifty cents.

Mr. A. Shaw Waldron has been appointed weigher at the coal wharf of E. F. Sise & Co., Mr. Edward Newman having resigned the position after a service of many years.

An air-brake for freight trains, invented by George Westinghouse, Jr., is being experimented with on railroads in the vicinity of Boston with much success.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

ECONOMY, as wise folks say,
Is wealth pronounced another way,
So while "hard times" the people cry,
The Toilet Soaps they should not buy.
Let all who buy such Soaps take care
To weigh the cake exact and fair,
And find the pay in figures round
A dollar, more or less per pound.

What course should people then pursue?
In short, the only thing to do,
Though rich in bonds, or wordly poor,
The "IVORY SOAP" they should procure,
Which may be bought from coast to coast,
At sixteen cents per pound at most,
And does more satisfaction grant
Than all the Toilet Soaps extant.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Littell's Living Age.

IN 1888 THE LIVING AGE enters upon its forty-fifth year, having met with constant commendation and success.

A WEEKLY MAGAZINE, it gives fifty-two numbers of sixty-four pages each, or more than double column octavo pages of reading-matter yearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering its great amount of matter, with freshness, owing to its weekly issue, and with a completeness nowhere else attempted,

Three and a Quarter Thousand

The best Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Serial and Short Stories, Sketches of Travel and Discovery, Poetry, Scientific, Biographical, Historical, and Political Information, from the entire body of Foreign Periodical Literature, and from the pens of the

FOREMOST LIVING WRITERS.

The ablest and most cultivated intelligence in the department of Literature, Science, Politics, and Art, and expression in the Periodical Literature of Europe, and especially of Great Britain.

The Living Age, forming four large volumes a year, furnishes, from the great and generally inaccessible mass of this literature, the only compilation that, while within the reach of all, is satisfactory in the COMPLETENESS with which it embraces whatever is of immediate interest, or of solid, permanent value.

It is therefore indispensable to every one who wishes to keep pace with the events or intellectual progress of the time, or to cultivate in himself or his family general intelligence and literary taste.

Opinions.

"We have thought that it was impossible to improve upon this grand publication, yet it does seem to grow better each year. We regard it as the most marvellous publication of the time."—Christian at Work, New York.

"Fiction, biography, science, criticisms, history, poetry, art, and, in the broader sense, politics, enter into its scope, and are represented in its pages. Nearly the whole world of authors and writers appear in it in their best moods. The readers miss very little that is important in the periodical domain."—Boston Journal.

"It may be truthfully and cordially said that it never offers a dry or valueless page."—New York Tribune.

"As it is publication price it is the cheapest reading one can procure."—Boston Globe.

"It furnishes a complete compilation of an indispensable literature."—Chicago Evening Journal.

"It is absolutely without a rival."—Montreal Gazette.

Published WEEKLY at $8.00 a year, free of postage.

☞ TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS for the year 1888, remitting before Jan. 1st, the numbers of 1887 issued after the receipt of their subscriptions, will be sent gratis.

Club-Prices for the best Home and Foreign Literature.

("Possessed of THE LIVING AGE, and one or other of our vivacious American monthlies, a subscriber will find himself in command of the week's situation"—Phila. Evg. Bulletin.)

For $10.50, THE LIVING AGE and any one of the American $4 Monthlies (or Harper's Weekly or Bazar) will be sent for a year, postpaid; or, for $13.50, THE LIVING AGE, and the St. Nicholas or Scribner's Magazine.

ROVERS OF THE PLAINS.

Shooting Wild Horses in Australia—The Steed of the Pampas—A Question.

Very young students, in their first attempt at composition, often inform us that the horse is a useful animal. This sweeping generalization is subject to important modifications before it is accepted in all communities. There are many thousands of horses that toil not like their noble progenitors, but go like the wind where it listeth, and are looked upon as intolerable nuisances in the civilized regions they sometimes invade. Our Australian friends, for instance, are no lovers of the horse in his untamed state, and some of the colonies set a price upon his head, and do all they can to stimulate movements for his destruction. Seven thousand wild horses were shot in New South Wales alone in 1875. These rovers of the plains play the mischief with domesticated animals when they come among them, and the colonists are very much disgusted to observe with what ease the noble horse relapses into barbarism, and, forgetting his oats and other comforts of civilization, runs off with his wild brethren who have not enjoyed his superior advantages.

It must be confessed that our horses need the restraints imposed upon them to prevent them from disgracing their ancestors, who were certainly domesticated when they were introduced into this country. Years ago it used to be the custom in our southwestern territory to brand the young stock, and even many work animals, and turn them loose to shift for themselves for a year or two. When they were wanted they were always as wild as Mexican mustangs. Mr. Powell wrote a book on the best methods of taming wild horses. The specimens on which he exerted his talents as a tamer were for the most part formerly domesticated animals, who had forgotten all about their old restrains while wandering over the plains of our southwestern territory.

Travelers in the western territories are no longer in danger of such irruption of horse flesh as Murray describes in his "Travels in North America." He not only witnessed a stampede of thousands of panic stricken horses, but the living torrent swept along toward and over his camp, trampling skins and dried meat into the ground, knocking down some of the tents and taking with them all his horses except his riding mare, who vainly struggled to break her fastenings. They still range, in much smaller herds than formerly, on the plains of the upper Colorado; but the wild horse, like the buffalo, is disappearing before the advance of the white man.

In spite of the experience of the Australians, many peoples, chiefly savage, have been able to turn the wild horse to good account. Hundreds of thousands of Mexican mustangs have been reduced to servitude. The wild horse of the South American pampas, which three centuries ago, only fifty years after the horse was introduced from Europe, had spread to regions as remote as Patagonia, has been tamed by thousands, and has become the useful servant of Indian tribes.

Naturalists often discuss the question whether there is now in the world such a creature as an aboriginal, or truly wild horse. We know very well that the wild horses of the western hemisphere are all descendants of domesticated animals. Where, then, is the aboriginal wild horse to be found? The question will probably never be settled. Mr. J. H. Steel, who recently read an interesting paper on "Wild Horses" before the Bombay Natural History society, thinks the evidence is in favor of the existence of the wild horse in central Asia. Gesner, the great authority on zoology of the Sixteenth century, was of the same opinion, but the evidence has often been questioned, and the assertion cannot positively be made that the wild horse of the great mountain region which the Russians are now exploring is not himself the descendant of ancient domesticated animals.

Another question of scientific importance as yet unsolved is whether two or three years' run on the pampas would rejuvenate the average street car plug, develope the latent savagery of his nature and make a wild horse of him. If the equine liberty and freedom from human restraint could achieve a miracle of such proportions it would be very interesting to know it.—New York Sun.

So Much for Brag.

"Savages are but shades of ourselves," says Mr. Herbert Ward, recalling his Ovid. "The other day, at Lukunga, I was sitting with some natives around a big camp fire. They were relating, in an excited manner, many instances of the prowess and bravery—how, shooting elephants, they had been knocked down by the brutes, but had escaped, owing to their courage and agility; what wonders they had done in the fields of sports and battle. Crack! bang! went a log of wood on the fire, accompanied with a shower of sparks. One and all, they leaped up with a cry and went off, helter skelter, away off in the grass. So much for brag!"—New York Graphic.

Height of the Eskimos.

Mr. W. A. Ashe, of Quebec, reports that the Eskimos living near Hudson Straight have a mean height for the men of 5 feet 3.9 inches, and for the women, about 5 feet. Their body temperature averaged 100.3 degs. for winter and 98.4 degs. for summer, that of the observing party being 98.1 degs. and 97.7 degs. respectively.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Churchless London People.

London has a great problem. It has 2,600,000 people unable to get into a place of worship. In central London, with 2,000,000, there is only accommodation for 600,000.—Commercial Advertiser.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finley (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings spread from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures many actified. I refer to Druggist John P. Finley and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat irritated and hacking cough grow and fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and an IMPROVED INHALER; price, $1.

When Your Nerves Bother You, Invigorate them. When your night's repose is unsound or unrefreshing, your appetite jaded or capricious, when slight noises cause you to start, and annoyances of slight moment abnormally worry you, know these things, viz.: 1st, that your nerves are weak; 2d, that you need a tonic; 3d, that its name is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the promptest, safest, most popular article of its class. The nerves are susceptible of invigoration only by promoting an increase of vigor in the processes of digestion and invigoration. Narcotics and sedatives have no utility, but in the main, and if their use be continued, they are unsafe. A wineglass of the Bitters before retiring, and a repetition of the same during the day before or after meals, is far more likely to confer health-yielding sleep than repeated doses of an opiate. Dyspepsia, debility, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, fever and ague, and other malarial complaints, are always dominated and subdued by it.

THE TRIBUNE for 1888.

GREATLY ENLARGED.

MUCH THE BIGGEST OF ALL THE NEW-YORK WEEKLIES.

Greater Variety of Contents, New Presses, New Type and New Appliances.

AT THE HEAD OF THE REPUBLICAN PRESS.

THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TRIBUNE will be enlarged on or before the 1st of January, 1888, by the addition of from four to eight more pages of actual reading matter—an increase of size of great expense to THE TRIBUNE, but without expense to the subscriber.

A complete outfit of the new folding and inserting presses will be put into THE TRIBUNE'S press-room in November and December; and the extra sheet will be folded in place in the main sheet before it comes from the press. The enlarged TRIBUNE will be the biggest and best of all the New York weeklies, and the new machinery will print it, in the enlarged form, at the rate of seventy-two thousand copies per hour.

New features and a greater Variety of Contents will be added to THE TRIBUNE during the coming year. Readers will be given nearly a half more for their money than ever before.

Pensions for the old volunteers, especially Service Pensions, are being vigorously agitated in THE TRIBUNE; much space is given in every issue to this subject. Better Protection to Farmers under the tariff, the salvation of the country from the curse of intemperance; and the re-cue of the national government from the hands of the rebel brigadiers; these, and all the other live issues of the day are receiving aggressive, earnest and loyal treatment in THE TRIBUNE.

THE TRIBUNE does not attempt to supersede the local State and county press. But, in the great Presidential conflict now at hand, every thinking Republican, old soldier, farmer and temperance man, should have his local paper and THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

Subscript on Rates—WEEKLY, $1 a year; extra copy with every five. SEMI-WEEKLY, $2 a year; extra copy with every five. DAILY, $6.50 per year. SUNDAY TRIBUNE, $1.70. New subscribers receive the paper until Jan. 1, 1889. Remit always by draft, check, express or postal money order or by registered letter.

Premiums—(1.) THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE'S History of the United States and Pocket Atlas of the World, 16mo., 254 pages, 50 maps, 50 colored diagrams; price, 40 cents; to subscribers, 20 cents; prettiest premium of the year—a fascinating running account of the history of the country, with a great variety of statistics and general information. (2.) Presidential Pocket Knife; subscribers' name and picture of his choice for President on the handle; send for descriptive circular; price at retail, $1.75; but given with THE WEEKLY one year for the same money. (3.) Two other styles, for less money. (3.) Popular Picture Gallery;—5 fine large pictures, including the new officers of the G. A. R., Mr. Blaine, Senators Evarts and Hiscock, "Return of the Mayflower," "Christ Before Pilate," and "Children Waking to Santa Claus;" send for circular. (4.) Waltham Watch; expansion balance movement, stem wind, stem set, seven jewels, nickel case, thoroughly reliable, and an excellent watch; with THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE, 1 year, for $7.50. (5.) TRIBUNE'S "Book of Open Air Sports." (6.) Webster's "Unabridged Dictionary." (7.) Wood's "Household Medicine." These premiums cannot be described in full here. Send for circular.

The return to Manchester of Rt. Rev. Bishop D. M. Bradley of the Catholic diocese of New Hampshire, from a four months' pilgrimage abroad on an official visit to the pope, was signalized by a large demonstration on Tuesday night, the 15th inst. The bishop was presented with a purse of $1000.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

The Tribune Enlarged.

The New York Weekly Tribune will go into the fight of the Presidential campaign greatly enlarged, as per announcement in another column. It will also have new presses of the latest pattern, and generally appears to be preparing for vigorous and telling work during the coming year. There is no more sound and instructive paper printed in any of the large cities. The Tribune excels especially in the discussion of questions of general public interest, as for instance that of pensions to the Union volunteers, which is a topic of interest in every part of the country, and to which the Tribune is giving a great deal of space; we notice that it gives the arguments for a Service Pension especial prominence. In regard to all questions of national importance, the Tribune is a republican text book of great authority and ability. If there was ever a time in the history of the country when patriotic men need to think upon national topics, that time is the next twelve months. The surplus of revenue creates a situation which calls for congressional action, and the question must be disposed of in a way to protect the interests of the workingmen, farmers, old soldiers and business men of America, and the general cause of national sobriety and morality. The Tribune gives so much space to these national discussions, and is so full of suggestive thought, that we should be pleased to see the paper in the hands of every thinking man during the coming year. In selecting your newspaper, always stand by your friends—the paper which advocates your interests. One of the new premiums of the Tribune is its "History of the United States and Pocket Atlas of the World," a unique, handsome and valuable premium. Another one is a "Presidential Pocket Knife." A most entertaining one is its "Book of Open-Air Sports."

Address "The Tribune publication office, New York city."

A Queer Suggestion.

Some time ago the New York chamber of commerce, desiring to secure a full expression of opinion on the subjects of the fisheries question and commercial union with Canada, prepared and sent out to a number of prominent men a request that they supply the chamber with their opinions upon these very interesting questions. Among the answers which have received very careful consideration from the members of the chamber is one from Edward Atkinson, in which he makes the decidedly startling proposition that the fisheries question can best be settled by the purchase by the United States from Great Britain of the Canadian maritime provinces of Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick. He proposes that the price to be paid should be $50,000,000, and recommends as the method of payment that the United States assume the maritime provinces' portion of the Dominion debt, which amounts to the sum mentioned. He adds by way of argument that the United States could devote the surplus revenue accumulating during five months to the purchase, and thus secure a valuable territory and remove a disturbing international difficulty without feeling it.

Land Commissioner Sparks tendered his resignation to the president on the 15th inst. The trouble was that Secretary Lamar and the Supreme Court of the United States were all the time reversing decisions made by Sparks. Mr. Sparks does not blame them, being satisfied that on questions of law they mean well, but don't know.

"Littell's Living Age" for 1888. This standard weekly magazine soon enters upon its forty-fifth year. It is the only satisfactorily fresh and complete compilation of the best periodical literature of the world, and hence its long continued success. In the multiplicity of periodicals it is well nigh indispensable to the American reader, as it alone enables him, with a small outlay of time and money, to keep pace with the best literature of the day, and abreast with the work of the most eminent living writers. Its prospectus for 1888 is well worth attention in selecting one's reading matter for the near year. Reduced clubbing rates with other periodicals are given, and to new subscribers, remitting now for the year 1888 the intervening numbers are sent gratis. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

Clara Louise Kellogg and her manager, Carl Strakosch, were married at Elkhart, Ind., at the close of an entertainment given by the company. Every possible effort was made to keep the matter secret for at least two weeks, the records of the marriage being hidden, and the officials and the officiating clergyman pledged to secrecy. Notwithstanding these precautions the news quickly became public property.

The late Mrs. Sarah S. Belcher of Farmington, Me., bequeathed to Bates college the bulk of her estate, amounting to about $75,000. The will was contested by relatives on the ground of undue influence and unsound mind, but the jury at Portland has sustained the will.

A Famous Doctor

Once said that the secret of good health consisted in keeping the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open. Had this eminent physician lived in our day, and known the merits of Ayer's Pills as an aperient, he would certainly have recommended them, as so many of his distinguished successors are doing.

The celebrated Dr. Farnsworth, of Norwich, Conn., recommends Ayer's Pills as the best of all remedies for "Intermittent Fevers."

Dr. I. E. Fowler, of Bridgeport, Conn., says: "Ayer's Pills are highly and universally spoken of by the people about here. I make daily use of them in my practice."

Dr. Mayhew, of New Bedford, Mass., says: "Having prescribed many thousands of Ayer's Pills, in my practice, I can unhesitatingly pronounce them the best cathartic in use."

The Massachusetts State Assayer, Dr. A. A. Hayes, certifies: "I have made a careful analysis of Ayer's Pills. They contain the active principles of well-known drugs, isolated from inert matter, which plan is, chemically speaking, of great importance to their usefulness. It insures activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. Ayer's Pills contain no metallic or mineral substance, but the virtues of vegetable remedies in skillful combination."

The Star bustle that is exhibited at the Mechanics' fair in Boston is no doubt the largest ever made. It is worked by machinery, and the ladies can see as it folds and unfolds that it is the most perfect bustle made; as a person sits down it cannot help folding up, and on rising will unfold at once. It retains its shape when wearing heavy garments, which no other bustle will do. The demand for this bustle has been so great that the manufacturers had to work night and day to fill orders. Foye has secured a limited quantity, and can supply the ladies of Portsmouth and vicinity. See adv.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 36 degrees above zero.

HANDS OFF, GENTLEMEN.

We are informed that the city authorities have granted a request made by Mr. George B. French for a cross-walk at his store on Market street. This may be a good thing for Mr. French, but we regard it as by no means a public benefit. That street has just been put in splendid condition by the street commissioner, at heavy expense to the city, and should not be marred by cross-walks except at points where public convenience may demand it; and of what advantage to the public a crosswalk at that point can possibly be, we fail to discern. If a crosswalk is to be built, to the manifest injury of a highway, merely to benefit one merchant, the same favor must in justice be granted to any other who asks it; and unless improper favoritism is shown, the street of which we have been so proud since it was modernized will soon consist of crosswalks almost wholly. The authorities will do well to make haste slowly in this direction.

VALUABLE LIFE-SAVING STATION.

Mr. John Albee of Newcastle, writing to the Penny Post concerning the men who rescued Capt. H. L. Baker from the wreck of the schooner Mystery, pays his respects to the new life-saving station at Jerry's point as follows:

These men, who have been employed in building the life-saving station on our point, also gave a very good example of the service that should be expected from it. But I fear it is to be manned and managed in the interests of politicians, as it has been built and superintended at this dictation. Its situation is a blunder, or something worse, and was selected against the recommendation of all the men of this region. Would you believe, Messrs. Eds., from the look-out tower of the costly and elaborate structure the wreck of the Mystery, not over five hundred yards distant, cannot be seen! And yet it is a pretty Queen Anne tower; but perhaps it is not intended for a look-out, only an architectural beauty. I am the more inclined to this belief from the fact that a huge chimney erects itself on the seaward side of this wonderful tower, which, so to speak, is to be seen, and not see. And I have no doubt the summer boarder will take great delight in it, and that it will become one of the summer shows of our island. But the distressed sailor cannot even see the building from any of the immediate waters; it is so placed as to be completely hidden from view, except on the land side. In advance of the advertisement I take the liberty of announcing that the best obtainable point of vision for the new life-saving station on Jerry's point is from the piazza of the Wentworth.

When it was first publicly intimated that the new life-saving station "in the vicinity of Portsmouth harbor, New Hampshire," was to be located at Jerry's point, the Chronicle promptly expressed its disbelief in the rumor, the location being so utterly unfit; and when the selection of that site was officially announced, the Chronicle stated that a station there would be practically worthless for the purposes intended, and proved it by arguments which were not answered, because unanswerable. Other papers may have opposed the placing of the station there, but we are not aware that they did. It was built there, and there it will stay, for a time; we only hope the gross error in the selection of the site may not be demonstrated by the loss of lives on that perilous part of the coast which the station should (but cannot) guard, under circumstances showing that such lives would have been saved had the station been in its proper place.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 16th.

William Falvey, for drunkenness, was fined $5, costs $6.90.

REV. SAM. SMALL.

It was a magnificent effort, characteristic of Sam. Small; wonderful in power and pathos, and during its delivery the hushed silence of the audience told how impressively the stirring words were going to their hearts.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Remember that Mr. Small is to be in Portsmouth on Tuesday evening, Nov. 22d, and secure tickets at once at Goodrich's.

THE HIGH TIDES THIS WEEK.

The wharf at Goodrich's tan-yard on Christian Shore was flooded to the depth of over a foot by the high tide of Tuesday, the 15th inst. The tide rose so high that day and Wednesday as to float off large numbers of old sleepers from the railroad side of the pond, and carry them to the other side, where the residents gathered them in for firewood. The new work on Newcastle avenue was badly damaged by the flood, there being thirty or more washouts in the sidewalk along the sea wall, the street commissioner's men and teams being kept busy Tuesday and Wednesday repairing the damages. At Newcastle the road beyond Cooper's hill was submerged for a distance of nearly quarter of a mile, and it is said the foundations of the new life-saving (!) station were washed on all sides by the sea; it might have been carried away entirely without doing any harm.

BURGLARIES.

Tuesday morning of this week the Newmarket station-master found the door of the station open when he arrived there, and upon entering the ticket office, the door of which was also ajar, he found the ticket case upon the floor, broken open, and evidence that a large number of foreign tickets had been taken. Some one had entered the building during the night by way of a window in the west end, breaking the glass and unclasping the catch. The ticket office door was bursted open with a crow bar, which was found on the floor. A small hole was bored into the face of the safe just above the combination lock, and in such a position that if filled with powder and exploded it would probably have thrown the bolts back; but for some reason unknown this was not done. Some private papers in a drawer were taken, but they will not be of any value to those who took them.

Perkins & Co.'s express office at Exeter was burglarized on the night of the 15th inst., the safe blown open, and about $35 in silver and coppers, and three watches, stolen.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Black Warrior, Babbidge, from Boston for Deer Isle, sprung a leak during the blow on the 15th, and was beached at Newcastle.

The whaleboats employed during the summer in shore fishing out of this port were mostly hauled up for the winter on Wednesday of this week, at the south end, the fishermen taking advantage of the unusually high tide that day.

J. H. Dyer of Portland, marine architect, is engaged upon the model and plan of a steamboat contracted for by Duncan & Paul to take the place of the James Sampson next summer. She is to be built by David Clark of Kennebunkport, and delivered by May 1st of next year. She is to be sixty-five feet long over all, sixteen feet beam, and built of the best materials in the strongest manner.

Tuesday of this week was the day assigned for the further hearing of the Downs & Son insolvency case. Judge Leavitt came from Exeter and was ready to hear the parties, but one of the objecting counsel failed to appear, and there was no hearing. The judge returned to Exeter by the earliest train.

Miss Nellie Salome Thomas, one of Boston's favorite sopranos, will command the admiration of all who listen to her popular selections during the grand vocal concert to be given in Music hall by the Wemyss Concert Co. on Thursday evening, the 24th inst.

Lewis E. Staples has laid out a small lot of Ladies' and Misses' Winter Cloaks to sell at five dollars a garment. They are broken lines he will not have again. It might be an advantage to see them.

The endorsement of Mr. Hainer's Sunday evening tirade by the Times is perhaps the best commentary upon the impropriety of its delivery that could be invented.

The young people of Eliot recently organized a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, known as the Eliot Band of Kindness. Monday evening of this week they had a public entertainment under the management of Miss Sarah G. Faulkner, daughter of Prof. Moses G. Farmer, in the Congregational church, which was filled with a pleased and appreciative audience. The programme began with singing by the band; Rev. James Lade sang a solo in admirable voice, and was repeatedly encored; Hon. T. E. O. Marvin, president of the N. H. S. P. C. A., was then introduced, and spoke for half an hour on kindness to animals; and Mr. Albert Dow, an artist recently from Paris, Mr. M. Frank Kief and Rev. Mr. Hibbard, occupied the rest of the evening, illustrating the use and abuse of animals in foreign lands. It was an interesting and instructive meeting.

We would warn everyone not to buy spurious articles in the shape of yeast, peddled from house to house by either men or women; but to buy the Vienna Pressed Yeast, which has stood the severest test for nine years.

It is reported that the house and barn of Mrs. Susan E. Boston, at York, with furniture, hay, farming implements, etc., were burned a few nights since, probably from a defect in the chimney. Loss $1500; partially insured.

Rev. Alfred Elwyn, accompanied by his wife and two daughters, sailed for Europe on the 16th inst.

A professional gentleman who was driving into town from Christian Shore on Wednesday afternoon of this week, in turning into the new part of Vaughan street from Maplewood avenue broke the hind axle of his buggy, as he says owing to a defect in the highway. However this may be, the whole Vaughan street extension is in such condition that any spare funds at the disposal of the committee on streets had much better be laid out there than in building unnecessary stone walks across the excellent driveway of Market street.

Commissioner Sparks of the general land office has been compelled to resign. Thus one after another of the brilliant lights of this luminous administration are snuffed out.

Assistant Marshal Peverly has in his possession a cent of 1784, found under ground by the workmen digging the trench for the recently finished drain from the First national bank to the State street sewer. The coin shows signs of having been exposed to a high degree of heat.

The governor and council have decided to postpone the appointment of bank commissioner until the session in December. Among the gentlemen named for the office is Col. Charles Walker Pickering of Greenland, who is admirably qualified for the proper discharge of the duties of the position.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin's Piano Stringer was introduced by them in 1882, and has been pronounced by experts the greatest improvement in pianos in half a century.

Thanksgiving at the New Hampshire Orphan's Home.

FRANKLIN, N. H., Nov. 15th.

We are about ready to occupy the new brick building. The steam fitter, plumber, carpenter and painter have been busily at work, and the future home for homeless ones will have everything convenient and comfortable for the cold days and months that are coming.

It is proposed to celebrate the occupancy of the new home by a genuine Thanksgiving dinner. If any of the numerous friends of the Home would like to contribute something toward making the little hearts glad and happy this coming Thanksgiving day, it will be gratefully received. J. NOYES, Supt.

Business Chances.

Chances for business are numerous but a man suffering from backache, kidney diseases or sore lungs wants instant relief. The Hop Plaster affords immediate and lasting relief for any kind of pain or soreness. Twenty-five cents or five for $1.

Littell's Living Age.

IN 1888 THE LIVING AGE enters upon its forty-fifth year, having met with constant commendation and success

A WEEKLY MAGAZINE, it gives fifty-two numbers of sixty-four pages each, or more than double column octavo pages of reading-matter yearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering the great amount of matter, with freshness, owing to its weekly issue, and with a completeness nowhere else attempted,

Three and a Quarter Thousand

The best Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Serial and Short Stories, Sketches of Travel and Discovery, Poetry, Scientific, Biographical, Historical, and Political Information, from the entire body of Foreign Periodical literature, and from the pens of the

FOREMOST LIVING WRITERS.

The ablest and most cultivated intellects, in every department of Literature, Science, Politics, and Art, find expression in the Periodical literature of Europe, and especially of Great Britain.

The Living Age, forming four large volumes a year, furnishes, from the great and generally inaccessible mass of this literature, the only compilation that, while within the reach of all, is satisfactory in the COMPLETENESS with which it embraces whatever is of immediate interest, or of solid, permanent value.

It is therefore indispensable to every one who wishes to keep pace with the events or intellectual progress of the time, or to cultivate in himself or his family general intelligence and literary taste

Opinions.

"We have thought that it was impossible to improve upon this grand publication, yet it does seem to grow better each year. . We regard it as the most marvelous publication of the time."—Christian at Work, New York.

"Fiction, biography, science, criticisms, history, poetry, art, and, in the broader sense, politics, enter into its scope, and are represented in its pages. . Nearly the whole world of authors and writers appear in it in their best moods. The readers miss very little that is important in the periodical domain."—Boston Journal.

"It may be truthfully and cordially said that it never offers a dry or valueless page."—New York Tribune.

"At its publication price it is the cheapest reading one can procure."—Boston Globe.

"It furnishes a complete compilation of an indispensable literature."—Chicago Evening Journal.

"It is absolutely without a rival."—Montreal Gazette.

Published WEEKLY at $8.00 a year, free of postage.

☞ TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS for the year 1888, remitting before Jan. 1st, the numbers of 1887 issued after the receipt of their subscriptions, will be sent gratis.

NEW PIANO COLLECTIONS OF EMINENT MERIT.

The New Classical Pianist ($1.00) just out, contains a truly admirable selection from the best works of the best modern piano composers, such as Jensen, Bargiel, Rubenstein, Seiss, Hollaender, Godard, Liszt, &c.; in all 42 pieces by 35 different masters, giving a very unusual variety, and keeping up the interest of the player from beginning to end. Medium Difficulty.

Piano Classics. ($1.00). Has had an exceptional success, which it well deserves.

Young People's Classics. For Piano. ($1.00). Easy piece in excellent taste.

Fairy Fingers. ($1.00) by Bechi, is not new, but a favorite book with teachers, (for the first easy pieces).

Schumann's Album. ($1.25). Good, brief, fairly easy pieces.

A simple and easy "beginners" book is Beilak's Analytical Method for Piano. (75c).

Many good Piano Pieces in a year are given in Ditson's & Co.'s Monthly Musical Record (1.00) in addition to valuable lists of new music, good reading and a large quantity of good songs.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., New York City.

"Get the Best" HOP PLASTERS

For curative power and effectiveness, healing qualities, and quickness of action, they stand without an equal. Scientifically prepared from approved vegetable agents, virtues of Fresh Hops, Gums, Balsams and Hemlock, spread on white muslin. They promptly and thoroughly subdue all pains and aches that torment the human body, vitalize worn-out muscles and strengthen weak parts. Always ready for instant application. Clean, fragrant and never-failing. Hop Plasters sold by druggists and Country stores. 25 cts., 5 for $1.00. Mailed for price by proprietors,

Hop Plaster Company, Boston, Mass.

☞ Beware of imitations. See what you buy. Look for hop-vine wreath and signature of HOP PLASTER COMPANY, on back of plaster and on circular around plaster.

THE HOMELESS.

God help the homeless! wanderers on the earth
For whom no roof inclines its sheltering eaves;
No fireside glows; no voice of love or mirth
Calls to the garden flowers, the hillside sheaves.
'Tis theirs to see the gleam in cottage panes;
The happy groups about the hearth at eve;
While they must cross the moors through chilling rains,
And hide in hut or hedge as twilight wanes,
Without the wind for all their woes to grieve.

Sad hearts! the wayside and the wilderness
Are near to heaven as any fire lit room!
Despairing Hagar angels stoop to bless;
God talks with Moses in the desert gloom;
And life is but a path to his repose,
Whether we walk through meads of joy and love
Or in lone wastes where every tempest blows;
Some peerless morn we reach our journey's close,
And lo! the rapture of the home above!

—Edna Dean Proctor.

THE TWO COMMANDERS.

Grant and Lee at Appomattox—A Striking Contrast.

The contrast between the two commanders was very striking, and could not fail to attract marked attention, as they sat ten feet apart facing each other. General Grant, then nearly 43 years of age, was 5 feet 8 inches in height, with shoulders slightly stooped. His hair and full beard were a nut brown, without a trace of gray in them. He had on a single breasted blouse, made of dark blue flannel, unbuttoned in front, and showing a waistcoat underneath. He wore an ordinary pair of top boots, with his trousers inside, and was without spurs. The boots and portion of his clothes were spattered with mud. He had had on a pair of thread gloves, of a dark yellow color, which he had taken off on entering the room. His felt "sugar loaf" stiff brimmed hat was thrown on the table beside him. He had no sword, and a pair of shoulder straps was all there was about him to designate his rank. In fact, aside from these, his uniform was that of a private soldier.

Lee, on the other hand, was fully six feet in height, and quite erect for one of his age, for he was Grant's senior by sixteen years. His hair and full beard were a silver gray and quite thick, except that the hair had become a little thin in front. He wore a new uniform of Confederate gray, buttoned up to the throat, and at his side he carried a long sword of exceedingly fine workmanship, the hilt studded with jewels. It was said to be the sword which had been presented to him by the state of Virginia. His top boots were comparatively new, and seemed to have on them some ornamental stitching of red silk. Like his uniform, they were singularly clean and but little travel stained. On the boots were handsome spurs with large rowels. A felt hat, which in color matched pretty closely that of his uniform, and a pair of long buckskin gauntlets lay beside him on the table.

We asked Col. Marshal afterward how it was that both he and his chief wore such fine toggery and looked so much as if they had just turned out to go to church, while with us our outward garb scarcely rose to the dignity even of the "shabby genteel." He enlightened us regarding the contrast by explaining that when their headquarters wagons had been pressed so closely by our cavalry a few days before, and it was found they would have to destroy all their baggage except the clothes they carried on their backs, each one naturally selected the newest suit he had, and sought to propitiate the gods of destruction by a sacrifice of his second best.—Gen. Horace Porter in The Century.

First Railway in South America.

Though we of the United States have little to do with the Argentine Republic nowadays, the pioneers of the prosperity of that country were citizens of this. In 1826 William Wheelwright, of Pennsylvania, was wrecked on the Argentine coast, and made his way to a small town called Quilmar, hatless, coatless, bootless, and starving. He remained in the place because he had no means to pay his passage elsewhere, and forty years later constructed the first railway in South America, from Quilmar to Buenos Ayres. He built the first railway in Chili also, and is founder of the Pacific Steam Navigation company, whose vessels run twice a week from Liverpool to Panama, through the Strait of Magellan. Both Chili and the Argentine Republic have erected monuments to the memory of Mr. Wheelwright in their public squares.—William Elroy Curtis in Harper's Magazine.

Accidents in the Alps.

More accidents happened in the Alps this summer than at any previous season. Out of the twenty-four falls twenty were fatal. In the catastrophe upon the Jungfrau six, in that of the Falkniss (canton of Chur) three, and in that of Les Loex (Waadt) two people were killed. Then there were fatal accidents on the Morteratsch glacier (Granbuenden), the Moleson (Waadt), the Gautrist (Berne), the Saentis (Appenzell), the Leissigergrat (Berne), Kaiserseck (Freiburg), Dentdu Corjesan (Waadt). Diablerets (Wallis) Schaechenthal (Uri), with one person killed in each. That makes twenty deaths. Not one guide is among the killed. The majority of accidents did not occur at places commonly considered dangerous, but upon promenades usually looked upon as quite safe.—Chicago News.

San Francisco's Liberty Statue.

The statue of liberty which Adolph Sutro is erecting on Mount Olympus, San Francisco, Cal., is the work of a Belgian artist named Wiertz. It was on exhibition in Antwerp and received high praise. Adolph Sutro saw the figure and thought that it would be an embellishment to the entire San Francisco peninsula. The torch in the upstretched arm of the goddess will be of 16,000 candle power, and the light will be furnished by the city of San Francisco. The torch will illumine the bay and Golden Gate park.—Chicago News.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures mankind actuated. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken it all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from best colds or influenza, and why live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic form, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking coughs gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

Palpitation of the heart, nervous headache, cold hands and feet, pain in the back, and other forms of weakness are relieved by Carter's Iron Pills, made specially for the blood, nerves and complexion.

During a recent night the officers in charge of the Dover police station heard six tramps who were arrested the day before for fighting, chuckling at the winter home they had made for themselves; so it was decided to drive them out of them. Next morning when the marshal opened the cell doors and told them to get out of the city inside of an hour, they did not look a bit pleased, and did not want to go, but the marshal told them that if caught in the city again they would be set to work at the county farm, so they decided to skip at once.

No. 2 Water Street, Portsmouth.

Mr. Charles Schreimer, foreman of a large meat house in Baltimore, Md., says: "I had a sprained wrist for several weeks and began to think it was never going to get well. I was advised to try Salvation Oil, did so and it worked like magic and a few applications entirely cured me."

Dr. H. T. Helmbold, the once wealthy and famous proprietor of Helmbold's buchu, was picked up on the street in New York hopelessly drunk, and sent to a hospital at the request of his son, Nov. 18th.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

A BUSINESS CONTRACT.

The Boston & Maine railroad has made a business contract with the Northern railroad, to operate the latter road for one year, just as if it was under a lease. This term "business contract" is borrowed from the Concord railroad, which corporation, in its arrangements with its early rival, the Manchester & Lawrence road, operated it under a business contract. Contracts between railroads for the use of their roads are legal and binding for five years, even without the sanction of the state authorities. The contract with the Northern, and the existing lease of the Boston, Concord & Montreal to the Boston & Lowell, the validity of which is to be passed upon by the federal court, will leave the Boston & Maine, as lessees of the Boston & Lowell, for the present at least, masters of the situation in the Merrimac Valley.

MARITIME NOTES.

A fine four-masted schooner called the Pocahontas has just been launched at Camden, Me. She is owned by W. H. Phillips and others of Taunton, Mass.

The Royal Clyde yacht club will withdraw its challenge for the America's cup, on the ground that the conditions, as changed by the New York yacht club, are unjust and unsportsmanlike.

The hull of the old schooner Frances Ellen, beached in a sinking condition some weeks ago at Rye harbor, and afterward towed to this port, having been purchased by Mr. Charles S. Drowne was on Thursday removed from Call's wharf, inside the Noble's island bridge, to the south end, and hauled on the beach at the bend of Mechanic street. This was probably her last voyage.

Some months ago all the papers using "illustrated plate matter" contained pictures of the ocean steamship Pocahontas, a wonderful steel vessel alleged to be in course of construction at John T. Agnew & Sons' shipyard in Alexandria, Va., by the Arrow Steamship Co., a company organized under the laws of New York with $1,000,000 capital. This steamship was to be practically unsinkable; so strong that if she ran on a rock and hung by the middle, or on two rocks and hung by both ends, the tide might drop so as to leave her entirely out of water, and she would not bend a hair's breadth; she was to run so smoothly that passengers would be able to play billiards in the palatial 400-foot saloon in the severest storm; was to make twenty-five miles an hour as her ordinary speed, and carry only first-class passengers and mails. The New York Herald prints documents and statements showing that the Pocahantas, the "pioneer ship" of the company, has not yet been commenced, not a pound of metal or a stick of timber having been purchased for her; that the engineer-in-chief and general manager of the company is the ex-fireman of a tugboat; the president, a custom house clerk; the vice-president, a river boatman; and the whole scheme as utter a swindle as the Mississippi and South Sea bubbles.

"Peter Budstone, the boy who was hazed;" by J. T. Trowbridge; handsomely illustrated, and finely printed on heavy paper by Lee & Shepard, Boston; price $1.25. Portsmouth, for sale by M. Godrich.

Mr. Trowbridge in this story shows in his dramatic and somewhat sensational—yet very interesting—way, the evils, the danger and the cruelty of "hazing," and its meanness. The contemptible practice a gradually coming to be regarded in its true light by the students at our educational institutions, as a cowardly exhibition of tyranny; and this book is calculated to help on the reform. Mr. Trowbridge also shows the immense capacity for work and responsibility that is possible in a high-spirited boy of sixteen, and the petty meannesses of petty people in a petty village. It is a good book for boys, teaching as it does a good lesson of manly honor.

"Our Standard Bearer: or, the Life of General Ulysses S. Grant, as seen and related by Capt. Bernard Galligaskin, cosmopolitan, and written out by Oliver Optic." Lee & Shepard, Boston, publishers; pp. 366; illustrated by Thomas Nast; for sale in Portsmouth by M. Goodrich; price $1.50.

Of Mr. Wm. T. Adams (Oliver Optic) as a writer of books for boys, or of Mr. Nast as an artist, the present generation needs no information. "Our Standard Bearer" is in Mr. Adams' best vein, finely printed with good sized type on good quality paper, has many illustrations and illuminated covers, and presents in attractive form for young people a condensed history of the great soldier of the late war, from childhood to the tomb in Riverside park. It is very suitable for a holiday present.

"Three Vassar Girls at Home: a holiday trip of three college girls through the South and West;" by Lizzie W. Champney. Estes & Lauriat, Boston. Sold in Portsmouth by M. Goodrich; price $1.50.

Mrs. Champney takes her "Three Vassar Girls" on a delightful journey through the south and west, and gives them the best of chances to study natural history, geographical features, and human nature, in the latter being included the ruling passion, love. The beautifully printed book is not only very entertaining and often very amusing, but gives a great deal of information regarding what many Americans are sadly ignorant of—our own country. It is profusely illustrated with full-page pictures of interesting scenery, and almost innumerable minor sketches of persons and incidents, by "Champ."

Capt. Holden, of the Harvard football team, is in the Massachusetts general hospital with a broken breastbone, having been hurt in the Harvard-Princeton match. This is Capt. Holden's third visit to that hospital, from injuries received at football.

The Bank of Lafkin, of Kansas, has closed its doors and made an assignment. No statement is given, further than that a settlement will be made as soon as the assets can be realized on.

Thirteen cars laden with Chicago dressed beef were wrecked on the Pennsylvania railroad, near Tyrone, Penn., and the meat scattered in all directions. The company's loss is about $10,000.

Thomas Boyle, aged seventy, night watchman at the Mt. Washington glass works, New Bedford, Mass., was found dead there. The cause was apoplexy.

The two-year-old son of Isaac Cordon of Bangor, Me., died from the effects of being burned.

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

Sold by every Druggist in Portsmouth.

"A Bunch of Violets, gathered by Irene E. Jerome, author and designer of 'One Year's Sketch Book,' 'Nature's Hallelujah,' and 'Message of the Bluebird.'" Lee & Shepard, Boston, publishers.

This exquisite book for the holidays is similar in its conception to the "Message of the Bluebird," which was so great a favorite with the esthetic last year, but the idea is elaborated to a much greater degree. Miss Jerome's illustrations, poetic and artistic as they are, are done full justice to by the engravings on wood of Mr. George T. Andrew, who himself attended to the printing. [By the way, this is the last work of this kind Miss Jerome will produce—she having within a day or two ceased to be Miss Jerome, and become Mrs. Hood.] For sale in this city by M. Goodrich; price $3.75.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, Nov. 17th, Mayor Hodgdon in the chair:

Present the full board.

Petitions for an electric light on Cabot and Austin streets; for four naptha lights on Middle and Spinney roads; for a naptha light at Islington and Spinney roads; for a naphtha light on Wibird street; and for an electric light on Commercial wharf, were referred.

Mr. Kennedy appeared before the board on behalf of the Kennedy & Miller Co., in relation to a sewer from their manufactory; referred to the committee on repairing drains, with power.

Request of J. H. Morrison and others in regard to a drain on State street, was referred to same committee, with power.

A petition was received, signed by S. Maddocks and others, asking a reconsideration of the vote refusing to pay the claim of Henry M. Tucker. After discussion a yea and nay vote was taken, and the petition was laid on the table.

Dennis Shea was granted leave to open a drain.

The condition of Water street was brought up, and the committee on streets were empowered to do what is necessary.

Petition of John Dyer in regard to a drain on Langdon street, was referred.

Bills to the amount of $1480.71 were ordered to be paid.

Petition of Daniel Marcy and others for a gas light on Pleasant street, was granted.

On a yea and nay vote it was decided inexpedient to grant the request of the city employes for weekly payments.

Ald. Wendell introduced the subject of the telephone cable across Market square, and telephone poles recently put up on High street; he favored ordering the telephone company to put the cable under ground, or remove it. Ald. Seymour was called to the chair. After considerable discussion it was voted to notify the company to remove the poles on High street, or comply with the verbal agreement made by them; also to remove the cable, or put it under ground.

The electric light pole corner of Hanover and Bridge streets was ordered to be removed to the opposite side of the street.

Voted that the next electric street light to be established be at the corner of High and Congress streets.

Ald. Urch introduced a preamble and resolutions in relation to the bequest for an equestrian statue of Fitz John Porter, and empowering the mayor to appoint a committee of three to confer with Gen. Porter's family in regard to procuring likenesses representing him as he appeared at the time of the war of the rebellion, to be used in securing a correct likeness in the statue. They were adopted by the board, and Ald. Urch, Seymour and Fletcher were appointed a committee, the mayor being added by vote of the board.

Adjourned to Thursday evening, Dec. 1st, at 7:30 o'clock.

REV. SAM. SMALL.

Read what was said of his great lecture given in Lewiston, Maine, on the 11th of September last: "Sam Small, the celebrated evangelist of Atlanta, Ga., gave his lecture 'From Bar-Room to Pulpit' in this city this evening, and a more delighted audience was never gathered in the city. By his marvelous eloquence he captivated his audience at the beginning, and held them completely spell-bound for two and a quarter hours, and even then the people wished it had been longer. No words can fittingly describe the lecture. The man must be heard before one can form any idea of his wonderful power. Such remarks as these were frequently heard as the people went away: 'I would not have missed that lecture for $10.' 'He would fill the largest hall even tomorrow night, if he could stop;' and 'can't we possibly secure him for another lecture?'"

At Music hall next Tuesday evening. Ticke's now on sale at Goodrich's; see adv.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

Frank Smith and John McAuley, for drunkenness, were each fined $3. costs $6.90; both went to the county farm.

William Woods, another drunk, got $5 fine, costs $6.90; county farm.

William Hurley, drunk, sixty days at the county farm, costs $6.90.

Warren A. Jordan, for stealing three shirts from Edward O'Hare, sixty days in jail, costs $8.04.

An examination for admission to the Portsmouth Training School will be held at the office of the Superintendent of Schools, City Building, Tuesday, Nov. 22, at nine o'clock.

C. H. MORRS, Supt.

The U. S. S. Constellation was taken into the dry dock at the navy yard on Thursday.

You may know the "out-of-town" women at the theatre by the big hats they wear. Only Mrs. Wayback trims her bonnets in the old-fashion step-ladder style. When a girl with a tall hat comes into a concert room or theatre now, people are entirely justified in believing she is wearing her last season's millinery.

Henry S. Bodge, whose sudden death we announced a few days ago, was a member of the Jewellers' League Association, of New York city, and was insured in that organization for the sum of $5000 in favor of his mother, Mrs. William Bodge, of Middle street, this city, who first learned the fact after her son's interment.

Mrs. Alex J. Wemyss will play Wieniawski waltz in D. flat at the grand entertainment of vocal and instrumental music, dialect and dramatic readings and impersonations, in Music hall on the evening of Thanksgiving day, for which tickets can now be procured at Goodrich's.

It is stated that the tenants of the building No. 109 Market street have been notified to vacate the premises, the Seaman's Friend society having secured it for a Seaman's Home and temperance coffee room. Several hundred dollars will be required to be expended in alterations and repairs before the building will be fit for its new uses.

The Portsmouth cricket club propose to put up a club house on their grounds at the Creek, to contain a gymnasium and reading room, if a sufficient number of persons will join to make it feasible. Such an institution would be an excellent thing in that district.

Nat. C. Goodwin, supported by his own comedy company, will appear in this city on Friday evening, Nov. 28th, in the great comedy success "Turned up," never yet performed in this city. The entertainment will commence with the laughable one-act farce "Lend me five shillings." Mr. Goodwin has no equal in his own peculiar line, and fun is always let loose at his performances.

Henry Austin, Esq., formerly of Rye, and well known to the people of this vicinity, is now permanently located in Boston for the practice of law, being associated with Nathaniel L. Frothingham, Esq. Their office is at No. 5 Tremont street. Messrs. Austin and Frothingham are both graduates of the Harvard law school, and from what we know of Mr. Austin we are confident they will succeed.

Woodbury Langdon presided at one of the tables at the dinner given by the New York chamber of commerce on Tuesday night, in behalf of the distinguished English writer, Joseph Chamberlain. Among the guests who didn't make speeches we notice the names of Jacob Wendell, Ralph L. Cutter, Wendell Goodwin and J. Langdon Ward.

Paul's hotel at South Berwick was entered by burglars on the night of the 16th inst., but they were frightened away before securing any booty. They then broke into the house of C. Huntress, and stole a revolver and other articles. They then went to Ephraim Hodsden's house, but were discovered immmediately after getting in, and hurriedly departed.

Some congressmen are of opinion that Congress will find it necessary to enact some legislation which will restrict imigration, and make it impossible for the anarchist leaders of the old world to come here to ply their avocation. The German-Americans are in earnest in this matter, and in order that the cry of "knownothingism" cannot be properly raised, it has been suggested that some naturalized American citizen, who is a member of Congress, shall introduce a bill, the object of which will be to protect this country from the inroads of foreign social pestilence, which is quite as necessary as it is to prevent the importation of cholera or any dreaded epidemic.

Typhoid fever is prevalent in Albany, N. Y., supposed to be caused by the bad quality of the water used. The water supply is from the river, which is very low, and families are directed by the board of health to boil the water before using it. This is supposed to kill the germs of disease lurking in the water.

A large dynamite bomb, made of 1 1-2 inch gas-pipe, was exploded in the boiler shop of the Iowa Iron Works at Dubuque on the night of the 14th inst., being thrown in through an open window; no person was hurt, though it seemed almost a miracle that there was not a great loss of life. The works have had no trouble with their men, but have been running two gangs, day and night, for nine months.

Five Knights of Labor, the executive committee of a new York assembly, have been indicted for conspiracy in the case of O. M. Hart, who was forced out of his position as foreman in a New York shoe manufactory last spring because he would not join the Knights of Labor.

Severe weather has set in at St. Petersburg, Russia, and vessels are leaving to avoid being ice-bound.

USE IVORY SOAP IN THE STABLE.

THE IVORY SOAP is most excellent for washing galled spots, scratches, etc., etc., on horses, for it will cleanse without irritating, and the vegetable oils of which it is made are cooling and healing in effect.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS. The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin's Piano Stringer was introduced by them in 1882, and has been pronounced by experts the "greatest improvement in pianos in half a century."

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

A Mountain Climbing Fever.

Not very long ago, a mild mountain climbing fever permeated certain society circles. There is a most convenient mountain, Tamalpais, close at our doors, an easy mountain to scale, and a grand scenic reward awaiting those who reached the summit. Parties were equipped for the climb, and for a month or so it was considered quite the thing to do Tamalpais, and write one's name on the record book on top. Walking shoes were in demand, women trained in the park for the great feat, men spurted up California street hill to get their muscles quite up to the mark. The deer hunter, lurking in the canyons or scrambling over the mountain spurs, was astonished at the gay parties that invaded his territory. There was a sense of wildness, adventure, and endurance about the feat that gratified the ladies immensely. Then there came a frost, a chilling frost of indifference to mountain climbs, and one could not organize a party of ladies and gentlemen to make the ascent now for any consideration. The reason why this very healthful and very delightful amusement became unpopular was that no one had courage enough to invest it with that picturesque character which would have established it in the female mind. No one went in for regular mountain costume, the very short skirts, the cunning hats and the alpenstock. Had some daring person once started this toilet for Tamalpais, the seamy sides of that grizzly sentinel would have borne almost daily the impress of the female foot, and the gentle sex could enter into competition for the laurel crown to be awarded to the best mountain climber.—The Argonaut.

The Esquimaux Male as a Dodger.

I well remember the first time I saw an Esquimaux house in process of erection. The men were employed in cutting huge blocks of frozen snow, which were laboriously carried by the women to where a foundation had already been laid, and where each block was laid over the other until a snow hut five feet in height was quickly raised. Here the men's labor ceased, and the poor women, each armed with a sort of wooden snow shovel, next proceeded to carefully chink the cracks and later to cover the entire habitation with loose snow. While thus employed the women were without any covering whatever to their hands, and the action of the cold wind must have caused them indescribable sufferings.

The men, however, wore long mittens made of reindeer fur and reaching beyond the elbow, where they were firmly secured to prevent snow from reaching the hands when cutting and handling blocks. I've seen these mittens when frozen stiff given by a husband to his wife or daughter to thaw out, this result being accomplished by the poor creature placing the article inside the bosom of her dress and next to her bare skin. With all the abuse and hardships endured by Esquimaux women they still appear to be always contented with their lot, and I cannot now call to mind a single instance occurring during my northern trip, anywhere complaint was made, even an act of cruelty, that in the United States would have resulted in the perpetrators being sentenced to imprisonment for life.—Cor. Boston Commercial Bulletin.

For any cause of nervousness, sleeplessness, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia, try Carter's Little Nerve Pills. Relief is sure. The only nerve medicine for the price in market

A young son of Peter Makin of Revere, Mass., found a shell of a cartridge which he tried to put on a pencil. As he hammered it it exploded, tearing off all his fingers on his right hand and injuring his face.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla acts directly and promptly, purifying and enriching the blood, improving the appetite, strengthening the nerves, and also invigorating the system. It is, in the truest sense, an alterative medicine. Every invalid should give it a trial.

Senor Tanco Armero, agent of the Colombian government, in a report on the Panama canal indicates that the work is in bad shape, and that the company is seriously involved.

Almost Killed.

I was almost killed by the doctors, who treated me for bleeding piles. It cost me over $100 without relief. I took Sulphur Bitters for two months, and now I am well.—Gus Hall, Troy, N. Y.

Mr. Froude, the historian, writes that any form of self-government for the Irish people would increase England's difficulty in keeping Ireland attached to the United Kingdom.

Catarrh originates in scrofulous taint. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, and thus permanently cures catarrh.

Senator Joseph R. Hawley of Connecticut was married in Philadelphia on Nov. 15th to Miss Edith Horner of England, who has been for several years one of the head nurses at the Blockley hospital in that city. There was a large and distinguished assemblage present to witness the ceremony.

W. C. Potter, of Waterford, N. Y., was confined to his house for nearly a year from liver complaint, being unable to attend to business. His physicians gave him no relief. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry cured him.

SAVED HIS LEG!

SCROFULA OF THE BONE CURED!

LITHONIA, GA., August 11, 1887.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—I have been afflicted with ulceration of the legs ever since I was a child, the disease undoubtedly being hereditary, as my mother suffered from scrofulous symptoms. As I advanced to manhood my affliction increased until the malady became harrassing and painful beyond the power of words to describe. My right leg particularly became fearfully involved, the left leg being less painfully affected. Finally, about twenty years ago, the ulcers on my right leg had eaten through the flesh into the bone. In order to save my life the doctors determined to amputate my leg below the knee. The operation was successfully performed by Dr. E. V. R. Miller, of Atlanta, and Dr. W. F. Bond, of Lithonia. But the loss of my leg gave me only temporary relief. The poison was still in my system and soon began to show itself again. In a short time after large ulcers appeared on my left leg, covering it from the knee to the instep. Frequently while at work I could be tracked by the blood which oozed from the huge ulcers, and the sores and rottening holes were so offensive that my fellow-workmen could not stand the stench and would move away from me.

Last winter I was persuaded to try S. S. S. As a last effort I consented to do so, and about seven months ago I began taking the Specific. I soon began to feel the good effects of the medicine, the offensive running began to grow less and less and finally ceased, the ulcers healed, my flesh became firm and solid, and to day, after using twenty one bottles, I am as hale and stout a man of my age as there is in Georgia. I am seventy-one years old, but feel now younger and stronger than I did when I was twenty-five. I weigh about 170 pounds. Nothing is to be seen of the terrible disease, or to remind me of the torture I suffered for so many years, except the scars of the perfectly healed ulcers.

I want the world to know of the almost miraculous cure effected on me by S. S. S., and I call upon those who wish to know the particulars directly from me to write, and I will consider it a pleasure as well as a duty to answer their letters. I refer to Dr. W. F. Bond, of Lithonia, as to the truth of my statement. Very gratefully yours,

R. DRAKE.

DISCOVERY OF ALCOHOL.

The Distillation of Strong Liquors a Comparatively Modern Invention.

Strong liquors are a modern invention. The ancients knew of nothing more powerful than light fermented wines, and have left warnings enough of the abuse of them. Alcohol was not discovered till the Seventh century, although an older story exists of a monk, Marcus, who collected and condensed in wool the steam of heated white wine, and then pressed out from the wool a balsam which he applied to the wounds of those who fell at the siege of Rheims, in the reign of Clovis I. He also mixed this balsam with honey, and produced a cordial which brought the moribund back to life. Clovis, however, did not wait for the approach of death before claiming his share of the cordial.

According to Dr. Stanford Chaille, the distillation of spirits from wine was not discovered till the Twelfth century, and spirits did not come into common use as drink until the Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries. Professor Arnoldus de Villanova, in the Fourteenth century, made a panacea of the water of life, which gave sweet breath, and fortified the memory. Besides being good for sore eyes, the toothache and the gout, and having other wonderful properties. Distilled spirits came into use in London in 1450, and had to be prohibited in 1494. Michael Savonarola produced a treatise on making the water of life in the Fifteenth century, which became a standard authority on the subject, and was followed by the work of Matthioli de Sienna. These books gave the start to brandy making in Italy, whence the trade extended to France.

About 1520 the Irish usquebaugh began to acquire reputation in England. Before 1601 "brand wine" had begun to be distilled in the low countries from apples, pears and malt; and in that year an ordinance was passed at Tournay forbidding the sale of the liquor except by apothecaries, partly because of the dearness of corn, and partly because of the drunkenness which this cheap brand wine caused, "to the great prejudice not alone of homes and lives, but to the extreme danger of the souls of the drinkers, many of whom had died without confession."

The art of extracting alcohol from other substances was gradually discovered, and liquors of various names came into use. The trade grew great, and the present century has seen a new development of it in the general application of the art of "doctoring liquors."—Popular Science Monthly.

Quicklime Instead of Cremation.

Cremation seems to make but slow progress, and comes, indeed, so violently into conflict with popular prejudices and beliefs that there is little chance of its gaining a footing in this country for the next fifty or 100 years. Meanwhile our cemeteries are overflowing, and some improved method of disposing of the dead is an imperative necessity. Shall I be shocking anybody if I suggest that in all cemeteries quicklime should be used, and that strong oak coffins should be discarded in favor of light wickerwork receptacles.

The idea is suggested by a curious piece of information communicated to me by an official of Newgate, where, as is well known, all murderers are buried in quicklime. When Lipski was hanged the other day a grave was dug for him, as usual, within the prison walls, and, space there being limited, the spot selected for the purpose was that where Wainwright was buried ten or twelve years ago. On the earth being dug into, only a faint streak of lime was found to mark the place where the body of the notorious murderer of Harriet Lane was laid. Flesh, bones, clothing—everything had disappeared, and the soil was, moreover, as sweet as if it had done nothing but grow buttercups and daisies. Imagine what would have been the result had an ordinary grave been dug into in this fashion. What a mass of corruption would have "breathed forth contagion" to the world. And, be it remembered, the disappearance of the body was, no doubt, as complete at the end of three months as at the end of ten years. Of Lipski himself there is now probably only a streak of lime left. What reasonable objection could there be to the adoption of quicklime as a purifier of our cemeteries? Its only effect would be to hasten the dissolution which we all know to be inevitable.—London Life.

The Arm of the Future.

The increased energy of infantry fire, which the introduction of the repeating rifle will bring with it, will probably not cause any radical change in the nature of fighting. Such will probably first take place when the discovery of another impelling force has taken the place of gunpowder. The latter, when compared with the modern development of technical science, must be regarded as antiquated means that only barely exists because no proper substitute has been yet found for it. That it will be superseded is only a question of time. If an impelling energy could be discovered which, without loud detonation and smoke, would work upon the projectiles, and was, at the same time, of the necessary energy, great revolutions in the mode of fighting would ensue which we are as yet not capable of estimating.—The Nation in Arms—Von der Glotz.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, special, permanent, economical, safe.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and an IMPROVED INHALER; price, $1.

An Able Protector.

If there is a more able protector against the incursions of disease than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, we have yet to learn of it. Against the periodic attacks of fever and ague it affords a sure defence, it renews waning vitality, and counteracts the infirmities of age; it prevents dyspepsia from becoming chronic, and eventually annihilates it. It rouses the liver and kidneys when dormant, and insures a regular habit of body. To the nervous it is of inestimable benefit, imparting steadiness and vigor into an enfeebled physique. The term, "delicate health," is usually another name for debility. While the Bitters are procurable, the weak need never despair of physical reinforcement. Persons whose avocations are sedentary and laborious, or involve exposure to unfavorable climatic influences, will also find the Bitters an able protector.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER.

FURS—TRIMMINGS — WEDDING DRESSES—CHRISTMAS TOYS.

Seal fur is turned and twisted as if it were cloth, and made not only into tight fitting jackets but small wraps of complicated shape, both styles being popular for young ladies, who share also with their elders in the warmth given by a long garment, though for them, the tight Newmarket, open back and front, is most in favor. Older women of slender figure may adopt the short wraps, but to stout women they are fatal. Fur capes with cuffs to match, and perhaps muff, are also worn by young ladies, while especial style attaches to long fluffy boas, which are flung about in snaky fashion; often crossed at the throat and hanging behind, muff to match. Seal sacques remain much as last winter, but while comfortable, there is no style in a sacque at present. Fur lined circulars are very little worn except for carriage use, but for trimmings are very fashionable, especially black, which is the rage.

BLACK TRIMMINGS

On colored material are extremely stylish, yet not more so than light trimmings on dark goods, while garnitures of silver, bronze or steel are continually noticeable. Braid, galoons, or passementeries are made of them, and sometimes the different metals are combined with a very pretty glitter. The wide-open patterns of last summer are repeated, and a favorite way of placing is to run them down the front of the corsage with vest effect and cuffs to match, while a very wide braid may finish the bottom of the skirt. All this has interfered with the popularity of beads, but nevertheless they hold their own, and many handsome wraps and dresses are adorned by them. But the metal braids are cheaper while effective, since beadwork is not desirable unless fine, and fine beadwork is expensive. Jabots and corsage capes entirely of beads are sought after, often composing the whole corsage trimming; and both here and elsewhere, colored beads are combined with excellent effect. For

WEDDING DRESSES

The leading materials are moire, rep, faille Francaise, gros grain, or sometimes satin, but satin is not very stylish at present. Less expensive dresses are of China or India silk, or of white wool which can be relieved by them, or one of the handsomer fabrics mentioned previously. The tulle veil is worn off the face and can be attached by some of the many hair ornaments in vogue; white gloves of dressed or undressed kid, with fine or heavy stitching; flowers, any fancy in white more frequently than the conventional orange blossoms. Brides who marry in traveling dress, should select a tailor-made suit in some stylish color, and such outfit would be most suitable for the going-away costume in any case. Hat to match, and heavy stitched tan gloves.

CHRISTMAS TOYS

Which now excite the greatest attention here, are the "Anchor Stone Building Blocks," (real stone in three different colors,) and as they are put up in boxes running from $1 to $26, the purchaser can spend much or little. Each box moreover, though complete in itself, is contrived to supplement another, so that commencing with a one dollar box, the good child can have successive boxes till reaching the extended limit. The bricks are brought out in exact mathematical sizes, and in red, slate and sandstone yellow, so that they form stylish architecture, while illustrations in those colors serve as a guide to the young builder. Being a German invention, these delightful toys took well in Europe, where the czar of Russia and the crown princess of Germany ordered supplies for juvenile royalties. Merchants throughout the country sell this admirable and striking novelty, but if not obtainable in your town, send to the patentees, E. Ad. Richter & Co., 310 Broadway, New York, who send lists with particulars gratis on application. Make a trial for one holiday box and you never will have made a better purcase for your children— others are wild about them.

LUCY CARTER.

Fire Insurance in New Hampshire.

The New York Times, which has followed up the recent enactments as to insurance companies in this state, and is always full of compassion for the unprotected people of New Hampshire, occasionally prints a jeremiade like the following:

"Although the recent session of the New Hampshire legislature was a very long one, the so-called 'valued policy' law concerning fire insurance, which drove fifty-eight prominent companies out of the state, was neither repealed nor amended. Unfortunately all suggestions looking to legislation for the better defense of villages against fire by the organization of fire departments were ignored, and the local companies, on which the burden of insurance falls, are thus deprived of the aid which they desired. This burden has for the year been exceptionally heavy, for the state's fire loss in the first ten months of 1887 was $1,470,471, or more by $1,000,000 than the loss in the corresponding months of 1886. The Boston Commercial Bulletin says: 'The semi-annual statistics of the standing of the fire insurance companies to the state were collected, but suppressed—a thing before unheard of—lest the wretched showing should startle the legislature into remedial action against the desire of the leaders in the crusade against the outside companies. We have excellent reason to believe that there are not five companies in the state solvent to-day under the laws of Massachusetts or any other state that adequately guards the interests of the policy holders, and we challenge a contradiction of this statement.'"

On the other hand Insurance Commissioner Pilsbury said in a recently-published interview that "each succeeding year gives the companies that were early established in our state the advantage of experience, and renders them stronger and better qualified to handle the large amount of business which goes to them."

Though the fire losses in this state, as in many others, were unusually great during the summer, owing to the drouth and intense heat, to a great extent, we hear of no general complaint on the part of our people that they cannot get what insurance they require, nor that losses are not promptly paid according to the terms of the policies; and we seem to be getting along pretty well, thank you, ever though we have not the countenance of the fifty-eight prominent insurance companies which withdrew their protection from the state rather than submit to the just and equitable valued policy law.

The next house of representatives at Washington will consist of 168 democrats, 153 republicans and four independents. It will be seen that the minority is to be so large that there is not much likelihood of the democrats with their imperfect organization and dissimilar views, accomplishing much in the way of what they call revenue reform. In fact the republicans will have an abler set of men in the house, in proportion to numbers, than will the majority contain. If the republican members will stay at the capital and attend to legislation not much mischief can be accomplished by their opponents.

Catarrh in the Head

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with increased secretion. Thus catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that often its presence is not suspected till it has obtained a firm hold on its victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is exceedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the diseased membrane, and thus soon cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I am happy to state that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GINN, 1029 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, Ohio.

Horsford's

BREAD PREPARATION

The acid phosphate in this preparation supplies the vital phosphates essential to the system, and assists digestion. No other baking powder does this.

Dr. J. E. L. Kimball, of Saco, says:

"I think Horsford's Bread Preparation is adapted to the wants of the system, and for domestic purposes stands unrivalled."

Dr. John Lord, of Biddeford, says:

"I give Horseford's Bread Prepartion my hearty endorsement, believing that it imparts to food, material necessary for the nutrition of the brain, preventing mental exhaustion, and acting as a nerve food and tonic."

Dr. J. A. LaPoint, of Biddeford, says:

"Horsford's Bread-Preparation has been used in my family for a long time, with most satisfactory results. I think it superior to all other baking powders, because it restores the phosphates, those life-giving elements which are contained in the grains of wheat, but not in fine wheat flour."

Dr. L. E. Grant, of Great Falls, says:

"Horsford's Bread Preparation is far superior to cream of tarter in cooking flour. Phosphates enter largely into the composition of animal tissues. This preparation, being rich in phosphates, supplies the system with those valuable elements."

Dr. J. W. Preston, of Great Falls, says:

"It is beyond question that some of the essential elements of wheat are lost in milling, and they can only be restored by the use of such elements in making bread. Horsford's Bread Preparation furnishes just what is needed."

Dr. H. V. Noyes, of Berwick, says:

"I have tested Horsford's Bread Preparation, and believe it healthful, inasmuch as it restores to the flour those properties which are removed in milling. We made good bread with it."

Dr. F. E. Wilcox, of Rochester, says:

"The process of manufacturing wheaten flour, removes with the bran nearly all the phosphates, which are positively necessary to the growth and repair of the tissues of the body. These salts must in some way be supplied to the system, or the result will appear in some form of disease of the osseous or nervous systems. Horsford's Bread Preparation I believe to be free from alum and other deleterious ingredients, and contains a sufficiency of these vital salts to restore to bread the health-giving phosphates lost by the bolting process."

Dr. E. T. Hubbard, of Rochester, says:

"I recommend Horsford's Bread Preparation as an admirable adjunct to economical housekeeping. In my opinion it contains nothing detrimental to health, and it supplies to fine flour those phosphatic elements removed by milling."

Dr. Levi G. Hill, of Dover, says:

"The phosphates are the essential and vital constituent of all grains, and are declared to be the principal ingredient in Horsford's Bread Preparation. I endorse the correctness of the scientific principles claimed for this preparation, in restoring to the flour the nutritive phosphates lost in milling.

Dr. Albert G. Fenner, of Dover, says:

"My test of Horsford's Bread Preparation fully shows it to be all that is claimed for it, and amply proves the correctness and truth of the scientific principles upon which in is founded."

AT MUSIC HALL TO-NIGHT.

"The Kindergarten," the musical comedy that is to be produced in Music hall this evening, has achieved great success in the large cities, particularly New York, and the amusement loving public may confidently look forward to an evening rich in enjoyment. The comedy abounds in musical gems, its action is bright, and the dialogue crisp and witty. Its presentation at Newburyport the first of this week was the occasion of the most commendatory notices in the papers of that city the following day. It is not only a musical treat, but full of fun.

REV. SAM. SMALL.

Many people have an idea that Rev. Sam. Small is an uneducated man, which is a great mistake. He is well educated, and a regular graduate of a college; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; was editor for several years of a leading journal in the south; has travelled extensively in foreign lands, and held an important official position abroad under President Hayes. In addition to all this he is possessed of uncommon abilities as a public speaker; for real wit, deep pathos, burning sarcasm and genuine oratory he is seldom equalled, while to his apt stories and quaint illustrations there seems to be no end. All can afford to hear him when he comes to Portsmouth.

PERSONAL.

The engagement is announced of Commodore Theodore D. Wilson, chief constructor of the navy, and Cora Selena Hubbard, daughter of the late Captain William Hubbard of the British navy. The marriage, which will be a quiet and private affair, will take place on the 7th of next month in Washington.

Mrs. John J. Pickering of this city started for New York on Friday, to sail on Saturday from that port in the Transatlantic company's steamer La Bourgogne for Havre, France, accompanied by her brother, J. Horace Jenness, Esq., of Paris. In accordance with the peremptory command of her physician she will pass the winter at Cannes, France, and in Algiers, Africa, for the benefit of her health, which has become much impaired through her devotion to the reform which is so intimately associated with her name in New Hampshire, the prevention of cruelty to animals.

A naval court martial met at the New York navy yard on the 17th inst. for the trial of Lieutenant Emory H. Taunt, on charges of absence from duty and station without leave, disobedience of orders and scandalous conduct, preferred by the secretary of the navy. The court consisted of Captains F. M. Ramsay, N. H. Farquhar, T. F. Kane and C. M. Schoonmaker, and Commanders E. M. Shepard, George W. Coffin, George H. Wadleigh, William H. Whiting and B. H. McCalla, with Lieutenant Adolph Marix as judge advocate. The specifications allege that Lieutenant Taunt was absent from the Nipsic, without leave, from October 12th until November 1st; that when he was found at the Sturtevant house in New York, October 22d, and ordered by Commander Mullin to report immediately on the Nipsic, he refused to obey, wilfully concealed himself, for nine days prevented the enforcement of the order, and by the excessive use of intoxicating liquor incapacitated himself for the proper performance of his duty. Lieut. Taunt, who married the daughter of Commodore English at the Portsmouth navy yard, and is well known here, has been regarded as one of the most promising young officers in the service; and his friends can account for his actions only upon the ground of mental derangement.

Miss Nettie Bradbury, in her wonderful dialect reading, and Highland dance in costume, is alone worth the price of admission to Music hall on Thursday evening, the 24th, inst., when the Wemyss Concert Co. will give one of the entertainments which have been so favorably received in Massachusetts during the past few weeks. Tickets on sale at Goodrich's, on and after Monday.

Ayers & Locke will open 500 yards of trimming velvets, new goods direct from the importers, at the extremely low figure of fifty-nine cents per yard; these goods have never been sold at less than seventy-five cents per yard; full assortment of colors, embracing eleven leading shades. This is an offering that cannot be obtained elsewhere.

The interior of Jackson & Co.'s express office is being fitted with a new private office, and other improvements. The work is done by Anderson & Junkins.

A lady of this city had sixteen teeth extracted one day this week, while under the influence of gas; she was just 4 1-2 minutes in the dentist's chair, and on reviving from the influence of the gas asked the operator why he had not pulled the undesirable masticators.

Ayers & Locke propose to reduce their stock to make room for their usual holiday display; prices in every department accordingly.

Lewis E. Staples has laid out a small lot of Ladies' and Misses' Winter Cloaks to sell at five dollars a garment. They are broken lines he will not have again. It might be an advantage to see them.

During the year ending Oct. 31st, 1887, seventeen Gloucester fishing schooners have been lost; their aggregate tonnage was 1137.67 tons, and with them were lost 127 men, leaving sixty widows and sixty-one fatherless children. In addition, forty-one other seamen lost their lives by drowning, starvation in dories, or other mishap.

Rev. Justin D. Fulton of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been creating a great sensation among Catholics in Biddeford by giving a series of discourses against Romanism. The excitement has been so great that officers have been stationed at the hall. On the evening of the 17th, during his lecture on "Romanism, the assassin of Abraham Lincoln," several stones were thrown through the windows.

Rev. Mr. Merrill of Hampton will preach in the Pearl street church to-morrow.

The subject in the Universalist church to-morrow at 10:30 will be "Gratitude," with instructions where and how to bestow it. Some practical examples are to be given. At 7:30, lecture, "The Sin of Ingratitude."

A public memorial service under the auspices of Rockingham Lodge of Good Templars, in honor of the late temperance reformer, John B. Finch, will be held Sunday evening, at the Methodist church. All temperance societies in the city and neighboring towns are cordially invited to join, and to meet at the lodge-room on Pleasant street at seven o'clock that evening.

The union lasters in the Cummings shoe factory at South Berwick some time ago struck against a reduction of wages consequent on the introduction of lasting machines, and their places were taken by non-union lasters. On the 16th inst. the non-unionists asked for an advance in wages, claiming that they could not make a living at the rates paid; this was refused, and they also left work. This made two strikes under way at once in that shop.

An examination for admission to the Portsmouth Training School will be held at the office of the Superintendent of Schools, City Building, Tuesday, Nov. 22, at nine o'clock.

C. H. MORSS, Supt.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

Mayor Hewitt of New York apparently prides himself upon his ability to write letters. At least he has a weakness for this custom. When the mayor can write such an unanswerable letter as Mr. Schurz wrote to him concerning a law and order mayor and democratic capitalist endorsing Fellows and the element which backed him, he will be regarded as an expert in epistolary results. By the way, we notice that Fellows has been to Washington to exchange congratulations with President Cleveland on the result in New York. Fellows feels that the fight over his nomination drew out the democratic vote, put it in line for action, and saved the state for Cleveland and reform. Under these circumstances Fellows wants Mr. Cleveland to remember him in the next divide.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin's Piano Stringer was introduced by them in 1882, and has been pronounced by experts the "greatest improvement in pianos in half a century."

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

Rev. Josiah L. Seward has resigned the pastorate of the First Unitarian church in Lowell, Mass.

For any case of nervousness, sleeplessness, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia, try Carter's Little Nerve Pills. Relief is sure. The only nerve medicine for the price in market

---

Rev. Charles A. Berry of England has not yet accepted the call to Plymouth church, Brooklyn.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla acts directly and promptly, purifying and enriching the blood, improving the appetite, strengthening the nerves, and also invigorating the system. It is, in the truest sense, an alterative medicine. Every invalid should give it a trial.

The new "American" party is said to be rapidly increasing in number as a result of the recent anarchist excitement.

Almost Killed.

I was almost killed by the doctors, who treated me for bleeding piles. It cost me over $100 without relief. I took Sulphur Bitters for two months, and now I am well.—Gus Hall, Troy, N. Y.

More trouble in District Assembly 49, New York. This time it is charged that some of the members did not vote the "united labor" ticket at the late election.

Catarrh originates in scrofulous taint. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, and thus permanently cures catarrh.

At Ishpening, Mich., a dynamite drying house blew up, and no trace of the building or six men in it could be found.

Americans Live Too High.

The high living of the American people causes biliousness, constipation, pain in the head, and many other kindred complaints. Undoubtedly you have read of Little Hop Pills and intended to try them. Neglect no longer. Buy a bottle at once. They will cure in any case. At druggists, or mail twenty-five cents in stamps to the Hop Pill Co., New London, Conn.

Robert Bonner has given up the New York Ledger to his three sons, who will be known by the firm name of Robert Bonner's Sons.

W. C. Potter, of Waterford, N. Y., was confined to his house for nearly a year from liver complaint, being unable to attend to business. His physicians gave him no relief. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry cured him.

Rose Elizabeth Cleveland will spend the Christmas holidays at the White House.

Boston in Luck.

At the drawing of The Louisiana State Lottery in New Orleans, Oct. 11, three of the big prizes were captured by Boston men. Mr. Israel Ginsburg, who held one-tenth of ticket numbered 13,646, drew one-tenth of the capital prize of $150,000. Mr. Ginsburg is a young man, nineteen years of age, and lives with his father at 57 Salem street, in quarters that betray a life of hardship and moderate, if not extreme poverty. He is a Russian Jew, a peddler by trade, and has only been in this country a few years. To few men, therefore, could the smile of fortune have been more welcome. The morning the lucky numbers were published Mr. Ginsburg looked them, as he thought, carefully over, but failed to discover that his ticket bore the luckiest number of all. When his friend Mr. Finberg congratulated him later in the day he naturally thought he was joking, and it was no easy matter to convince him of his good luck. However, the pleasant truth sooner or later dawned upon him, and if he should ever doubt it again all he will have to do will be to visit the Blackstone and Fourth National Banks, where he will find that last week he deposited in them $7,000 and $6,000 respectively. The remaining $2,000 the grateful son presented his father. Little does this Mr. Ginsburg's good fortune have been talked of in the neighborhood of Salem street since the drawing, and it is estimated that over 200 tickets have been sold there for the next date. Mr. John F. Sullivan and another Bostonian each held a tenth of ticket 58,430, which also drew a capital prize, the amount in cold cash received by each being $2,000. Mr. Sullivan is a poor man, perhaps thirty-five years old, who during the past few years has been without any permanent employment, though during the most of his life he was a more or less successful junk dealer. He has been a staunch believer in The Louisiana State Lottery, and has found it a profitable investment before. The other gentleman, whose name we are not at liberty to publish, is the cashier of one of the wealthiest companies in the United States. He has drawn prizes before, though none were so large as the last, and expressed himself as perfectly satisfied with his experience, and considered The Louisiana State Lottery Company as one of the fairest and most honest financial organizations in the country.—Boston (Mass.) Courier, Oct. 30th.

AN AUSTRALIAN'S CHAT.

"Gath's" Interesting Conversation With a Citizen of the Antipodal Continent.

Going out to the coast were some Australians, with one of whom, named George Walker, a hotel keeper in Melbourne, I talked parts of several days to the following effect:

"When did you leave Australia?"

"Last May. When I reach home, about Oct. 20, I shall have crossed the equator twice and been around the world. The fare from Melbourne to England by Suez is nearly the same as from England by the United States back to Melbourne; say £70 each way, or $700 around the globe. I have spent in the five months of my absence £500. I have not been to England before for ten years, and can hardly go again for five years more. My brother came out to America with me and went home from Chicago."

"Only at Aden, in the Red sea, and we tied up at night in the Suez canal, because we carried no electric light. I got off at Naples and came overland to London. The ship touches at Plymouth first, and then comes up the Thames to Gravesend. Going back, we shall stop at Honolulu and at Auckland, New Zealand. It is a tedious job crossing the equator, and for a fortnight we are in a languid sweat. Still, we do not feel so far out of the world as you might suppose, since we have an ocean cable and get the news from everywhere daily. There are two regular lines of steamers, the Peninsular and Oriental and the San Francisco line, besides French and German service."

"How is the railroad service, comparatively?"

"Better than in Europe. But in Australia the government of each province owns all the railways. We have no corporation railways at all. The Victoria railways pay nearly 5 per cent. Those of New South Wales pay only 2 per cent.—hardly that. But you see, Melbourne city has 400,000 people."

"Then, I suppose, you have no excessively rich men, since you have no railway magnates?"

"God bless your soul, we have got one man worth £8,000,000. He is a money lender; old Money Miller he is called, aged now 94 years. The poor fellow is a skinflint. Ten per cent. is low interest for him. He made most of his money going security for the administrators of trust estates, where securities are required of double the sum involved. The law plays directly into the old fellow's hands unconsciously. We have a large line of wealthy men; real estate in Melbourne is enormously high. I thought to buy a piece of ground ten miles from the city, of only twenty-five acres, but the price asked was £5,000. It afterward sold for three times that amount. In the best parts of Melbourne ground is £1,200 the front foot, lots 200 feet deep."

"Have you got universal suffrage?"

"Yes. That is the trouble with us. Our speaker of assembly, Sir Peter Lalor, is the representative of the rough element. Some years ago he was a proclaimed rebel, having resisted the collection of the government tax on miners. But without him and some other such natural leaders of headstrong forces, I suppose we should not get along at all. The effect of universal suffrage is to make men vote into office people whom they like rather than people they should like. One fellow gives a dinner to every constituent; another buys up the bosses of a district. The society of Australia compared to that of England is like a perpetual picnic. Those who stay after they have made their pile are those who find England dull and distasteful."

"How do your colonies compare?"

"New South Wales, or Sydney, is the old, conservative, jealous, parent state. Melbourne is the American state of Australia. Their leading politician calls us a mere cabbage garden, alluding to our raising table vegetables for Sydney. We generally carry away anything valuable or enterprising, such as the colonial exhibition of next year. South Wales has a good city, Adelaide, of near 100,000 people. Perth is the young emporium of West Australia; Brisbane is the chief city of Queensland, where now is a good deal of land speculation. Victoria is the high tariff state, whilst Sydney is the free trade port.

"We have a duty of above 27 per cent. on machinery, so that $500 worth costs above its value to import near $140. We had a piece of public work to do recently where the home bid was £25,000 more than the English bid, yet the minister gave the work to the home bidders, and they were unable to complete it, so that it had finally to be sent abroad, after all."

"Does Sydney grow faster than Melbourne?"

"I think Sydney has been growing rather faster of late, although the general movement of the two states is in favor of Melbourne, which is 500 miles farther south, and therefore colder and much more energetic. You see our cold climate is the southern. Our cold wind comes from the south pole. Our spring is next month, October, and our summer is January. The sun rises differently to us from its course overhead in Europe and America. We have a climate alternated by stifling heat from the north and cold blows from the south, which we call our southern busters."—George Alfred Townsend in Boston Globe.

Woman Suffrage in Belfast.

Municipal suffrage has just been granted by parliament to the women householders of Belfast. Women householders have had municipal suffrage in England for eighteen years, and in Scotland for four years; but this is the first step that has been taken toward extending the same right to the women of Ireland. There are about 8,000 women householders in Belfast who will be entitled to vote under the new law.—Home Journal.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and why live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

An Able Protector.

If there is a more able protector against the incursions of disease than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, we have yet to learn of it. Against the periodic attacks of fever and ague it affords a sure defence, it renews waning vitality, and counteracts the infirmities of age; it prevents dyspepsia from becoming chronic, and eventually annihilates it. It rouses the liver and kidneys when dormant, and insures a regular habit of body. To the nervous it is of inestimable benefit, imparting steadiness and vigor into an enfeebled physique. The term, "delicate health," is usually another name for debility. While the Bitters are procurable, the weak need never despair of physical reinforcement. Persons whose avocations are sedentary and laborious, or involve exposure to unfavorable climatic influences, will also find the Bitters an able protector.

M. S. Dean, one of the contractors on the Skowhegan, Me., water works, has gone away and left his help unpaid. He had about 100 Italians in his employ, and owes them a full month's wages, amounting to some three or four thousand dollars.

No woman can be contented and happy if her skin is covered with pimples and blotches. These disfiguring eruptions are easily removed by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine is perfectly safe to take, and is a thoroughly reliable blood purifier.

Citizen (to member of board of trade)—"Any business of importance accomplished at the meeting last night?" Member—"Yes." Citizen—"What was it?" Member—"We perfected arrangements for the annual dinner of the board."

If you are nervous or dyspeptic try Carter's Little Nerve Pills. Dyspepsia makes you nervous, and nervousness makes you dyspeptic; either one renders you miserable, and these little pills cures both.

Under a recent decision of the North Carolina supreme court, a judge in that state has issued a warrant for the arrest of a man for committing assault with a deadly weapon, "to wit, a certain vicious and large bulldog."

My friend, look here! you know how weak and nervous your wife is, and you know that Carter's Iron Pills will relieve her, why not be fair about it and buy her a box?

In Cincinnati, last week, the committee of the car drivers' and conductors' union demanded the dismissal of John Harris, superintendent of the Consolidated Street Car Co.; the demand was not complied with, and 300 conductors and the same number of drivers quit work, leaving 100 miles of line idle. The company say they will not yield a hair's breadth.

The President

Of the Bank of Waverly, Iowa, says: "Sulphur Bitters saved my life. For ten years I suffered from catarrh and liver complaint. I lost forty-five pounds, and was growing worse rapidly. I had lost all faith in medicine; but hearing your bitters so well recommended, I gave them a trial. Six bottles cured me."—Smith P. Hunt, Waverly, Iowa.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

They Want Persecution.

An anarchist meeting having been held in Newark, N. J., and the most incendiary speeches made by the foreign-born scum, the police commissioners revoked the license of the hall, whereupon the Arbeiter Zeitung, the anarchist paper of the city, raves as follows:

That's what we want — persecution. The more the better. Suppress meetings; stop processions; take the red banners away; arrest our leaders; indict them; send them to prison and hang them if you want to, we don't care since it has become an honor to die by your hands on the gallows. Fools thou art. Every thinking man knows that the people who are enforcing the laws of the American people are a lot of ignoramuses. They haven't learned from old Europe yet that to persecute only helps the persecuted. This is Yankee stupidity. Thousands and thousands are coming to this country to swell the ranks, and the more they are persecuted the more it will result eventually in their favor. Therefore, go on.

The execution of the anarchist murderers made manifest the fact that thousands of the worst criminals of Europe have swarmed into this country, with the avowed purpose of overthrowing all our forms of government and destroying our social fabric, and assassinating all who dare to oppose their precious scheme of "regenerating" America. That they can ever effect their ends is of course beyond possibility; but they should be made to keep within the bounds of reason in speech and writing, or set to breaking stone in the penitentiary—those that already here—and the further immigration of the pestilent ruffians should be prevented. Just how this desirable end is to be effected we leave others to plan. A way has been found to prevent the landing on our shores of an honest and industrious mechanic, who would be a benefit to the country and proposes to obey its laws, if he has secured beforehand a job which assures the means of earning a livelihood; it should not be impossible to devise some method of fencing out aliens who openly announce that they come here solely to wage murderous war on our institutions, and make a living by dividing up the property of the American people.

The Barker Will.

On Wednesday of last week the trustees of the will of Hiram Barker of Farmington offered to probate the will at a special term of the probate court at Farmington. The deceased left property worth over $750,000. He cut off his son with a small annuity, but provided that, when the son's youngest child is forty years old, the estate may be divided between his children and those of his sister, if she has any. The son opposed the probate of the will, alleging that his father was incompetent to make a will. The hearing was continued from Wednesday to Saturday morning, when many witnesses for the trustees testified as to the capability of the deceased to make a will. By agreement the hearing was postponed until Jan. 4th, when many other witnesses will testify on both sides. It will be a pretracted contest.

In the citizens' caucus at Dover on Friday night James Whitehouse was nominated for mayor. He was a candidate for the same position on the democratic ticket in 1883 and made a very fine run, coming within 100 of being elected. The citizens' party expect that the democrats will indorse the nomination. Mayor Lowell will be re-nominated by the republicans.

A despatch of the 18th from Amsterdam, N. Y., says: "An aerolite weighing three tons dropped with a loud report in front of the Merchants' national bank on East Main street at 11:20 this morning, making a deep indentation in the ground. Large crowds viewed the celestial visitor. Local experts find traces of iron, nickel, aluminum and other metals in the aerolite." Possibly a big phenomenon; more likely a big lie.

While Mrs. Philander Rogers was ironing clothes at Biddeford, Me., Friday, her dress caught fire from the stove, and she was seriously, if not fatally, burned.

An unoccupied house in Ogunquit, Wells, was destroyed by fire on Wednesday evening, the 9th inst., and also a small barn and contents, consting of ten tons of hay, farming utensils and wagons, the property of two farmers named Ramsdell and Fitzgerald, whose loss was fully covered by insurance. Mrs. E. C. Moody of York held a mortgage on the buildings, which were covered by an insurance policy for $900. The fire is supposed to have been incendiary.

The British steamer Brixham, at New York from St. Ann's bay, Jamaica, reports that on Sunday, Nov. 13th, when passing Watling's island, she was signalled from the lighthouse station as follows: "A crew; French; distressed seamen; bleeding; shipping; boat coming." The captain of the Brixham says he could see no boat coming from the shore, and having a perishable cargo of fruit, and fearing that by taking sick men on board he might be detained at quarantine on arrival, he did not stop.

WESTERN LOANS.

New Hampshire savings banks held mortgages on western farms and western city property in 1886 of $15,475,924.88, and in 1887 of $18,506,151.74, an increase in one year of $3,030,226.86. Vermont has five and a half millions thus invested; and Rhode Island, with plenty of money but more conservative ideas, has $4,200,000. These loans cause a large sum to be constantly flowing from the west toward the east.

The Ohio State Authorities Examine the Baking Powders.—Searching Investigation as to their Merits.

Cleveland's the Best.

The Commission appointed by the Ohio Legislature to examine food products has made its report on baking powders. The State Chemist, Prof. Weber, analyzed thirty different brands. Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder is in point of merit at the head of the list of all the cream of tartar baking powders. It contains the most cream of tartar and produces the largest amount of carbonic acid gas, the leavening agent. The following from the official report will enable the public to form an intelligent opinion from unprejudiced and wholly disinterested sources, of the comparative merits of two of the powders examined:

CLEVELAND'S.

Carbonic Acid Gas,	12.80	per ct.
Bicarbonate of Soda,	26.12	per ct.
Cream of Tartar,	54.70	"
Starch,	9.00	"
Residuum,	10.18	"
	100.00

ROYAL.*

Carbonic Acid Gas,	11.80	per ct.
Bicarbonate of Soda,	25.21	per ct.
Cream of Tartar,	50.44	"
Starch,	17.10	"
Residuum,	7.25	"
	100.00

*This powder contained a small percentage of ammonium carbonate, which was calculated as bicarbonate of soda above.

It will be seen from this report that Cleveland's is entirely free from ammonia, and contains considerably more cream of tartar (the expensive ingredient of a pure baking powder) and yields more leavening gas than the Royal.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and promote luxuriance.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using it for a part of a bottle, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation to all in need of a good hair-restorer."

Chronic Catarrh

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with increased secretion. Thus catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that often its presence is not suspected till it has obtained a firm hold on its victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is exceedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the diseased membrane, and thus soon cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I am happy to state that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GRIMM, 1029 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, Ohio.

REV. SAM. SMALL.

One of the most impressive and pathetic sermons on temperance, and its awful effects on mankind, ever delivered in this city, and it was the personal experience of a man whose culture, knowledge and experience entitle his words to the deepest consideration.

The above was what the Commercial-Gazette of Cincinnati said of Rev. Sam Small, who will give his great lecture, "From Bar-room to Pulpit," at Music hall to-morrow evening.

PERSONAL.

The Boston Sunday Globe in its "table gossip" says: "The latest convert to Mohini and esoteric Buddhism is Mrs. Celia Thaxter, the artist poet."

Mr. George H. Garrett, wife and child, left this city on Saturday last for Norfolk, Va., near which city Mrs. Garrett has relatives residing. They will remain there during the winter, in the hope that Mr. Garrett may recover from the rheumatism, with which complaint he has been afflicted for several months.

Mr. Wm. F. Noyes of this city, for many years the energetic and capable foreman shipwright at the navy yard, and recently in the employ of the Boston & Hingham Steamboat Co., has been engaged to go to Norfolk, Va., as foreman for the firm who have contracted to build a dry dock at the Norfolk navy yard for the United States government.

An interesting memorial service in honor of the late temperance reformer, Mr. John B. Finch, was held in the Methodist church on Sunday evening under the auspices of Rockingham Lodge of Good Templars. The church was filled, the temperance organizations attending in large numbers.

Mr. Alex J. Wemyss, whose humorous and witty songs have amused and delighted audiences wherever he has appeared, will take part in the entertainment to be given in Music hall on the evening of Thanksgiving day, with Miss Fannie P. Hoyt, the charming young lady violinist, Miss Nellie S. Thomas, a favorite soprano of Boston, and other eminent and pleasing artistes, on the programme. Seats can now be secured at Goodrich's.

A union Thanksgiving service, to which all are invited, will be held in the North church at 10:45 o'clock Thursday forenoon.

Elvin Newton received 30,000 lbs. of fish Saturday night at Commercial wharf.

A large and handsome likeness of Rev. Sam Small, who is to lecture in Music hall to-morrow evening, is to be seen in the window of Goodrich's bookstore, where tickets for the lecture can be procured.

Messrs. M. J. Ryan and Edward Watkins returned from a hunting expedition in this vicinity last week. They found the woods almost impassible from the large rainfalls of this autumn. Sheep have been killed of late in the country, the destruction of which was laid to the dogs, but Mr. Ryan thinks the mischief was caused by a puma, which he asserts that he saw while on his tramp, and which is supposed to have escaped from some menagerie.

The 15th annual ball of the St. Mary's Benevolent Association will be given in Franklin hall on Thanksgiving eve.

Brown's teams were hauling fish on Sunday from Elvin Newton's stores on Commercial wharf to the railroad station. The Addie & Hattie arrived at Commercial wharf on Sunday with a fare of unusually large pollock. Ten dories for the winter fishing were received by Newton last week, by rail, and are now stowed opposite his stores.

The north mill is being used as an advertising agency for "pearline;" somebody is bound to have it put to use of some kind.

The musical comedy "The Kindergarten" was presented in Music hall on Saturday evening. That is not a good show night in this city, and the weather was unfavorable, but the audience was much larger than might have been anticipated under the circumstances, and all who were there seemed to enjoy the entertainment afforded, all remaining to the close. There is a good deal of fun in the piece, and any number of catchy songs.

Lewis E. Staples has laid out a small lot of Ladies' and Misses' Winter Cloaks to sell at five dollars a garment. They are broken lines he will not have again. It might be an advantage to see them.

Supt. Berry of the Portsmouth Shoe Co.'s factory has notified the piece workers that they are expected to be at their stations promptly at seven o'clock in the morning and one in the afternoon, the same as the hands employed by the day. He does not believe in having the machines of the piece workers lie idle from half an hour to an hour after the power is applied, as has been the custom to a considerable extent.

G. & J. W. Stott, who have for many years conducted a large grocery, meat and general provision business on the corner of Hanover and Bridge streets, will move into the store on Market street lately occupied by Downs & Son, about Jan. 1st.

Mr. J. J. Goodwin of Wolfeboro', conductor on the Boston & Maine railroad, is now running a train between North Conway and this city, and has taken up his residence here for the winter, having rented a tenement in the Odion block on Pleasant street.

The second social assembly by Adams & Wood, in Trefethen's hall, Kittery, will be given on Tuesday evening, Nov. 29th, if fair weather; should that evening be stormy, the dance will come off on the first pleasant evening following.

The sloop Screamer, Littlefield master, from Cape Ann with 115 tons of granite to Silas Philbrick & Co., arrived at Philbrick's wharf on Saturday last.

The schooner Luther A. Robie, Potter master, left Baltimore on the 15th inst. with 1025 tons of coal to E. F. Sise & Co., and arrived at this port on the forenoon of the 19th, having made the passage without lowering a sail. She will discharge her cargo at the Concord railroad wharf.

The schooner George & Albert, Derow master, from New York for Saco with a cargo of pig iron for the Saco Water Power Co., went ashore under full sail during a fog on the night of the 16th inst., on the rocks off Wood island, at the mouth of the Saco river; she struck not far from the lighthouse, bilged, and with her cargo became a total loss; crew saved. The schooner was built at Belfast, Me., in 1867, registered 121 tons, and was owned in Bangor.

The schooner J. Chester Wood, Sanders master, which has been running in the brick trade between the Piscataqua river and Boston, finished her season's work last week, and has hauled up for the winter; her agent has declared a dividend of thirteen per cent to the shareholders. The Triton, Amee master, one of the veterans of the brick fleet, and year after year one of the most successful, arrived from Boston on Saturday to haul up, having made twenty-three round trips this season between this port and Boston.

How Oysters Are Watered.

Not every lover of the oyster knows that the size and plumpness which are so highly prized in the American bivalve, and which are so attractive in specimens on the half shell or in the stew as to lead the average man to pay a considerable extra price for extra size, are not entirely natural, and even those who do know that the majority of the oysters in the market are artificially swollen by introducing water into the tissues are not all aware that the process by which this is done is closely analogous to that by which the food in our own bodies is conveyed through the walls of the stomach and other parts of the digestive apparatus and poured into the blood and lymph to do its work of nourishment.

Physiologists are, I believe, agreed that the passage of the digested food through the walls of the alimentary canal in man and other animals is in large part due to osmose or dialysis, and that the operation of this physical law is a very common one in the animal body. But the quantitative study of the chemical changes involved is generally rendered difficult or impossible by the very fact of their taking place in living animals where the application of chemical analysis is impossible. An opportunity is, however, offered by the oyster, which, since it lives in water and has a body so constituted as to readily permit the inflow and outflow of water and solutions of salt, may be easily used for experiments. The results of the experiments have a practical as well as scientific interest, since they confirm the common explanation of the increase in bulk of oysters by "floating," and show that it is essentially a process of watering in which the bulk is increased without any corresponding increase, but rather, if anything, a loss of nutritive material. —Professor W. O. Atwater in Popular Science Monthly.

A white squall is one which produces no diminution of light. This furious and dangerous gust appears in clear weather without any other warning than the white foam it occasions on the surface of the sea and a very thin haze. It usually breaks upon a vessel when she is totally unprepared for such a strain upon her canvas and consequently proves one of the most dangerous forms of the sailor's existence. A black squall is far less dangerous, as it is usually preceded by an accumulation of dark clouds and accompanied by heavy rain. Time is thus given to trim sails and to avert peril.—Chicago News.

"A direct practical experiment in a laundry has proved to me that the 'IVORY,' tested against a certain well known brand of "laundry soap, has the same amount of cleansing power and one and two-thirds the lasting capacity. That is, the Ivory Soap will do one and two-thirds times the work of the soap against which it was "tested. I therefore consider the IVORY a very good laundry soap."

JOHN W. LANGLEY,
Professor of Chemistry, University of Michigan.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

GOVERNMENT TESTS.

The Royal Baking Powder Declared Superior to all others.

The fact that Royal Baking Powder is, in all respects, the best baking powder offered to the public has been established beyond question.

Prof. H. A. Mott, when employed by the U. S. Government to analyze the various baking powders of the market to determine which was the best and most economical, after an extended investigation, reported in favor of the Royal, and it was adopted for government use.

Prof. Mott has continued his examinations of baking powders sold at the present day, and now affirms it as his deliberate judgment, arrived at after most thorough research and a careful examination of the principal brands of the market, that the Royal is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public. Prof. Mott, in his recent report, says:

"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made both for that company and the U. S. Government.

"I will go still further and state that, because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public. DR. HENRY A. MOTT, PH.D."

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin's Piano Stringer was introduced by them in 1882, and has been pronounced by experts the "greatest improvement in pianos in half a century."

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

What wound did ever heal by degrees? That's an easy conundrum. Why the thousand aches and pains, and bruises daily cured by Salvation Oil, the greatest cure on earth for pain.

At ten o'clock on one night last week the door bell of St. Joseph's Orphan asylum in Cummingsville, near Cincinnati, Ohio, rang, and the attendants on going to the door found a gas-pipe dynamite bomb, nearly two feet long, with fuse attached. The fuse was quickly cut off. The bomb is now in possession of the police.

After trying all the other plasters, salves, lotions, got relief and cure by using a Hop Plaster.

Thomas H. Hinton of Marblehead, Mass., who died recently, bequeathed his property, valued at $18,000, to Robert C. Clair of Mill Hill, Penn., who, at the great risk of his life, rescued Hinton as he lay wounded beyond the picket lines after the battle at Hatcher's Run, Va., during the war of the rebellion.

A Burglar Captured.

This morning about two o'clock, John Wood, the well known plumber who resides on Main street, was awakened by hearing glass break. On getting out of bed he received a blow on the head. He immediately grappled with the burglar, and after a terrible struggle succeeded in holding him until his wife obtained help. On being searched at the station, Mr. Wood's watch and wallet were found on his person. He gave the name of Robert Terry. The broken glass proved to be a bottle of Sulphur Bitters, which had almost cured Mrs. Wood of rheumatism.—Exchange.

Miss Priscilla Bresten, late a professor in Vassar college, was married on the 17th inst. to Timothy Merrick of Holyoke, Mass., a wealthy thread manufacturer.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any simular application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

Fourteen men were seriously, and some it is feared fatally, burned by a gasoline explosion in Philadelphia last week; all were taken to the hospital in a pitiable state.

A startling truth!—Thousands die annually from neglected coughs and colds, which soon ripen into consumption, or other equally fatal diseases of the lungs; when, by the timely use of a single bottle of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, their lives could have been preserved to a green old age.

The price of telegraph poles has increased from ninety cents a few years ago, to $2.50, and they are scarce at that. Perhaps they will get high enough some time to make it cheaper to run the wires under ground, which would not be a wholly unmixed calamity.—Lewiston Journal.

The Latest London Charity.

The latest novel charity in London, that town which beats all the rest of the world in the multiplicity and magnitude of both its charities and its poverties, is the Home of Rest for Horses, which has been recently established in the Victoria buildings. The scheme is to take the horses of the poor when they are well nigh broken down from too much work and too little food, and give them plenty of food and nothing to do till they are ready to start out on their labors once more.

That is very well for the people, but it is piteously hard on the horses. About the most painful object in the world is the underfed, overworked city horse, and the most cheering thought connected with him is of his death. To systematically prolong his misery is cruel, and if it must be done the "Home of Rest" people ought to make arrangements to themselves kill off in some merciful way the hopeless horses. They owe them some atonement for having helped them to live.—New York Graphic.

Phenomena of Spiritualism.

It is announced that the eminent scientist, Professor Huxley, of England, is making inquiries into the phenomena of spiritualism, with a view to elucidate all there is in it, if anything can be found. It is well that philosophers and experimenters in the material turn aside occasionally to investigate and test what purports to be immaterial, or so obscurely connected with the material that thus far no point of connection has been discovered. Is the human nervous organism, like an electrical apparatus, a machine for the play of natural forces, or is there something outside and beyond that vibrates the "harp of a thousand strings?" Professor Huxley, from long study, habit and thought, is well adapted to settle this question by all methods heretofore employed, or any other that may be suggested, or that he may himself conceive. —Milwaukee Journal.

Students at the Chapel.

Professor D. G. Lyon, in The Independent, says that the abolition of compulsory attendance at daily chapel in Harvard university has been a success from a religious point of view. A large number of students are in the habit of attending the regular and special religious services that are provided for them. "The undergraduate religious life," says Professor Lyon, "is not all that we should like to see, but it is so much better than is popularly supposed to be, and seems so full of promise, that a just appreciation of it cannot fail to awake profound gratitude."—New York Tribune.

Chance for an Architect.

A chance is offered to some ambitious American architect in the competition for a house of parliament in Buenos Ayres upon which the Argentine Republic proposes to spend not less than 40,000,000 francs. The architect whose plan is chosen will receive a premium of 200,000 francs. The Courrier de L'Art, which makes this announcement, states that the legations of the Argentine Republic in Europe will furnish detailed information regarding the competition.—New York Tribune.

Temperature in Northern Siberia.

Lieut. W. H. Schuetze writes: "As we approached Verchoyansk (northern Siberia) the cold was almost unbearable, compelling a stop at nearly every inhabited native hut, not only on account of ourselves, but more owing to the reindeer, which suffered visibly during the low temperature. Breathing was at times difficult, and on Jan. 10 and 11, 1886, the temperature sunk to 66 degs. Celsius—corresponding to 86.80 degs. Fahrenheit below zero. This is the coldest temperature ever observed."

In Puget Sound Logging Camps.

Average wages in Puget sound logging camps: Skid greasers, $30 per month; swampers, barkers and hook tenders, about $40; skidders, 50; the teamsters, $60 to $125; cooks $40 to $100; headsawyers, $100 to $125; other sawyers, $60 to $65; filers, $80; hands employed generally about the mill, $30 to $40 per month.—Chicago News.

The only slate pencil mill in the country is said to be at Castleton, Vt. It employs seventy-five men and turns out 30,000 pencils daily.

Men love to hear of their power, but have an extreme disrelish to be told of their duty.—Burke.

A Rain of Wood Ants.

The city of Nancy, in France, on July 21, suffered the strange visitation of a rain of wood ants. It was about 5 o'clock in the afternoon when the "shower" came up, and the insects, both winged and unwinged, fell upon the streets and public places, and on the heads of passers by, like a snow squall, for about an hour. Most of the town was literally covered with ants. They are supposed to have been taken up somewhere and brought to the place by the strong gusts which preceded a severe storm that fell upon the city during the night.—Popular Science Monthly.

The Queen's Big Pie.

The queen's jubilee was recently tardily celebrated in Denby Dale, England, by the baking and eating of an immense pie, the traditional way in which Denby Dale celebrates. The pie was eight feet in diameter and two feet deep. It contained 800 pounds of flour, 1,850 pounds of beef, 180 of mutton, 160 of veal, 180 of lamb, 250 of pork, 120 of lard, 50 of butter, 32 couples of rabbits, three hares, 42 fowls, 40 pigeons, 12 grouse, 31 ducks, 4 plovers, 1 turkey, 5 geese and 100 small birds, together with 560 pounds of potatoes, 40 pounds of beef suet and 40 pounds of drippings.—New York Sun.

THE INCURABLE CURED!

HOPKINSVILLE, KY., Feb. 24, 1887.

Gentlemen—Seven years ago a sore developed on my nose from a finger nail scratch. I tried a few simple remedies, but the sore would not yield. I grew worse year for seven years. Many thought I had a cancer. Over a year ago I commenced taking S. S. S., and two dozen bottles entirely cured me. When I began with Swift's Specific I was in very poor health, and could hardly drag about. After I had finished the course of S. S. S. I was strong and buoyant, and had a good appetite. I regard it as a most valuable medicine for ladies in weak, delicate health. It is a household medicine with me. Yours respectfully,

MRS. R. W. WILSON.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., April 2, 1887.

Gentlemen—For twenty years I have had a sore on my left cheek. It had gradually been growing worse. The many physicians whom I had consulted were unable to do me any good. Last fall a year ago I began using S. S. S. At first it inflamed the sore, and it became more virulent than ever; so much so, indeed, that my family insisted that I should leave off the medicine. I persisted in using the S. S. S. At the end of two months the sore was entirely healed. Thinking that the evil was out of my constitution, I left off the medicine; but in November, ten months after, a very slight breaking out appeared. It at once began again to S. S. S., and now that is also disappearing. I have every faith in S. S. S. It has done me more good than all the doctors and other medicines I ever took. Yours truly,

A. H. SHANDS.

WINSTON, N. C., April 12, 1887.

Gentlemen—Two or three years ago a cancer came on my face. It soon grew to be quite large. It wore on me, and my general health was very poor. Last September I began a course of S. S. S., which I have continued to the present time with the happiest result. The cancer has entirely disappeared, there being no evidence or symptom of a cancerous character left. My general health is good now, and my appetite better than it has been in years. I am 82 years old, and to-day I am working in the field planting corn. Yours truly, JONAS LINEBACK.

Gentlemen—I had a sore on my upper lip for eight years. Seven different doctors attempted in vain to heal it. One gave me a small vial for five dollars, which was "certain cure." It is needless to say that it did me no good. About two years ago I became quite uneasy, as people thought I had a cancer, and I took a course of eighteen bottles of S. S. S. The result has been a complete cure. The ulcer or cancer healed beautifully, leaving scarcely a perceptible scar. From that day I have been in excellent health. the Specific having purified my blood thoroughly, increased my appetite and perfected my digestion. In a word, I feel like a new woman, and, best of all, the eight year ulcer is gone entirely. Yours sincerely,

MRS. W. F. CANNON.

Make Young Pullets Lay.

Two or three weeks of judicious management now to assist the pullets in forming their first crop of eggs, so to speak, will make a vast difference in the product of eggs during the next four months, when fresh eggs will retail in Boston or New York markets for from thirty to fifty cents a dozen. Every moment gained now is very valuable, as young pullets which do not begin to lay by December, will not in nine cases out of ten commence until spring, when eggs have fallen in price at least one half.

A few dollars properly spent on your flock now, will return to you many fold increase in eggs.

Mr. E. R. Stuart of Lancaster, N. H., relates his experience in making pullets lay in cold weather, as follows: "I had twelve fine Plymouth Rock pullets. The early hatched ones commenced laying in the fall; when cold weather came on they stopped laying, while the rest had not begun to lay. I them commenced using Sheridan's Powder, advertised to make hens lay. In ten days one pullet commenced to lay, in fourteen days three more began, and in just one month from the time I began using the Sheridan's Powder, the twelve were laying.

I never used the powder before, neither did I ever before have hens lay through the winter as those did."

I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House street, Boston, Mass., are the sole manufacturers of Sheridan's Powder to make hens lay. They will send the powder by mail or express, to any address, charges prepaid, as follows: For fifty cents in stamps, two small packs; for $1.00, five; or for $1.20, a large 2 1-4 pound can will be sent; six cans for $5.00; express prepaid to any express office.

I give honor to whom it is due. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy cured me of Bright's Disease and Gravel. Four of the best physicians had failed to relieve me. I have recommended it to scores of people with like success, and know it will cure all who try it.—Mrs. E. P. Misner, Burg Hill, Q. Send 2-c. stamp to Dr. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and an IMPROVED INHALER; price, $1.

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

At Columbus, Ohio, on the evening of Oct. 18th, some excitement was caused by the discovery of a bomb at the State Journal office. It consisted of an iron pipe about seven inches long, both ends closed with hard wood, and an oil fuse attached was tipped with an ordinary match. It was so arranged at the door of the local department that the match could be lighted by any one passing and stepping on the same. The bomb was placed at the door just after dark, and before the reporters arrived for the night's work.

It Should Be Remembered.

A current press item in connection with the death last week of Valentine Baker, otherwise known as Baker Pasha, at one time colonel of a crack British regiment, is as follows:

It will be remembered of Queen Victoria that she refused to pardon a momentary indiscretion in the most brilliant cavalry officer of her service. The heroic Baker Pasha died in exile, in the Egyptian army, when he might have been one of the most distinguished military leaders of England.

Col. Valentine Baker's "momentary indiscretion" was an attempt to violate a young girl of spotless reputation, who was locked into a passenger coach with him on an English railway, with no other passengers. That Queen Victoria refused to pardon such a momentary indiscretion should be remembered to her eternal credit, even though the would-be ravisher was a "gentleman," and his intended victim a member of one of the "lower classes."

An Uncasy Monopoly.

The Boston Post of Monday in its "straws from State street" says: "That a feeling of uneasiness exists among the Bell Telphone stockholders by reason of the uncertainty as to the pending decision of the United States Supreme court is undeniable, and this uneasiness has been much increased within a few days by the intimation that a prominent State street house had been selling the stock on Washington orders. The 'driven well' adverse decision of the Supreme court was a surprise, and in that it involved many of the same principles that have entered into the Bell Telphone case, the feeling of anxiety is not easily allayed. Not the least intimation has as yet been received at the office of the company, either as to when the decision will be given or as to what it will be."

Terrible Marine Disaster.

The Dutch steamer W. A. Scholten, Captain Taat, from Rotterdam for New York, with crew and passengers numbering about 230, was sunk ten miles off Dover, Eng., on the night of the 20th inst., by collision with the steamer Rosa Mary, coal laden, from Hartlepool. Steamer Ebro of Sunderland rescued nearly ninety of the crew and passengers, and 140 passengers are drowned or missing.

The captain of the Rosa Mary says his vessel was struck during a dense fog, while lying at anchor, and that the other steamer proceeded without enquiring what damage had been done. The officers and some srrivors of the W. A. Shotten say the Rosa Mary was steaming ahead at full speed, with no side lights set. The boats of the lost steamer were in bad condition, and the Dutch seamen behaved badly, but the captain, who perished, acted like a hero.

It is stated in Washington that a document is now going through the official mill of the navy department that is occasioning more comment than any official communication submitted for consideration during this administration. The document in question is a letter from Capt. Bunce, commanding the new cruiser Atlanta, in which he endeavors to prove that the vessel is practically worthless as a cruiser, and is altogether unseaworthy. This startling assertion, coming after the government has expended hundreds of thousands of dollars in the construction of the Boston and Atlanta, for both must be included in Capt. Bunce's criticism, as they are sister ships, occasions no little surprise. The captain's objections are based upon experience with the Atlanta at sea. He details at least fifty changes in the construction of the vessel which he thinks desirable. It is asserted by the captain that the vessel, as at present constructed, with her low bulkheads, could not live in a head sea. The water would wash over her bow and bury her. Capt. Bunce also asserts that the guns furnished by the ordnance bureau are much too heavy for the vessel, and he recommends that they be replaced by six inch steel rifles. He reports that the armament of the vessel is so badly assorted that six kinds of ammunition have to be passed through the same scuttle. The captain recommends many alterations which, it carried out, will cost $200,000.

Important to Mothers.

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Every mother in New England will be interested in the request of the editor of the Boston Sunday Globe. He wants all mothers to send in at once the bright sayings of their children and they will be printed next Sunday. Send at once.

The workmen on the navy yard are now mustered in the government's time, instead of in their own, as has been the custom for many years; that is, when the hours of work commence at eight in the morning and one in the afternoon, the roll call will commence at eight and one, instead of ten minutes before those hours. The practice of calling the roll ten minutes in advance has of course taken twenty minutes a day from the men's time, and we understand has never prevailed at any other navy yard; it was a gross injustice, and should never have been inaugurated.

Lewis E. Staples has laid out a small lot of Ladies' and Misses' Winter Cloaks to sell at five dollars a garment. They are broken lines he will not have again. It might be an advantage to see them.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

AT MUSIC HALL TO-NIGHT.

This evening in Music hall, Rev. Sam. Small of Atlanta, Ga., will give his great lecture "From Bar-room to Pulpit." After the recent delivery of his lecture in Cincinnati the Times—Star of that city said:

It was a magnificent effort, characteristic of Sam Small; wonderful in power and pathos, and during its delivery the hushed silence of the audience told how impressively the stirring words were going to their hearts.

It is not likely that Mr. Small will speak in this city again, and all who wish to hear and see him should be at Music hall this evening. Tickets at Goodrich's.

PERSONAL.

Wallace Hackett, Esq., has arrived home from a business trip to the west, extending as far as New Mexico.

Hon. John G. Sinclair and wife, of Florida, arrived in this city on Saturday evening last.

Hon. Wm. E. Chandler, United States senrtor from this state, was called home from Washington on the evening of the 20th inst. by a telegram announcing that his wife's mother, the widow of the late Senator John P. Hale, had been stricken with paralysis.

Rev. H. S. Ives has resigned the pastorate of the Christian society at Kittery Point, to accept a call to the pastorate of the Union church at Milton Mills, N. H. In his letter of resignation to the society at Kittery Point he gave them high praise for their benevolence and Christian fellowship during his pastorate among them.

Miss Nellie Beazley, for some time past operator in the New England Telephone & Telegraph company's central office in this city, has resigned her position and returned to her home in Portland, Me. The vacancy caused by the resignation has been filled by Miss Kitty Wilson, late of the force of operators in Haverhill, Mass.

PRESENTATION.

Past Eminent Commander Miles and Sir Knight Anthony, generalissimo, of Calvary Commandery of Knights Templar of Providence, R. I., on Monday evening visited De Witt Clinton Commandery of this city as a committee from Calvary Commandery, bearing a present of a silver service of eight pieces, inscribed "De Witt Clinton Commandery, from Calvary Commandery, Providence, R. I., 1887." The gift is a token of appreciation of the attention shown the Providence commandery when on a pilgrimage to this region last summer.

BURGLARIES.

Three burglaries were committed in Dover on the night of the 19th inst. St. Mary's parsonage, the residence of Rev. D. W. Murphy, was entered, and a futile effort made to open the safe; but Father Murphy's clothes were taken from his room to the street, and $75 stolen from the pockets. The house of Mayor Powell was entered, and silverware valued at $75; a watch and chain valued at $100, and a pair of opera glasses, were stolen. The house of Ira W. Nute was robbed of a pocket book containing $12, but the thief was surprised by Mrs. Nute, and decamped without other booty.

The safe in the post-office at Alton Corner was blown open by a burglar at four o'clock Monday morning, but before he could appropriate the contents the postmaster's father, Mr. Jed. Jones, entered the office with an axe, and ran the burglar out. The intruder fired two shots at Mr. Jones, but failed to perforate him.

The schooner Agnes E. Downs, Levi Downs master, sailed from this port for Gloucester at an early hour Monday morning, the 21st inst., to get a cable and bait, after procuring which she will go haddocking for the Boston market until the codfish school strikes into Ipswich bay. She has done well at mackereling during the season just ended, rating about the 5th in the entire fleet in point of success.

The big three-masted schooner Maggie J. Smith, which went ashore near Narragansett Pier, R. I., on the 11th inst., while on the voyage from Newport News to this port with 1148 tons of coal, is fast going to pieces. Her masts fell on the 20th, and her timbers were being washed on the beach by the heavy swell.

The schooner Albert Woodbury, Ephraim Henry Downs master, arrived at this port on Monday from mackereling, being probably the last of the mackerel fleet to give up. She has taken but few mackerel during the season.

The schooner Franklin S. Schenck, Capt. Thomas Jameson, will sail to-day on her first trip winter fishing out of this port this season, carrying sixteen men all told.

The fishermen of Vinalhaven, Me., have passed resolutions in which they oppose any treaty or union with Canada whereby its fish would be admitted free of duty. In case Canada persists in her outrages they suggest that retaliatory measures be resorted to by the United States government. They will have to suggest a good while before the Cleveland-Bayard administration will do anything except appoint "commissions." The protection of American industry is not a tenet of the democratic party—yet a large proportion of the fishermen, while crying out for protection, vote the straight democratic ticket right along.

Mrs. S. Wemyss Bradbury will give some of her fine dramatic readings, intermingled with her laughable dialect interpretations, at Music hall on Nov. 24th, the evening of Thanksgiving day. She is claimed to have no superior in her line; do not fail to hear her.

Nat. C. Goodwin will appear in Music hall next Friday evening, in "Turned Up." This famous actor has not been seen in Portsmouth for years, and his present appearance will prove a great attraction.

The testimony in behalf of the complainants in the suit in equity of the Boston, Concord & Montreal railroad against the Boston & Lowell railroad, pending in the United States Circuit court, was begun before William H. Hackett, examiner of the court, at Concord on Monday. The leases of the Boston, Concord & Montreal and the Northern railroads were shown by deposition of the secretary of state. A. J. Shurtleff, clerk of Merrimack county court, produced the record of the suit Dow against the Northern road. Hon. S. N. Bell, clerk of the B., C. & M. R. R., and Hon. Geo. E. Todd, manager of the Northern railroad, were also in attendance as witnesses. The hearing was adjourned until Monday next.

The annual statement of the Eastern railroad for the year ending Sept. 30th, 1887, shows that it lacked about $10,000 of earning six per cent on the common stock, and the stock of the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway road. The results as a whole are very satisfactory. The saving in interest for the year aggregated about $30,000.

You will be pleased with a fifty-cent bunch of Chrysanthemums for the Thanksgiving table; flowers in variety; order at Hutchinson's jewelry store.

THE RECORD OF PORTSMOUTH.

Portsmouth supports a large number of rum shops exerting a demoralizing influence upon the people. They make paupers and criminals, they cause innocent women and children to suffer and endure the most horrid tortures of an earthly hell, yet, "satisfied," seems to be the verdict of the people. The municipal and police officers who have taken oath to execute the laws proclaim that all is well; ministers and churches seem to fold their arms and their consciences in peace and quiet submission. And Portsmouth saw another sight! There was a large temperance meeting and a minister of the Christian denomination was one of the speakers. Having been but a short time in the city he was probably not aware of the popularity of the liquor business in our good old democratic governed city; being a young man he may not have learned that the truth is not to be spoken at all times, and in his zeal for the cause of temperance and reform he committed the unpardonable sin of speaking the truth! The effect was like a firebrand in a powder magazine; the people were excited, local papers were in demand, the press and the politicians were indignant; one very patriotic political editor reported that a bomb had been thrown, that financial business had become depressed, that capitalists had suspended (no report that the rum shops had suspended;) he poured out the vials of his wrath upon the minister without mercy; he continued to hold and tighten his grip upon the throat of his victim with his usual bulldog tenacity, and to give full scope to his abusive disposition he makes use of the word "damnation," indicating that he wished to consign him to the lower regions. What crime could he have committed in twenty minutes to disgrace our city as much as the rum curse has in twenty years? A stranger in our streets the day after the meeting would have thought this minister too great a monster to be at large. What are the people of Portsmouth thinking about? They persecute this minister, who is working for their welfare, and give their silent consent to the business of the law-breaking rum-sellers, which is destroying families and wasting homes; they strain at a gnat and swallow a camel. But God rules and prohibition still lives; its star is in the ascendency, its mission will surely be accomplished, its future is destined to redeem our otherwise beautiful country from the cruel bondage and blighting curse of intemperance.

Courage, Prohibitionist.

THOMAS WIGGIN.

There is unusual activity at the Norfolk navy yard now. Sheds are being constructed for building the new 6,000-ton ship, and ground is being prepared for the construction of the new Simpson dry dock, which will be built under the supervision of Civil Engineer Endicott of the navy.

The papers using the "illustrated plate matter" last week published what purported to be a likeness of Don M. Dickinson, the democratic boss of Michigan, who according to Washington political gossip is to be appointed postmaster general, in return for which he will carry Michigan for Cleveland and reform. In the descriptive matter accompanying the picture it is stated that he "is in his forty-first year, and comes of American stock on both sides, through generations running back to the seventh century." He must be a descendant of the Mound Builders.

LIQUOR-TAX PAYERS.

A reporter of the Lewiston (Me.) Journal, who was in this city last week, and loooked over the list of Maine persons paying the United States liquor tax, has reported to that paper that there are 653 names. Of that number, twenty-one were located at Bar Harbor, 114 at Portland, ten at Houlton, ten at Brunswick, ten at Ellsworth, nineteen at Augusta, fourteen at Gardiner, fifteen at Waterville, twenty-four at Rockland, 121 at Bangor, ten at Oldtown, twenty-three at Bath, ten at Skowhegan, eleven at Belfast, eighteen at Biddeford and forty-two at Lewiston. The remaining 181 are scattered all over the state. Of the forty-two Lewiston names, nearly all are fictitious.

Florence Silk Mittens.

This engraving shows the latest style of these goods. It is published as a protection for those ladies who wish to obtain mittens well made from genuine Florence Knitting Silk.

Whatever the design, all real Florence Silk Mittens are sold one pair in a box, bearing the brand "Florence" on one end.

The pattern shown here is lined in back and wrist throughout with silk. They are perfect fitting, and in cold climates are far more comfortable than any gloves, and more durable and quite as elegant and fashionable as the best of gloves.

Sold by all enterprising dealers, who can be supplied at our agency, No. 18 Summer Street, Boston. Our latest book on knitting (1887 edition) contains over 100 valuable illustrated Rules, including full instructions for this mitten. Mailed to any address on receipt of six cents in stamps.

Barnum's Circus Burned.

Animals Burned — Infuriated Elephants at Large—People Alarmed.

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov., 20.—The main building of Barnum & Bailey's winter quarters was burned this evening. Thousands of people were present. The building was 600x200, two stories, and was consumed in half an hour. It is supposed the fire was set by the explosion of a lantern of a watchman. There were six watchmen employed, and one is missing. Three elephants were burned. Thirty-six broke their fastenings and escaped. Their roars were terrific. A large hippopotamus also escaped. These rushed along the streets with their sides burned and pieces of flesh a foot square fell off. Thirty elephants and one lion started off across country toword Fairfield. There was great alarm and many residents barred their doors and windows. All the ring animals, trained stallions, ponies, etc., were burned. Also the tent seats, harnesses, poles, etc. Also all the birds, monkeys, three rhinoceroses, hyenas, tigers, lions, and all the menagerie. The fire was so rapid no attempt was made to save the building. The chariot building and car sheds were saved. The loss is $705,000; insurance, $100,000. Before the fire was extinguished agents began the work of securing new attractions. The show will probably remove to Jersey City. Barnum and Bailey are both in New York.

Another estimate says the loss is: Building, $10,000; animals, $500,000; canvas and stock, $300,000.

A third account says, besides the animals lost, hundreds of animals, including elephants, lions, tigers, leopards, camels and horses were liberated or broke loose and for hours afterward there was a tremendous uproar. Several persons were picked up in the streets by the infuriated elephants and tossed around. A detail of police pursued a roaring lion and put six or seven bullets into his hide, but there was no perceptible result.

From Newport comes a report that a determined effort will be made the coming winter to practically destroy the naval war college by transferring it to Annapolis, there to become a part of the naval academy. Considerable opposition has already been manifested toward the war college in times past, but this move would seem to indicate a more persistent attempt at its practical annihilation than any heretofore developed. Coupled with this transfer of the war college is likewise a proposition to change the headquarters of the naval training station from Newport to New London, Conn., the reason given being that by so doing the administration believes that Connecticut can be converted from a doubtful state to a democratic one. Should these two schemes be carried into effect, there is no room to doubt but that the result will be disastrous, not only to the institutions interested but to the navy at large, for while exception may no doubt reasonably be taken to a few of the methods involved in the war college as at present organized, still the general result is of great and increasing benefit to the navy. As to the reasons for changing the training station to New London, they may be sound from a political standpoint, but if the efficiency of the service is to be consulted the station will unquestionably remain at Newport.—Army and Navy Journal.

If you are tired taking the large old-fashioned griping pills, and are satified that purging yourself till you are weak and sick is not good common sense, then try Carter's Little Liver Pills and learn how easy it is to be free from Biliousness, Headache, Constipation, and all liver troubles. These little pills are smaller, easier to take and give quicker relief than any pill in use. One a dose. Price 25 cents.

President Cleveland gave $10 to the family of the engineer killed on his train last summer, $20 to the Charleston earthquake sufferers, and $1,000 to the corruption fund of the New York democracy. CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

OSTRICH FEATHERS IN FASHION.

Ladies Again Wearing the Pretty Plumes. Value of the Trade.

"Are ladies again wearing ostrich plumes?" asked a reporter.

"Yes," replied the manufacturer. "Ostrich feathers will soon be as fashionable among the fair sex as they were a few years ago."

When did the fashion drop out?"

"The decline in the use of ostrich feathers began about 1888, and since then the fashion has steadily faded until last year, when scarcely any were used at all. But the revival has begun, and you will soon see the pretty plumes as plenty as ever."

"Are the feathers imported in the condition they are worn?"

"Oh, no; the feathers are imported in the raw state and prepared after they reach here. There are only eight manufactories of ostrich feathers in the United States, and seven are located in this city. The capital employed aggregates about $1,000,000, and employment is given to about 600 to 800 persons, 250 to 300 of whom are girls."

"What is the work done by the girls?"

"Curling, wiring and preparing the feathers. The curling is done by the aid of a peculiar kind of knife made for the purpose, the blade of which is curved. As the work is of a delicate nature—for each feather of the plume has to be worked upon separately—it is necessary that only expert hands should be employed. Carelessness or want of experience would soon cause heavy losses, for the beauty of plumes is heightened by the evenness of every little feather. It takes about five years for a girl to become really expert, although many may become fairly efficient in a shorter time. They earn from $7 to $25 a week, according to their qualification. The dyers, who, of course, are men, earn from $15 to $35 per week.

Are the feathers of wild ostriches used?"

"No, not now. To get the feathers of a wild bird it is necessary to kill him, and were that kept up the species would soon become extinct. Ostriches are now reared on farms in South Africa, where the feathers are collected and sent to this country, via London. When they arrive they look very different from those you see in the store windows. They are dirty, draggled and discolored, and have to be cleaned. When first taken from the washing they look as bad as those on a week goose. By the process of preparing they become the pretty plumes you see. Long and elegant plumes are prepared singly, while the smaller ones are made into bunches of three, like the emblem of the Prince of Wales. In order to prevent the feathers from breaking it is necessary at times to wire them, and this also requires expertness, for a broken feather is of little value."

"When did ostrich feathers become fashionable as ornaments for women's bonnets?"

"About ninety years ago. They were brought into use by a man named De Pinna, of London. Prior to that the ladies wore them in dressing the hair for state occasions. They soon became a rage for bonnet trimming, and the demand for ostrich feathers exceeded the supply."—New York Mail and Express

An Artist Has the Nightmare.

An artist of eminence, whose engraved pictures are now to be seen in every print shop window, has the nightmare occasionally, but with him it invariably takes one form. He seems to be awakened by a sensation of coldness, such as might be caused by the sudden admission of outdoor air, and at the same times sees a man's hand busy with the window fastening. He slips quietly from his bed, takes up the poker, conceals himself behind the window curtain, hears the fastening of the window thrust back, and with a sensation of spiteful glee raises his weapon to bring it down with all his force upon the head which he knows will in a minute or two be thrust into his room. The window is slowly and softly raised, and he is in a quiver of eagerness to deal the vengeful blow.

There is a grim silence on his face, a fierce flash in his eye, when, lo! the head appears. But—horrors of horrors!—the artist's uprised is still and rigid; he cannot strike the blow. And the face then turned toward him is one of hideous mockery and scorn, with protruding tongue, the fangs of a wild beast, and the expression of a fiend. And so he remains face to face with this frightful enemy, utterly helpless, and in a state of indescribable torture. The effect of nightmare in this form is almost a maddening one, and he can only account for its frequent repetition as resulting from an unusually powerful impression made upon his memory, in conjunction with its curious ally, the imagination, which is, in his case, one of more than usual power.—Cassell's Saturday Magazine.

Missionaries Forget How Luxuries Look.

Some idea of the luxury in which missionaries are supposed to live may be gathered from the following: A missionary lady has been making up a package of articles in this city to send to her brother in the Chinese field, and a friend asked her what he might add that would be acceptable as a gift. "Get him a sealed can of ginger snaps," said she. "You have no idea how they will be appreciated out there."—Springfield Union.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning, she had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharge from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and an IMPROVED INHALER; price, $1.

An Able Protector.

If there is a more able protector against the incursions of disease than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, we have yet to learn of it. Against the periodic attacks of fever and ague it affords a sure defence, it renews waning vitality, and counteracts the infirmities of age; it prevents dyspepsia from becoming chronic, and eventually annihilates it. It rouses the liver and kidneys when dormant, and insures a regular habit of body. To the nervous it is of inestimable benefit, imparting steadiness and vigor into an enfeebled physique. The term, "delicate health," is usually another name for debility. While the Bitters are procurable, the weak need never despair of physical reinforcement. Persons whose avocations are sedentary and laborious, or involve exposure to unfavorable climatic influences, will also find the Bitters an able protector.

Rapid Transit Between Boston and New York.

The great number of travellers who spend six and seven hours by day, or an entire night in ill ventilated "sleepers," in the present slow mode of travel between these two important cities, will be glad to learn from Secretary Thayer's recently issued report, that there is really to be a direct railroad from Causeway street, Boston, to 59th street in New York. That the distance will be but 200 miles, the time from three to three and a half hours. That it is to have no crossing on grade, no sharp curves, no wooden bridges, but is to transport passengers two hours speedier than can any other route. The funds, it is stated, are in readiness. The road can be built in a year from the commencement of its construction, and it will of course have all the through travel between Boston and New York.

By the Boston & Albany route, which is 236 miles, there are crossed 522 highways and eight railway crossings at grade, and six draw bridges. By the Shoreline, 234 miles, there are 348 highway and six railroad grade crossings, nine draw bridges and a ferry. The New York & New England, 210 miles via Hartford, has 306 highway and seven railroad grade crossings, and six draw bridges.

The proposed line will have no crossings at grade, and but two small draw bridges which are not likely often to be needed to be opened. It is predicted that trains over such a line can speed at sixty miles an hour. Coming as it does to Causeway street it will of course have the great bulk of travel to and from the Boston & Maine system of roads. This will save a trip across Boston, and time in waiting for departure of trains which are never fixed with any consideration of the convenience of travellers going to or coming from the east. Fortunately for persons who do not live in Boston, the road is be run with some idea that there is travel which comes east of the hub. The public will anxiously await the completion of this long-desired mode of transit, which will prove such a saving of time over the present conservative manner of going from Boston to New York.

NAT. C. GOODWIN.

At Music hall on Friday evening, Nat. C. Goodwin and his selected comedy company will appear in a double bill—the laughable farce in one act, "Lend me five shillings," with Mr. Goodwin as Golightly; and the great comedy hit entitled "Turned up," with Mr. Goodwin as Caraway Bones. Mr. Goodwin is at the top of the ladder in his line, and his appearance is invariably the signal for hilarity which is responsible for many lame sides the next day. The plot of "Turned up" is in brief as follows:

Caraway Bones, a seedy and impecunious undertaker, is quietly married to the widow of a sea captain, who has been lost at sea; and he calls upon the family of his bride to introduce himself, whereupon he is cast into the river by her son and his chum. He reappears dripping with water and slime, and then the painful truth is made known, but he is kept under cover to be out of the way of an irascible general and his pretty daughter, whom the son is anxious to marry. At this juncture the sea captain turns up alive, and the son tells him his wife is dead, rather than reveal her second marriage. Then the sea captain tells the son that he suffered from a raging fever at the Cape of Good Hope, and when he recovered it was sworn that in his delirium he had married his black nurse. In time she arrives upon the scene to claim him. The fun wakes fast and furious, and each character keeps "turning up" unexpectedly at the most inopportune times. All ends happily, and the audience disperses with the consciousness of having passed an evening of harmless if uproarious mirth.

Tickets can be procured at Goodrich's; the plan of the house is already pretty thoroughly marked up, and an early call for seats should be made.

Rev. Justin D. Fulton of Brooklyn, who delivered a series of lectures against Romanism in Biddeford last week, and who created such excitement among Catholics that the hall was stoned and the lecturer chased by a mob, returned to Biddeford from Boston on the evening of Monday, the 21st, by the invitation of the Protestant clergymen of Biddeford and Saco, to begin another series of lectures on the same subject Tuesday evening at the Young Men's Christian Association hall. In his pulpit on Sunday, the 20th, Rev. Theodore Gerrish, pastor of the Methodist church of Biddeford, accused Mayor Parcher of not only refusing a promise of protection to the meeting, but of declaring that personally he would like to hire a man to kick Dr. Fulton out of town.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb's Excursions to Mexico.

Two very attractive tours through Mexico are announced by Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb for this season. Both parties will make the trip in the new and elegant train of vestibuled Pullman palace cars recently built by the Pullman company expressly for this firm, and which includes not only a royal retinue of sleeping-cars and a dining-car, but also a barber's shop, bathroom, library, etc. The passengers will be limited to the accommodations of three cars, every person being entitled to a double berth (half a section). By having practically a "hotel on wheels," the travellers will be enabled to visit many places rarely seen by other tourists. All the principal cities will be seen, and there will be numerous side trips, the whole journey being arranged upon a special time schedule, so that every picturesque part of the route will be seen by daylight. Nearly a fortnight will be devoted to the City of Mexico alone. The route southward will be via Cincinnati, Louisville, the Mammoth Cave, New Orleans, Houston, Galveston, San Antonio, and El Paso. The first party (leaving Boston Monday, January 16) will also make a complete round of travel through California, returning either through Utah and Colorado, or by the Pacific Northwest and the Northern Pacific railroad, as may be preferred. The regular itinerary occupies eighty-two days. The second tour omits California, but includes the Southern States and Mexico, with a return by a different route. Monday, March 12, is the date of starting, and the trip will take forty-seven days. In addition to the Mexico trips, there are eleven more excursions to California. Descriptive circulars of either the Mexico or California tours may be obtained of W. Raymond, 296 Washington street, opposite School street, Boston.

Catarrh in the Head

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with increased secretion. Thus catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that often its presence is not suspected till it has obtained a firm hold on its victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is exceedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the diseased membrane, and thus soon cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I am happy to state that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GINN, 1029 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Hood's Sarsaparilla,

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, Rockingham ss.

By the Hon. Judge of Probate for said County.

TO the heirs at law and creditors to the estate of JOHN H. GRANT, late of Portsmouth, in said County, deceased, intestate, and all persons interested in said estate. GREETING.

YOU are hereby notified that GEORGE W. SMITH, administrator of the estate of said deceased, has filed his account of administering said estate in the Probate Office for said County, and will present the same at a Court of Probate to be holden at Portsmouth, in and for said County, on the Second Tuesday of January next, at 10 o'clock A. At the same Court the Report of the Commissioner of Insolvency on said estate will be taken into consideration for allowance.

YOU are therefore hereby cited to appear at said Court to be heard thereon, and to make such objections as you may then have. And notice is hereby required to be given by causing this citation to be published three weeks successively in the PORTSMOUTH DAILY CHRONICLE, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth, in said County, the last publication whereof to be at least one week prior to said Court.

Dated at PORTSMOUTH, Nov. 8th, A. D. 1887.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Fair weather, variable winds, slight changes in temperature.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 30 degrees above zero.

Clear

PORTSMOUTH MACHINE CO.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Portsmouth Machine company was held on Tuesday. Vice President Fay presided. A statement of the affairs of the company was presented by the treasurer. A committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Wm. H. Rollins, Andrew P. Preston and Geo. Annable, to examine the condition of the company and to report at an adjourned meeting to be held in two weeks.

NEW RACE COURSE.

A young lad with a fast horse and a two wheel gig was racing up and down the fine roadway of Market street on Tuesday forenoon. It was fun to him, but not to the many teams which were obliged to make way for him. It might result without the fun, too, if there should happen to be a smash-up,—not a very unlikely event, by the way.

PAID THE BOND.

Messrs. J. E. Frisbee, John Thaxter and S. E. Jeunison of Kittery Point on Tuesday paid to J. P. Simpson, as treasurer of the York Harbor & Beach railroad, the amount of the bond signed by them to indemnify the road against land damages in case the original route of the road was changed to the Kittery Point route. It was supposed by many persons that the town would make an appropriation to cover part of the expense of the change, but the vote was adverse, and the full amount of the bond (five thousand dollars, we believe,) was paid by the signers.

SHE VOTED.

At the city election in Dover on the 22d inst. Mrs. Mary E. Dow, a wealthy married lady, went to the supervisors of check lists and requested to be made a qualified voter for the purpose of voting for member of the school committee in her ward. The supervisors thought she had no right to vote, but she showed them that she had, so they gave her a certificate.

THE CONCERT THANKSGIVING EVENING.

A very pleasant method of spending the evening of Thanksgiving day will be to attend the entertainment of vocal and instrumental music, readings, etc., at Music hall, by the Wemyss Concert Co. The programme will include violin solos by Miss Fannie P. Hoyt, piano solos by Mrs. Alex. J. Wemyss, violin and piano duets, vocal selections by Miss Nellie Salome Thomas, a favorite soprano of Boston, dialect readings, and Highland dance in costume, by Miss Nettie Bradbury, dramatic readings by Mrs. S. Wemyss Bradbury, humorous songs by Mr. Alex. J. Wemyss, etc. Tickets at Goodrich's.

MARITIME NOTES.

The steamer James Sampson went up the river to Exeter on Tuesday, where she has made frequent trips of late, towing gondolas loaded with coal. The Hard Chance, Capt. Cheney, went up on Tuesday with a load of about seventy tons.

Gloucester advices say the shore fishermen find cod and pollock more abundant off Cape Ann than last year. Codfish are caught within a few miles of Gloucester, and are of very large size.

Herring bait is very abundant in Ipswich bay and off Cape Ann, selling for $2 per bbl.

The schooner R. L. Kenney, from Rockland with 1000 bbls. lime to J. Albert Walker, arrived at this port on Tuesday, the 22d inst.

REV. SAM SMALL'S LECTURE.

The largest audience at a lecture in Music hall for many years was that of Tuesday evening, when Rev. Sam Small lectured on "From bar-room to pulpit." He possesses much personal magnetism, is an easy and pleasing speaker, is very much in earnest in his advocacy of temperance, and held the close attention of the audience for nearly two and a half hours, frequently drawing out hearty applause.

PERSONAL.

Andrew R. Webber, the well known ice dealer of York beach, was in this city on Tuesday.

Landlord Donnell of the Donnell house, York beach, was in this city on Tuesday by private conveyance.

E. A. Peterson, Esq., and wife, of Greenland, have gone to New York to pass the Thanksgiving season with friends.

Mr. Francis Raynes of Raynes' Neck, York, with several members of his family, were in the city on Tuesday by private conveyance.

Mrs. Jos. E. Adams and three children, of Minneapolis, Minn., arrived in this city on Tuesday, and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Adams.

John Wentworth, Esq., of Kittery, was in the city on Tuesday making arrangements for the celebration of Thanksgiving day at his fine farm near Spruce creek.

Miss Kittie Tilton, daughter of Mr. John S. Tilton of Washington street, was surprised on Tuesday evening by a visit from twenty or thirty of her young friends, and a very pleasant occasion resulted.

There is a plentiful supply of western turkeys for sale at the stores here at a low figure, from thirteen to twenty-two cents. There are but a few of New England raising, but Mr. Woodbury Dixon of Wells brought in on Tuesday 150 lbs., which he offered for sale at twenty-five cents per lb.

The show windows of C. E. Laighton & Son's grocery store are most attractively set out with fine goods, the display being so tastefully arranged as to make a very pleasing picture.

Mr. Conn had at his butter and lard depot on State street, Tuesday morning, five tons of Vermont corn-fed turkeys, perhaps as handsome a lot as was ever brought into this market; at the close of the day's business he had but a dozen or so of the birds left. Fair prices were obtained, from sixteen to twenty cents a pound according to size and quality. In butter of the nicest quality he is largely stocked up.

We publish in a supplement with this issue of the Chronicle, the enactments of the legislature at its last session which became laws.

There are four flocks of Messina quail in the woods in this vicinity, with about twenty in a flock, all of which originated from birds let loose by Capt. Thomas S. Eastman, and Messrs. J. W. Bell and M. J. Ryan, about three years ago. If gunners could be induced to let them alone, as they should do, they would increase indefinitely.

The weather being very pleasant and mild, the roads also in the absence of frost very passable, despite the recent rains, a large number of private teams have been coming into this city from York county this week, making purchases in anticipation of the National Thanksgiving day.

There will be a grand shooting match on Thanksgiving day at Kittery depot, for poultry; also athletic sports are expected to come off. The arrangements will be under the direction of John and Hylon Walker.

You will be pleased with a fifty-cent bunch of Chrysanthemums for the Thanksgiving table; flowers in variety; order at Hutchinson's jewelry store.

Lewis E. Staples has laid out a small lot of Ladies' and Misses' Winter Cloaks to sell at five dollars a garment. They are broken lines he will not have again. It might be an advantage to see them.

Wilson M. Walker has a gang of thirty men at present at preliminary work on building his new hotel, the "St. Aspenquid," at York harbor.

The democratic New York World says: "The election in New Jersey was more than a republican victory. It was a small revolution. Last year the legislature on joint ballot stood forty-one democrats, thirty-eight republicans and two labor men. This year it will be fifty-two republicans and twenty-nine democrats. The result shows what the republican party can accomplish in a small state when it makes a real effort to win."

It is said that Nina Van Zandt, the silly miss whose dime-novel sentimentalism caused her to seek notoriety through a brevet marriage with the assassin Spies, tried to arrange a genuine marriage with Spies before he was hung, in order that she might claim the body and have it cremated, but she could not find a clergyman who was willing to perform the ceremony, and so the scheme fell through.

The Methodist conference at Danville, Va., resolved that Christians should avoid theaters.

Burglars robbed the safe of John D. Hass of New York of $12,000 worth of securities.

Heavy freight has been passing over the York Harbor & Beach railroad for a week past, and the receipts of the road have been large therefrom.

The new buttons being issued for the Boston & Maine passenger train men are of novel design. They consist of a black horn button covered with a detachable brass shell on which is stamped a maltese cross and "Boston & Maine R. R." The idea is that when off duty the men take of the brass shell, and appear without a uniform.

A gang of men began operations on Tuesday at what is known as Granny Welch's hill at Raynes' Neck, York, for the supposed commencement of a railroad station there.

The body of an unknown man, apparently twenty-two years of age, was found on the Boston & Maine tracks near the station at Malden, Mass., on the night of the 21st inst. It was much cut to pieces, and had probably been run over by several trains.

AFTER THE BATH.

CLARA: "I have had a most refreshing bath. The IVORY SOAP is, without exception, the most luxurious soap for bathing. It lathers freely and is so easily rinsed off, leaving a sense of comfort and cleanliness such as no other soap will."

LOUISE: "Yes, and isn't it nice to use soap that floats like the IVORY; for if you drop it, you don't have to feel for it, but pick it off the top of the water."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with all makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin Stringer was introduced by them in 1882, and has been pronounced by experts the "greatest improvement in pianos in half a century."

A clearer, more decisive testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

The attempt to rob J. Jones & Sons' store at Alton Corner on the night of the 20th inst. was made by two men, instead of one as first reported, and they were chased several hundred yards by Jones and a young man named Willie Bassett; the thieves stopped the chase by both opening fire on the pursuers, and then got into a team and drove rapidly away. This store was robbed of quite a large sum of money about two months ago.

Look here, upon this picture, and on that. One a happy boy, dancing and jumping with his little friends. The other bent with suffering and pain. The happy child's mother uses Salvation Oil. All druggists sell it at twenty-five cents a bottle.

Mrs. James Brown Potter is not a failure financially; she received $28,160 for her first twenty-two performances in New York.

Vitality and color are restored to weak and grey hair, by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. Through its cleansing and healing qualites, it prevents the accumulation of dandruff and cures all scalp diseases.

Mrs. Whitney says the secretary is rapidly recovering from his attack of nervous prostration.

James Pyle's Pearline. This preparation advertised elsewhere is really an excellent article for saving labor in washing. It takes the place of soap, sal-soda and other chemical preparations.

The Boston Central Labor union tabled a motion to revoke a former expression of sympathy for the anarchists.

A good head of hair is desired by every one. Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Restorer will restore the hair, if the hair cells are not d

Disastrous forest fires have been raging in Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas; railroad travel in many sections has been suspended.

If you are tired taking the large old-fashioned griping pills, and are satified that purging yourself till you are weak and sick is not good common sense, then try Carter's Little Liver Pills and learn how easy it is to be free from Biliousness, Headache, Constipation, and all liver troubles. These little pills are smaller, easier to take and give quicker relief than any pill in use. One a dose. Price 25 cents.

The New York Athletic club has leased Sheffield's island, and will build a $75,000 clubhouse before summer.

All cases of weak or lame back, backache, rheumatism, will find relief by wearing one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladona Backache Plasters. Price 25 cents. Try them.

Barnum says the "greatest show on earth" will be ready for the road at the usual time next spring.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with deuches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any simular application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

Manchester wants to have the state constitution amended right off. Manchester pays one-eighth of the state tax, has one-eighth of the population of New Hampshire, but it only has one-twelfth of the senators and only one-eleventh of the representatives. It thinks it is really entitled to three senators and forty representatives. As it is, it has to get along with two senators and twenty-seven representatives.

A Burglar Captured.

This morning about two o'clock, John Wood, the well known plumber who resides on Main street, was awakened by hearing glass break. On getting out of bed he received a blow on the head. He immediately grappled with the burglar, and after a terrible struggle succeeded in holding him until his wife obtained help. On being searched at the station, Mr. Wood's watch and wallet were found on his person. He gave the name of Robert Terry. The broken glass proved to be a bottle of Sulphur Bitters, which had almost cured Mrs. Wood of rheumatism — Exchange.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. mon,wed,satg.

How E. Steiner of Temple Won a Prize.

Something of a sensation was created yesterday morning by the announcement that a tenth ticket which had won the second capital prize of $50,000 in The Louisiana State Lottery, in the drawing of Tuesday, was held by E Steiner, of the clothing and furnishing establishment of M. Schram, on Twelfth St. Telegrams confirming the good news were received later in the day, and "Steiner" was the recipient of congratulations on all sides. The lucky ticket was 61,503, a tenth of which he held.—Temple (Tex.) Weekly Times, Sept. 17th.

I give honor to whom it is due. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy cured me of Bright's Disease and Gravel. Four of the best physicians had failed to relieve me. I have recommended it to scores of people with like success, and know it will cure all who try it.—Mrs. E. P. Mizner, Bury Hill, Ala. Send 2c. stamp to Dr. Kennedy, Rondout, N. THANKSGIVING.

BY ELIZABETH A. DAVIS.

The treasures of the harvest time
Are heaped in goodly store;
Earth lays her tribute at our feet
In plenteousness once more.

The hearth is swept, the board is spread
For friends from far and near;
And loving hearts are hasting home,
Perhaps in many a year.

Oh! 'tis the true Thanksgiving time
When round the old hearthstone
We greet the loved of other days,
And clasp hands with our own.

One Thanksgiving Day.

BY ELLEN A. ARLES.

It was Thanksgiving Day; but old Judge White, as he rode slowly up the winding avenue that hid his handsome house from the road beyond, was not at all in a thanksgiving frame of mind. His brows were knit, his eyes lowered, the reins fell loosely from his careless hand.

Perhaps he was thinking of the days long past, when he had cantered up that same path on his little pony, with his terrier scampering at his heels.

Ah! that was a time when turkey and mince-pies were still potent to please, and Thanksgiving Day was something to be looked forward to and long remembered.

Perhaps he was thinking of the June morning when he first brought home his bride, and of the happy hours they had ridden together under these branching trees. Perhaps he thought of his boy, and recalled the little figure lifted on his father's horse, and held there safely, while his mother stood, half laughing, half trembling, on the porch.

How long ago were all these happy days! His wife had slept for years in the country churchyard. His boy, willful and hard to control even in youth, had "gone wrong" in early manhood, and had disappeared forever from his father's life.

Five years ago a black-edged letter brought the news of his death from yellow fever in Jamaica; and now the judge was alone—a stern and silent man, who lived quietly in the old hall, with no other friends than his horse and a couple of ancient hounds as stiff and unsocial as their master.

It was very cold for the season. A thin sprinkling of snow lay on the ground, and the east wind whistling through the branches gave promise of more to come.

When the judge reached his house, there was no sign of groom or servant anywhere—only a little boy standing at the foot of the long flight of steps, who was improvising a sort of war-dance with a view to thawing his chilled blood.

The old gentleman whistled impatiently, and waited for a few seconds; but no one appeared, and the child, taking off his ragged cap, came forward hesitatingly, and offered to hold the horse.

"What are you waiting for, my little man?" asked the judge, slowly dismounting, and fumbling in his pocket for some small coin.

"I was sent over with the eggs, sir," answered the boy. "I am living with Farmer Bacon, and the housekeeper told me to wait at the front door until she brought me the money, and a cake for Thanksgiving."

"Oh, that is the way, is it? Well, lead the horse to the stable, and give it in charge of the first man you meet. Then come back, and I'll pay you for the job."

And the judge, opening his door, turned into the library, where a huge fire burned and crackled cheerfully behind the old-fashioned brass dogs.

"A pretty little fellow," he said to himself, "and with a pair of honest blue eyes to help him on in the world. I wonder where—Why, what's that about?"

For, glancing out of the window, he saw a groom hastily snatch the reins from the child's hands, aiming at the same time a blow at his head, which was, however, dexterously avoided.

"There! give me the horse and go about your business!" said the angry man. "This ain't no place for you."

But the little fellow stood his ground valiantly.

"You're a brute and a coward," he said, with distinctness. "The gentleman gave me the horse to take to the stable, and you hadn't any call to try and hit me."

"Hadn't I?" retorted the other. "I'll do more than try, if I catch you here again. Be off now, or—"

But at this instant the library window opened, and the judge's gray head appeared between the heavy curtains.

"James," he said, in a quiet voice that boded no good to the offender, "having failed to be on hand yourself, you need not therefore abuse the child to whom I gave your work. I will have no brutality about my place, and can dispense with your services altogether. The boy may take the horse to the stable, as I bade him, and then come in to me."

Five minutes later the little fellow stood, cap in hand, at the library door, his shabby clothes contrasting sharply with the luxury that surrounded him, his bright blue eyes fixed keenly on the judge's face, as if to read his welcome. He was neither awkward nor abashed, as is the fashion of a country lad, nor pertly forward, after the manner of a city gamin. He had a resolute, sturdy air, as though a hard life had taught him how to hold his own; yet there was something pathetic in the wondering eagerness with which he glanced from the glowing fire to the books and pictures on the wall, and then back again to the old man who sat silent and absorbed before it.

The judge smiled as he caught the look, and beckoned him to come forward.

"How old are you, my boy?" he asked.

"Eleven years, sir."

"And what is your name?"

"John White."

The old gentleman started, and then smiled again.

"Why, you are my namesake," he said; "though I dare say I have plenty more. John Whites are almost as abundant in this world as John Smiths. But have you no father or mother?"

The child shook his head.

"Father has been dead for years," he said, "and mother, too. I was brought up at a home, and sent to the country to be made a farmer of."

"And do you like it at Farmer Bacon's?"

"Yes, sir."

Here the conversation languished, and the judge taking out a quarter from his vest-pocket, turned it over slowly in his capacious palm.

Oddly enough, he felt unwilling to let the boy go, and yet there was no possible reason for detaining him. With a strange stirring at his heart, he scanned thoughtfully every feature of the bright young face before him—the short upper lip, giving a glimpse of the firm white teeth within; the blue eyes, not large, but bright and deeply set; the brown hair, with a touch of red in it, that fell a little over his forehead like a wisp of a pony's mane.

"John," he said at last, "or Jack—which do they call you?"

"Jack," said the child, smiling.

"Well, Jack, then, come nearer, and tell me something. Have you no relations at all—none?"

"None that I know of, sir."

"And nothing to show who or what you are? No papers or keepsakes of any kind that belonged to your parents? If you were not a waif abandoned in the streets, surely you must have something left by them."

The boy flushed, hesitated and looked soberly at his questioner.

"I was not a waif," he said. "My mother took care of me until she died, when I was put in the Home. I was seven years old then, and she gave me this."

He unbuttoned his jacket, and drew from his coarse shirt a small, tightly-rolled packet, which he wore around his neck; then, as though repenting of his rashness, thrust it hastily back again, and turned to leave the room.

"But you are not going without your quarter, surely?" said the judge. "Nor have you any reason to distrust me. Let me look at that little packet. It can do you no harm, and perhaps—perhaps—"

His voice trembled with eagerness as he stretched out his hand, and the boy, yielding to a new impulse, placed the packet in it without a word.

Slowly the judge untied the faded strings and opened the poor little reliquary—all that a mother's love could leave. There was a plain gold ring, a certificate of marriage between John Jasper White and Alice Haydon, and two frayed and yellow letters, dating from Jamaica—the first written in gay spirits and with many expressions of love from husband to wife; the second, a few straggling and uneven lines, showing plainly the weakened condition of the writer.

"I am down with the fever," it said, "and, if I die, surely my father will do something for you and little Jack. I have been a bad son to him, but he will forgive all when I am dead, and you and he will make a better man of Jack than I have ever been. Always your loving husband,

"JOHN JASPER WHITE."

There was a long silence in the room. The judge's head was bowed upon his hands, and the boy stood wondering at his side—grandfather and grandson brought together so strangely in the old library, while outside the snow fluttered softly against the window-pane, and the robins chirped merrily in the frosty pines.

When at last the old man—old in sorrows rather than in years—raised his eyes, and saw the child before him, he drew him softly to his arms.

"Your father was my only son," he said, simply. "I never knew that he was married, and your mother was too proud to come to me for help. My dear little grandson, God has given you back to me, and you are mine indeed."

That was the very happiest Thanksgiving the old hall had ever known. The dinner-table groaned under its weight of good things, and the housekeeper, with tears running down her cheeks, came in to drink little Jack's health.

"And to think," she said, "that I should have left him standing out in the snow for a cake!"

"But if you had not, Mrs. Ellis," answered the judge, gaily, "I should not have discovered him—at least, not this soon. Some day I must have found him out."

And that night, alone by the library fire, in the warm and glowing lamplight, grandfather and grandson sat side by side, talking of the past, planning for the future, happier than either had ever been before upon Thanksgiving Day.

ELASTIC STARCH

TRADE MARK

The First and Only Starch put up by men who have a practical knowledge of the laundry profession. It requires no cooking, keeps the iron from sticking and linen from blistering while ironing, and gives shirts, cuffs and collars that stiffness and beautiful polish they have when new. Ladies will know how easy it is to keep clean twice as long. Beware of imitations. See that the name J. C. HUBINGER & BROS., New Haven, Conn., is on every package. SOLD BY ALL GROCERS.

An Able Protector.

If there is a more able protector against the incursions of disease than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, we have yet to learn of it. Against the periodic attacks of fever and ague it affords a sure defence, it renews waning vitality, and counteracts the infirmities of age; it prevents dyspepsia from becoming chronic, and eventually annihilates it. It rouses the liver and kidneys when dormant, and insures a regular habit of body. To the nervous it is of inestimable benefit, imparting steadiness and vigor into an enfeebled physique. The term, "delicate health," is usually another name for debility. While the Bitters are procurable, the weak need never despair of physical reinforcement. Persons whose avocations are sedentary and laborious, or involve exposure to unfavorable climatic influences, will also find the Bitters an able protector.

The Dover Democrat of Tuesday, the 22d inst., says: "Two Portsmouth girls were thrown from a team on Stark avenue this afternoon by a runaway horse, and taken into Wm. F. O'Neil's, where it was found that although somewhat bruised they were not seriously hurt."

A startling truth!—Thousands die annually from neglected coughs and colds, which soon ripen into consumption, or other equally fatal diseases of the lungs; when, by the timely use of a single bottle of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, their lives could have been preserved to a green old age.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any simular application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

THANKSGIVING.

"Again we near the threshold of winter."

"When dark December glooms the day
And takes our Autumn joy away."

But before that period we will enjoy our Thanksgiving.

The truly grateful person requires not the edict of the president or the governor to be reasonably thankful at this season of the year. To us of New Hampshire the fact that the session of our state legislature has at last ended is indeed a cause of general thanksgiving, if not of praise.

We rejoice that the annual apprehensions, commonly of a speculative character, which predict short crops in the land, have not been realized. That distinguished and oft-referred-to important factor in our nation's wealth, the husbandman, who plants, cultivates and reaps that the rest of his fellowmen may subsist, seems to have had his customary bountiful harvest, and it is to be hoped that after paying the interest on his farm loan, there will remain sufficient shot in the locker with which he may pull through to another harvest season.

True, we have the calamity of a coming Congress, but such evils always have been and from necessity always must be borne by the body politic.

The pleasure and duty of the hour is to view the bright side of our existence; to appreciate the numberless blessings which a kind providence is constantly bestowing upon us, and to be indeed thankful therefor. Thus as we gather at the feast let us pause and consider for a moment how bountiful have been the gifts of our creator; how each and every inhabitant is cared for in the opportunity to provide suitable food and raiment; and whether in our several places of worship, in our social or family unions, or as the guests of happy homes, let us not omit that due recognition of the bounty of the Giver of All God, of whose continued kindness this Thanksgiving festival is such an appropriate reminder.

Heavy Odds.

The republicans and independent democrats of Boston propose to support Ex-Governor Gaston as the candidate for mayor against the O'Brien democracy. Gov. Gaston has been mayor of Boston. He is a democrat, with the combined instincts of a gentleman and a man of integrity. It is hoped that such a man may be elected, but it is the contest between men who desire an honest city government, and those who fatten on the spoils of office, sell out to the great street railway ring, and are backed by the national administration. It is too much to expect that against these odds a clean candidate can be chosen.

ELIOT ITEMS.

ELIOT, ME., Nov. 22d.

The Band of Kindness held their first public meeting on Monday evening of last week, in the Congregational church; there was a full attendance. A lecture was given by Col. T. E. O. Marvin of Portsmouth; and Arthur Dow, just returned from France, also spoke. Prof. M. G. Farmer's family were the promoters of the association, whose object is the repression of cruelty to animals.

The Eliot Library Association gave their first public entertainment last Tuesday evening in the Methodist church at South Eliot, and although the evening was stormy and unfavorable, a great success was achieved. The exercises consisted of readings, singing by mixed and male quartettes, and instrumental music. The president of the association announced the enrollment of more than 400 active members, and others joining daily; its projectors have been most happily disappointed in the manner in which the scheme has been taken hold of by the people of the town. He gave "a reporter for the lower part of the town, near the neck," a very pleasant compliment, and suggested that "Mr. Farmer's family" would be pleased to know the writer who signs "Harry" at the bottom of the Eliot items—which was of course pleasing to the reporter, though perhaps it may not be advisable for him to disclose his identity just yet.

Mrs. Lade is quite ill with neuralgia; we hope for her speedy recovery, as she is a benefit to the community in which she lives.

Timothy Dame, Esq., has been loading apples the past week for parties in Boston; the prices are not very high, ranging from $1.15 to $2.50 a barrel.

Melville Dixon is shortly to erect a house near his blacksmith shop, close to the town hall.

Samuel Dixon of Eliot neck lost a valuable cow on the 15th inst.

William Paul and wife, of New York, are visiting Mr. Paul's brother Charles, of this town.

Mrs. L. W. Adams returned home last Saturday from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. S. H. Chauncy, in Somerville, Mass.

Miss Villa L. Dixon commenced the winter term of school in district two on Monday, the 21st. E. H. Dixon and Miss Laura Dame have a vacation of three weeks before the winter term begins in district seven.

J. W. Nowell, postmaster of South Eliot, is confined to the house by sickness; we trust he will soon be out again.

Alexander Junkins is about to take up his abode in Greenland, N. H., at the new home he has lately purchased near that of his son, Dr. W. O. Junkins. He will be a great loss to the town of Eliot in town business. The Eliot & Kittery Fire Ins. Co. have appointed Moses Goodwin, Jr., treasurer, in place of Mr. Junkins. HARRY.

DOVER ELECTION.

The municipal election in Dover, Nov. 22d, resulted in an overwhelming victory for the republicans, Mayor George G. Lowell having 549 plurality over James Whitehouse, democratic and citizens' candidate. In ward five, where there are only a dozen republicans, Lowell had 114, Whitehouse 83. Eight of the ten aldermen, and ten of the fifteen councilmen, are republicans.

Very few farmers' teams were in town on Wednesday of this week, although it was "the day before Thanksgiving," at which time in former years the Parade was usually packed with wagons loaded with turkeys, ducks and chickens. The raising of turkeys has not been prosecuted to any extent in this vicinity for a number of years past, since whole flocks were swept away by an epidemic; geese are still raised in limited numbers, but are not brought to market until Christmas time; chickens are largely raised, but the majority of them are sold to the summer hotels, and most of the remainder are kept for the eggs and for the next spring's breeding. As a whole, but very little poultry is now raised for the general market within ten miles of Portsmouth.

There was an auction sale at the Charlestown navy yard, Nov. 22d, of old and condemned material and fittings, from the various men-of-war, which had been allowed to accumulate. The catalogue contained many curious articles, and attracted quite a crowd of buyers, including well-to-do iron merchants and seedy junk and old-clothes dealers. Chief Engineer David B. Macomb found among the goods the bureau he used on board the steam frigate Niagara in 1860, and purchased it with evident satisfaction.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Fair weather, followed by local snows, variable winds, becoming northwesterly, slightly colder.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 30 degrees above zero.

Cloudy.

THANKSGIVING.

Thanksgiving day being a legal holiday, no paper will be issued from this office to-morrow.

A union Thanksgiving service will be held in the North church this (Thursday) forenoon at 10:45 o'clock, to which all are cordially invited. The several pastors of the city will be present. Sermon by Rev. W. A. McGinley; subject, "The element of justice in government."

The hair-dressing rooms of the city will be closed all day to-day.

Post-office hours to-day: General delivery, open from 8:00 to 10:30 A. M., 6:00 to 6:30 P. M.; carriers' delivery and collection trips at 7:30 and 11:00 A. M.; box office open all day.

At Music hall this evening will be given a most enjoyable concert of instrumental and vocal music, with dialect and dramatic readings, humorous songs and recitations. Miss Fannie P. Hoyt, the talented and brilliant young lady violinist, is a member of the company. Tickets 25, 35 and 50 cts.; for sale at Goodrich's and at the door.

NAT. GOODWIN IN "TURNED UP."

Mr. Nat. C. Goodwin is a natural comedian, and able to give a good entertainment with a poor piece; with such a comedy success as "Turned Up," backed by an excellent company, he is irresistable. The big audience that will greet him tomorrow night in Music hall will enjoy the heartiest laugh of the season. Tickets at Goodrich's.

THE LETTER CARRIERS

Distribute between thirty and forty thousand letters, papers and packages every month to residents of our city. It has become the accustomed daily occurrence to expect the postman and welcome his coming. The carriers are prompt, active, and seem to give great satisfaction. People who at first determined that they would not have their letters and papers come by letter carrier, now are glad of the new departure. Boxes can now be obtained at the post-office easily, where before not one was to be had except by waiting one's turn. So much for the carriers. But what we started to say was:

The season when the carrier is to go through wind and snow and icy ways early and late is fast approaching; so, to, the season for remembering the faithful bearers of our correspondence, those never-failing messengers alike of good tidings and sorrowful intelligence, who make the rounds with such unfailing promptitude. The coming winter it is anticipated will be an open season. Even should this be the case, the carrier does not require a pair of worked slippers, or any token of esthetic character. All that one is required to do by the custom of the land everywhere the postman travels, is to enclose the very hard or quiet cash in an envelope and have it ready at Christmas, so that the deserving recipients may by this token know that the prompt and efficient discharge of their laborious and at times perplexing duties is not only heeded but properly appreciated. There is lots of fun in imagining what a fine time the boys will have in looking over the contents of their envelopes, and their grateful recognition of the good deeds of the donors.

PLEASANT HOME WEDDING.

A large and happy party assembled on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 23d, at No. 143 State street, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen L. Marston, to witness the marriage of their eldest daughter, Miss Ida Lovell Marston, formerly principal of the Cabot street school, to Mr. Wilbur Jerome Rockwood of Blackstone, Mass., formerly principal of the High school at that place, but for several years past principal of the Jones school in this city.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Alden, D. D., at 3:30 o'clock, the house being darkened, and lighted artificially. The bride wore a dress of wine colored corded silk, cut square in the neck and filled in with creme lace, half-length sleeves, and elbow gloves; corsage bouquet of white roses, and hand bouquet of white roses and maiden-hair ferns,—and a very handsome picture she presented, with cheeks tinted and eyes brightened by the natural excitement of the occasion. The groom was dressed in a conventional suit of black. Following the ceremony which made the contracting parties husband and wife, and their reception of the congratulations and good wishes of their numerous friends present, refreshments were served, Mr. W. K. Hill of the Rockingham catering for the occasion. After an hour or more of pleasant social converse the bride appeared in a travelling dress of gobelin blue broadcloth, with seal jacket; and Mr. and Mrs. Rockwood, taking leave of their friends, left the house amid a shower of slippers and rice, on their way to the five o'clock train west for a brief wedding tour, intending to return next week.

Among the large party present at the wedding were all the teachers of the High and Jones schools, and a large proportion of the others; some of Mr. Rockwood's college classmates, and several of those who graduated with the bride from the Portsmouth High school. Notwithstanding that the house was thronged, everything passed off like clockwork, due in no small degree to the tact and attention of Principal Pickard of the High school, and Mr. E. Scott Owen, who officiated as ushers with as much skill as though it had been the business of their lives.

If the number and value of the presents received is a criterion of the estimation in which they are held, Mr. Rockwood and his wife have a wide circle of warm friends. Included in the almost innumerable gifts were a large and beautiful oil painting, a landscape with Mount Kearsarge in the distance, painted by Miss Nellie G. Ham, a pupil of Champney, and copied from one of his pictures; a very large steel engraving, "The Russian Marriage;" a beautiful group of Rogers statuary, "The Shaughraun and 'Tatters'," from college friends of the groom; a large nut dish of oxydized silver, from the teachers of the 1st division of the Jones school; a large and handsome silver water-pitcher from the pupils of the 1st division of the Jones school, inscribed "Wilbur J. Rockwood, from the 1st Division of the Jones School, 1887;" set of solid silver coffee spoons, from the pupils of the 2d division; silver service, from cousins of the bride; and from relatives of the groom a piece of old-fashioned plate which has been an heir-loom in the Rockwood family for over 150 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Rockwood will be at home at No. 143 State street on Wednesdays, Dec. 7th and 14th. We add our good wishes for their prosperous and happy future, to those of their more intimate friends.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. John W. Dame has removed from No. 20 High street to No. 37 Vaughan street.

Mr. Alexander Leach and family, of Newburyport, were in this city on the 23d inst., returning that evening. Mr. Leach and wife are both natives of Portsmouth.

A telegram was received in this city on Wednesday, the 23d inst., announcing the arrival in Baltimore the previous day of Mr. Andrew P. Wendell, by steamer from St. Thomas, and that he should reach home on Friday night, the 25th.

Messrs. Wm. P. Young, of the auditing department of the Fitchburg railroad, and Walter C. Vaughan, of Boston, were among those who arrived in this city on Thanksgiving eve to pass the great New England festival at home. Others were George A. Munroe and wife of Everett, Mass., Frank Wendell and wife of Salem, Mass., Frank E. Mason of New York, and Wm. T. Raynes of Lowell.

MARITIME NOTES.

Capt. James Burke, second assistant keeper of Boon island light station, came in on Tuesday afternoon of this week to pass Thanksgiving with his friends in this city. He came on shore in the schooner Champion, Capt. Hutchins, of Cape Neddick.

The steamer Arecuna, at Baltimore Nov. 23d from Demarara, reports that on Nov. 18th spoke the British schooner Willie Freeman, Captain McIntosh, from Las Palmas, etc., for Boston. The [illegible] 13th, in which had bowsprit sprung and received other damage, and was also short of provisions. Temporary repairs were made, and she will try to reach Nassau. The passengers were transferred to the steamer.

The brick carrying vessels have not all hauled off for the winter yet; the Hattie Lewis, Garnet, and Lillie arrived at Boston from this port on Tuesday of this week—with their last cargoes for this season, probably.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

A suit will shortly be begun in the Hillsborough county supreme court by the Manchester & Lawrence railroad against the Concord railroad, to recover what is claimed to be a large balance due from the Concord to the Manchester & Lawrence road.

On Tuesday forenoon of this week a west-bound freight train on the Boston & Maine road broke apart at Kennebunk, and the locomotive and forward section of the train ran to Wells before it was discovered that five freight cars and the "buggy" had been left behind. No harm was done beyond occasioning some little inconvenience and delay.

The directors of the Concord & Claremont railroad met at Concord on Monday of this week, and consented, as far as their road is concerned, to the recent "business contract" made by the directors of the Northern railroad with the Boston & Maine.

James A. Snow of this city has been granted a naval invalid pension.

It is reported on the street that Charles H. Joy & Son have bought out the grocery business of Samuel S. Frye & Son, on Congress street.

An entertainment was given on Wednesday evening, Nov. 23d, at the Old Ladies' Home, by the choir chapter of St. John's guild, for the benefit of the Home.

The streets of Dover were lighted up this week with sixty-seven arc lights of the Thompson-Houston system; the entire lot were in successful operation on Monday night, and a local paper says "every one remarked how much better they are than gas." It is this system of lighting which is now being substituted by the Portsmouth Electric Light Co. for the old one, which has caused so much dissatisfaction to both citizens and company during the past year.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. [illegible]

William P. Wallace.

In our death notices may be found the announcement of the death of Mr. William P. Wallace, who for seven years or more has occupied the position of night operator at the Boston & Maine depot in this city. Mr. Wallace has been unable to attend to his duties for about four weeks, but took his bed only a week ago. Mr. Wallace was the oldest night operator in the employ of the road, having entered the telegraph office in this city as a boy 18 years ago. While serving in that capacity, he learned to be an expert operator. He has held the position of operator in several places along the line of the road, until he came to the office in this city some seven years ago. He was well known here by a very large circle of friends, and by his ever genial manner easily made the acquaintance of many of our citizens. He was a capable and valued operator, as his long service for the company by which he was employed demonstrates.

He leaves a wife and one child to mourn the loss of husband and father, while his mother, and brother George B., in this city, and a sister residing in Lynn, survive him. The funeral will take place Friday at 1.30 a. m. at the North chapel on Middle street. Mr. Wallace was born in Concord, but moved to this city when four years old with his parents.—Times, Nov. 23d.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., Nov. 22d.

The good housewives are now busy preparing for the home gatherings on Thursday. The sons and daughters of Kittery Point regard Thanksgiving as the holiday of the year.

Rev. Henry S. Ives will preach his farewell sermon next Sunday. He enters upon a new field of labor in Milton Mills, N. H., the first Sabbath in December.

It is rumored that Rev. John H. Mugridge may supply at the Christian chapel during the winter months. Elder Mugridge was born and brought up in Kittery Point, and is a member of Elder Fernald's church. He is a general favorite among the people, especially the young, and if he comes to this place will be gladly welcomed.

The site of the future railroad depot seems to be still undecided.

The fish firm had a car load of freight come to this station last week. They are expecting another lot this week by the schooner Golden Gate.

The young people of the Christian society will give a concert at their chapel Thanksgiving night. They will be assisted by Geo. H. Williams, from Great Falls, N. H.

The weather is now cool and fine. There is a prospect of a fine moonlight evening, Thanksgiving. AUNT MOLLY.

KITTERY, ME., Nov. 22d.

Mrs. Geo. Lambert, we are pleased to announce, is convalescent.

Quarterly meeting was held with the 1st Methodist society on Sunday, the 20th inst.

Ellsworth Peirce of North Kittery, while building a pigeon coop on his barn one day last week, fell from the ladder and fractured the bone of one of his legs badly.

Mrs. Thomas Pettigrew is lying dangerously ill at her home in North Kittery; she is one of the most aged ladies in town.

The second social assembly by Adams & Wood, in Trefethen's hall, Kittery, will be given on Tuesday evening, Nov. 29th, if fair weather; should that evening be stormy, the dance will come off on the first pleasant evening following.

John J. Lambert of North Kittery has been appointed special constable; we hope he will manage to preserve better order than has sometimes prevailed in that section of the town of late.

Luther Dame, recently elected representative in the Massachusetts legislature from Newburyport, was born in Kittery, and is a grandson of the late Hon. Joshua S. Chase, who represented Kittery in the great and general court at Boston prior to the separation in 1820, and several terms in the legislature of the new state of Maine. From what we learn, although Mr. Dame is an exponent of a different school of politics, he has the sterling qualities which rendered his grandsire's services so acceptable to his constituents in the long ago.

SUB ROSA.

I give honor to whom it is due. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy cured me of Bright's Disease and Gravel. Four of the best physicians had failed to relieve me. I have recommended it to scores of people with like success, and know it will cure all who try it.—Mrs. E. P. Mizner, Burg Hill, O. Send 2-c. stamp to Dr. Kennedy, Rondout, N. SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half with a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years. Hoping you can help suffering so you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. Please advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and spitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer perfectly from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and permanent relief. Cures begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and an IMPROVED INHALER; price, $1.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

A serious accident happened recently in the steam mill of Mr. Berry. A son of Mr. Monroe Holmes, about fifteen years of age, injured his hand badly on the circular saw. Dr. Merrill hopes to save amputation.

Mr. Sheldon, who has been superintendent of the Young Men's Christian Association at Worcester, Mass., has resigned on account of impaired health. He has made very great and happily successful exertions in raising one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and erecting a splendid building for the association. He has moved his family here, and will occupy, for a year or so of rest, the beautiful homestead of his father-in-law, the late Josiah Barker.

Mr. George Fisk and lady have returned from their late home in the land of flowers and orange groves, and have moved into the residence of the late Mr. Randall, now owned by his daughter, Mrs. Stone of Exeter.

Mr. Hill, a gentleman of wealth and leisure, has rented for five years the large house of the late Freeman Brown on the piney hills, near the North Beach, and is fitting and repairing the premeses to his own taste and convenience.

Mr. George Page has rented the house of Mr. Brown, a brother of Mrs. Dea. Willcutt, who has not been heard from since he sailed for the East Indies some ten years ago.

Music hath power to sway the cultured mind as well as a "charm to soothe the savage breast." A popular, very able and scholarly clergyman was recently so enthused or oscillated by the entrancing — not to say cavorting— music introduced, mal apropos, between the scripture reading and the "long" prayer, two parts of devotional exercises that should never be divorced from their wedded harmony, that, taking the hymn book, he came near saying "Let us sing" instead of "Let us pray!"

And now, Messrs. Editors, wishing you a gladsome Thanksgiving, let us with our kindest good bye and most courteous salaam to your columns and your readers, close the jottings of these.

A Burglar Captured.

This morning about two o'clock, John Wood, the well known plumber who resides on Main street, was awakened by hearing glass break. On getting out of bed he received a blow on the head. He immediately grappled with the burglar, and after a terrible struggle succeeded in holding him until his wife obtained help. On being searched at the station, Mr. Wood's watch and wallet were found on his person. He gave the name of Robert Terry. The broken glass proved to be a bottle of Sulphur Bitters, which had almost cured Mrs. Wood of rheumatism — Exchange.

The Only Remedy FOR Contagious Blood Poison.

Mr. D. B. Adams, Union, South Carolina, writes: "I was afflicted with a terrible case of blood poison for about thirteen months. I was treated by the best physicians, and used various kinds of remedies, but received no substantial relief. I finally tried the Swift Specific. About four bottles cured me sound and well."

Col. B. H. Kieser, editor and proprietor of the Opelika, Ala., News, under date of August 5, 1887, writes: "When I was a young man, through indiscretion, I contracted a disease which has stuck to me for years. Some five or six years since I was troubled with pains, so as to make it difficult for me to walk. Having advertised the S. S. S. in my paper for several years, I concluded I would try it to see if there was any efficacy in the medicine. I commenced using it according to directions and used half dozen bottles. I was once at a way station and, getting left, I walked the seven miles and have never felt any return of the old malady. After experiencing the good effect, I must say I am satisfied with the result. I am sixty-eight years of age and I feel now like a young man and can go to the cane mill every morning and set up from six to eight thousand canes without any inconvenience. I send you this without solicitation."

Mr. F. Woehl, 211 North Avenue, Chicago, under date of June 12, 1887, writes: "I deem it my duty to thank you for the cure I received from your excellent medicine. I contracted a very severe case of blood poisoning about two years ago. Hearing of your medicine, I went to a drug store, the proprietor of which persuaded me to buy a preparation of his own, which he said was a sure cure. I used six bottles of his stuff and grew worse all the time. At last I got disgusted and despaired of a cure. I met a friend who told me that your medicine had cured him. I went to the same druggist again and demanded your medicine. He reluctantly sold me two bottles, and I am now perfectly cured. I write this for the benefit of sufferers, to prevent their being deceived by false representations. I thank you again for the benefit derived from your medicine."

Dr. J. N. Cheney, a prominent physician, residing in Zillsville, Schley County, Georgia, in a letter recounting the infallible success he has in curing contagious blood poison cases in his extensive practice, writes: "Those who know the almost inevitable, permanently dangerous effects of mercury will welcome your discovery of S. S. S. as a boon to humanity. The medical profession, always wary of proprietary medicines, is coming round, and in some cases secretly to the use of S. S. S. in case of blood disorder. Of course a medicine that cures poisoning in its worst form must purify the blood in every disorder."

WILD GEESE IN DAKOTA.

Grand Armies of Wild Birds—A Sight to Delight a Sportsman's Eyes.

For the information and, perhaps, benefit of sportsmen, I will give a faint description of what we are daily witnessing of the grand armies of the strong winged birds whose name heads this letter. Of the variety known further south as wild geese, the "honkers," as they are called, from their peculiar cry when on the wing, we see large numbers. A great many of them nest and breed about the small lakes in our neighborhood, and people often take the eggs and hatch them under domestic birds, either geese or hens. Besides these there are the brant, a smaller, gray goose, and the beautiful snowy geese. Of these last there seems to be no limit to numbers. The air is almost constantly filled with their notes, and one can scarcely look up at the sky—which is wonderfully wide from these highlands—without seeing flocks of these magnificent birds wheeling across it in one direction or another. No mathematics yet invented could enumerate the hosts that have so far appeared. Instantaneous photography is the only method by which any truthful representation can be given of their hosts.

We rode out the other day to the lake (Wamnuska, sometimes called Stump lake). The day was one of the mellow, golden, bracing, thoroughly enjoyable days that October sometimes brings even to poor dwellers amid the mists and damps of the east, but to us she is lavish of such treasures during her entire reign. All the day and the days before—one can not tell for how long—flocks of geese, in countless numbers, were sailing overhead in ranks and clusters of ranks, some dark and some snowy white, with black tipped wings. They are congregating about our beautiful lake, probably making preliminary arrangements for their southern flight. The whole blue vault, which showed no cloud, was lined in every direction by ranks of snowy birds. The afternoon sun shone full upon their brilliant plumage, tinging it a full golden color, than which no bird of paradise could be more dazzling, and the vast numbers on wing of shining gold hued hosts, made one of the finest sights that one can behold. I never before saw anything to equal it. When we came in full view of the lake, where there are several miles of water in sight, there was another remarkable surprise for us. If the canopy above was full of flying birds, the surface of that long stretch of glistening water was a hundred times more so. Along the further shore and far out from land there were thousands of geese floating, so close together that one saw no glimmer of water between them.

Midway between the shores islands of geese floated, but appeared, to observers on the high banks, like still, inanimate earth, covered with a fresh fall of snow. Sportsmen were crouching here and there behind clumps of bushes, and every now and then a rifle shot echoed along the woodland; but what were a few sportsmen among such multitudes of birds?

My neighbor, the postmaster, brought in a half a dozen geese, the result of two or three odd half hours' sport. Another neighbor took twelve the same day. One man shot fourteen within thirty minutes. The flesh of these birds is excellent, and in this climate can be kept a long time. A party of sportsmen are here now from Florida, and will spend a week or more. Two gentlemen from Boston spent a week here shooting, and bagged a large number of ducks and several geese. They left for home some weeks ago. Had they remained two weeks their sport would, perhaps, have been more satisfactory, as the larger birds are far more numerous at this time than a month earlier. As it was, however, these Boston men were so well pleased with their trip, and with the opportunities for good shooting, that they left their cance here for next year's use.—Harrisburg (Dak.) Letter.

Gray Matter of the Brain.

"Many jokes are made about the gray matter of the brain," said Dr. Hammond, "but I will say right here that I have a great respect for the gray matter of the brain. There is no higher organism than that. It is the grandest organ in man, and were I ever to worship anything it would be a portion of the gray matter of the brain. It is well for us to know that the emotions cause more unhappiness and crime than any other function of the brain. Human beings are governed by their emotions, and it is well that they should be, though it is the emotions that wear away the brain, and not honest intellectual work. Very few people suffer from intellectual work, and if my memory serves me I do not recollect ever having a mathematician for a patient.

"It is not intellectual work that causes nervous dyspepsia, but the emotions, such as anxiety, fear, sorrow and love. I consider that eight hours are sufficient for a man to use his brain, because if he exceeds that time he becomes nervous and fretful, and an exhausted brain is an irritable brain. You may not feel the evil effects of the stress of brain work at the time, but you will sooner or later, when it will be too late. The men that work at night with their brains are the ones that expose themselves to danger and death, which will surely come unless the great strain on the mind is lightened."

Effects of Heredity.

A new method of obtaining data for estimating the effects of heredity has been recently devised. Starting from a brood of a single pair of moths, Francis Galton proposes to trace the changes of some one characteristic, such as length of wing, during several successive generations. In each generation three lines of descent, those of shortest, longest and medium length of wing, will be contrasted.—Chicago Times.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sores or forings sprang from of any person in the state. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Humphrey both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in this country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and took it, and has taken it all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headache,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic form, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat irritated and hacking coughs gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and an IMPROVED INHALER; price, $1.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any similar application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

Such is Fame.

It is always pleasing to the learned journals in large cities to pick up and point out, in their superior, humorous and patronizing manner, whatever errors they may observe in their "esteemed rural contemporaries;" but it remained for "the leading democratic daily in New England outside of Boston," when speaking of the burning of Barnum's circus at Bridgeport, Conn., to refer to "that other Bornum who used to run the republican circus." As a matter of fact "that other Barnum" was chairman of the democratic national committee in the Garfield-Hancock presidential campaign.

THE RISE IN COAL.

A gentleman who is reported as being thoroughly familiar with the "ins and outs" of the coal business, and who has a large interest in one of the great coal transportation companies, told a Boston newspaper reporter a day or two since that the much-talked-about coal famine now prevailing had in it a good deal of "bluff," but that it emanated from the powers in New York and could not be successfully resisted by the small dealers and consumers. The Lehigh Valley strike has, he admitted, made the situation bad enough, but not sufficiently so, he claimed, to warrant a condition of famine or to justify the late exorbitant advances in the prices of coal. The worst of these advances is, that the extra price comes almost wholly from mechanics and laborers, who are least able to bear the tax; the wealthier classes are able to, and ordinarily do, put in their winter's stock of coal during the summer, when low prices rule; the workingman cannot do this, ordinarily, and is the one to suffer by the winter squeeze.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

HORSEFLESH EATERS IN NEW YORK.

A Butcher Whose Customers Are the Park Birds and Beasts.

The man led the way through a passage from the stable to the other side of the building. The passage opened into a large square room lighted by spacious open doors on both sides. The wood floor was stained a dull red. This is the slaughter room, where the horses are killed and cut up for the animals at the arsenal at Central park. On a couple of hooks on one side of the room hung portions of a carcass like the quarters of a beef. At a glance one who was not an expert in raw meat would have said this was beef, but the horse butcher pointed out that the meat was of a deeper color and a closer grain than beef. Horse meat is, he said, as he could state from personal knowledge, equally as good as beef when young and tender. There was a peculiar flavor to horse meat, he added, that some people liked better than beef, and the lions and tigers were fond of it, but for himself he preferred a good piece of porterhouse steak every time.

In one corner of the room was a refrigerator, where the meat is kept until it is required. The skin of the last horse who had been killed a few days before lay on the other side of the room. He was a baker's horse, the butcher explained, and his hair had been yellow. Everything was as neat and cleanly and free from taint as a butcher's shop could be. The chopping block was washed and as tidy as a kitchen table. The cleaver, the saw and the small knives, shining bright and sharp, hung in their places beside the butcher's apron. About two years ago the park authorities adopted the plan of supplying the carnivorous animals in the menagerie with horse meat instead of beef. The measure was purely an economic one. Director Conklin found difficulty at times in obtaining good beef or mutton, and the prices ranged from twelve to eighteen cents. In Europe the animals in the zoological collections are fed horse's flesh, and he advised the commissioners to make the trial here. President Borden became interested and the brick building was fitted up as a stable and butcher shop, with a result that has justified the outlay. From $10 to $15 are paid for horses, the butcher is hired by the park board and the actual cost of the meat is now about three or three and one-half cents a pound.

About two horses on an average are killed each week. They are rarely old horses, as might be supposed, but usually those which have given out from some cause. Before they are accepted a veterinary surgeon makes a careful examination of the animal to ascertain if it is free from disease. There is no difficulty in securing all that are needed by the city, and usually two or three are kept in the stalls, some of them to be fattened before they are killed. From the ceiling near the center of the room a rope hung down from a heavy staple. The horses are led through the passage from the stable into the slaughter room when they are to be killed.

"How do you kill them?" was asked.

The horse butcher picked up a short handled, heavy hammer and said: "Horses die easy. When I bring them out here I ties a cloth round their heads, so that it blinds them, and they are so quiet you can do anything with them. Then I fasten this rope from the ceiling around the brute's neck, and one heavy blow from the hammer is generally enough. If you would like to come around to-morrow morning I'll show you how I do it. It is bootcherin' day to-morrow and old Dobbin will have to go; that's the gray one you saw in there."

The reporter declined the invitation.

"Makes you kinder sick, I guess," added the butcher.

"Well, I didn't like it myself when I began, though I was used to butcherin' cattle, but horses 'peared so different. You get used to it, though. The worst is when some horse that's done good service gives out, and the people who bring him here feel so bad to give him up. But they say they would rather have the horse killed than sell him, where he may be starved or beaten. Sometimes a woman comes a-crying and makes me give back the horse. Once I had a little bay mare that the surgeon operated on and she got well. You never saw anybody so tickled in your life as the lady and the children were when I told them, and they took her back again. Most of the animals are pretty badly knocked out when they come here. Them stone pavements is killin' on horses. It gives them the 'quitters,' a swellin' around the ankle, and they ain't good for much after that. Now, there's an animal in that wagon out there, in which I'm going to take the meat over for the lions' dinner. You never saw such a shadder as that big horse was when he was fetched in here last spring with a bad hoof. He looked sick and I kept him a month, 'cause I thought he wouldn't be good to feed the animals, though the doctor said he was sound. Then his hoof began to heal and he picked up. Now you can jest see that he limps a little; he's as strong as an elephant and as healthy."

The horse meat was piled into the wagon and the rescued horse proved his good character by the gait which he took in drawing the vehicle through the park to the arsenal. The keepers divided up the joints of the "baker's yellow horse" among the hyenas, the lions and the tigers, who crushed the bones and polished them with gusto. To the eagles chunks of flesh weighing a pound or more were thrown and were quickly dragged away by them in their talons.

"The bones," said the horse butcher, pointing to several barrels, "are saved and go to the bone man. They are pretty well cleaned when he gets 'em. Last month I had a horse that had been a trotter, but I couldn't git any flesh on his bones. He was a tough one and no discount. I dulled my knives cuttin' him up. Them lions chewed on him till their jaws was tired and hung down. Mr. Conklin says to me: 'What kind of meat are you givin' the animals?' I says: 'It's the trotter;' then he didn't say no more."—New York Tribune.

Among the melodious bells of Dewsbury, in Yorkshire, is one called "Black Tom of Sothill," which was presented in expiation of a murder. Its lugubrious sound booms out and breaks upon the midnight silence of a Christmas eve, when its solemn tolling is known as the "devil's knell," signifying that when Christ was born the devil died.—Chambers' Journal.

Chronic Catarrh

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with increased secretion. Thus catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that often its presence is not suspected till it has obtained a firm hold on its victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is exceedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the diseased membrane, and thus soon cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I am happy to state that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GRIMM, 1029 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Hood's Sarsaparilla,

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, Ohio.

Horsford's

BREAD PREPARATION

IF YOU WANT

Delicious Biscuit, Cakes, Etc., that can be eaten hot without detriment,

The acid phosphate in this preparation supplies the vital phosphates essential to the system, and assists digestion. No other baking powder does this.

Dr. H. E. Hill, of Saco, says:

"I consider Hosford's Bread Preparation better than any other that I have ever seen or used in my family, for raising bread, etc."

Dr. H. A. Weymouth, of Saco, says:

"In Hosford's Bread Preparation, we appear to have an article which not only serves to raise bread perfectly, but containing the nutritive phosphates, it restores those properties to the flour which are lost in bolting, thus adding greatly to the nutritive value of the bread produced with it."

Dr. S. Abbott, of Biddeford, says:

"Having examined Horsford's Bread Preparation, I am satisfied that it supplies to the system those elements necessary to health, which are removed in the process of making flour."

Dr. J. H. Keating, of Biddeford, says:

"I can heartily recommend Horsford's Bread Preparation as superior to any baking powder yet brought to my notice."

Dr. J. E. Larocque, of Biddeford, says:

"I have tried Hosford's Bread Preparation, and believe it is one of the best nutritious substances ever introduced. It contains all the elements necessary to sustain and invigorate the brain and system generally. I recommend its use to all."

Dr. Frank Gratton, of Biddeford, says:

"We have used and are greatly pleased with Horsford's Bread Preparation. From the peculiar property it possesses of restoring the phosphates to fine flour, it is preferable to any baking powder that I know of."

Dr. F. P. Virgin, of Rochester, says:

"I believe in the correctness of the principle claimed in the use of Horsford's Bread Preparation, namely the restoring by its use to super-fine wheat flour the phosphates removed in milling. These phosphates are essential constituents of the human body. I have been accustomed to eat bread made by the use of this preparation, and it is very light and palatable."

Dr. J. S. Daniels, of Rochester, says:

"It affords me pleasure to recommend Horsford's Bread Preparation to my patients and the public. The bread is more nutritious and easily digested than when made with ordinary cream of tartar."

Dr. Chas. A. Fairbanks, of Dover, says:

"Upon theoretical grounds I should think Horsford's Bread Preparation an excellent means for the introduction into the system of the phosphates. Excellent scientific authority asserts that the phosphates perform a multifarious part in the process of life."

Dr. Chas. A. Tufts, of Dover, says:

"I have read Dr. Fairbanks' testimonial in regard to Horsford's Bread Preparation. I have used this in my family, and cheerfully endorse what he has written."

Dr. E. E. Holt, of Portland, says;

"I am prepared to accept all the claims of Horsford's Bread Preparation as a decided advance in bread-making, knowing with what care and skill it is prepared, and the high scientific standing of its author."

Dr. Gardner Ludwig, of Portland, says:

"I have used Hosford's Bread Preparation, and have no doubt that it restores the phosphates lost by bolting. I am a dyspeptic, and have not eaten new bread at tea time for a long time, till recently I ate new bread made from this powder, and felt no inconvenience from it."

THE WEMYSS CONCERT.

Though Thanksgiving night is not a good "show night" in this city, the Wemyss Concert Co. were greeted with a good house, and the excellent entertainment afforded was generously acknowled by applause, the performers responding to eight recalls in a programme of thirteen numbers, and declining several others. Miss Fannie P. Hoyt, the violinist, always a favorite and deservedly so, shows steady and rapid improvement in her playing, and merited the persistent encores she received. Miss Nellie S. Thomas, soprano; Mrs. S. Wemyss Bradbury, reader, and her little daughter, Nettie M. Bradbury, are all excellent; Mrs. Wemyss is a superior accompanist; and Mr. Wemyss as a comic vocalist was very amusing, though the selections were hardly in keeping with the high tone of the rest of the performance. On a whole, it is rare that so excellent a concert is heard anywhere outside the larger cities.

AN EVENING OF MIRTH.

A large audience occupied Music hall on Friday evening, and laughed themselves lame-sided over the absurd comicalities of "Turned Up." The fun was indeed "fast and furious" from the opening to the close, and Mr. Nat. C. Goodwin does not have to do the whole of the work himself, every member of the company being a real addition. It is a long while since a Music hall audience made so much noise as the one of Friday evening.

ELECTRIC LIGHT MATTERS.

At the late meeting of the board of mayor and aldermen, a petition for the establishing of an electric light at the head of Commercial wharf was referred to the proper committee, to report. The committee should consider the request in a liberal spirit, and report accordingly. We think the light asked for should be granted,—and it should be an all-night burner, too. A very great amount of business, and heavy work consequent on that business, are carried on upon that wharf during the winter, and an electric light would be of marked advantage not only to the fish packers and teamsters, but to the fishing vessels, many of which have often to make a berth at the wharf long after nightfall. The approach to the wharf from Water street, which has long been in a very bad condition, has been greatly improved by the street commissioner; and the desired light would be a still further improvement to the wharf, and a legitimate one.

Another request in regard to the location of an electric light, which we believe has not yet been made to the city government but will be at the next meeting, and should be granted, is to have the light at the foot of Daniel street removed to the opposite side of the street, and elevated above the lime store on Broughton's wharf so as to light the dock and landing-stage of the navy yard ferry steamer Emerald. As at present located the light illuminates the landing place of the Mystic, but the lime store so shuts out the light from the Emerald, when making her berth, that it is much worse than though no light was there at all. Were the light placed upon or close to Mr. Broughton's building, and raised above it, the docks of both steamers would be lighted, and we understand that Mr. Broughton is entirely willing the change should be made. When the request comes before the board of aldermen it should be referred to the committee on street lights, "with power."

RAILROAD ITEMS.

It is announced that Mr. Winslow T. Perkins, for a long time past the efficient station agent of the Boston & Maine railroad in this city, is to be transferred as agent of the same road to Manchester, the terminus of the Manchester & Lawrence railroad, it being regarded as especially important to have a keen and energetic business man as station agent at that place. Our impression is that Mr. Perkins will fill the bill.

Cornelius Doyle, fifty years old, an employe of the Boston & Maine railroad, was instantly killed in Newburyport last Thursday evening. He leaves a wife and five children.

As a heavily loaded freight train from the eastward was nearing this city shortly before midnight on Thursday night, when at the crossing of Noble's island bridge two cars loaded with piles spread apart, and tore up the bridge for a distance of about fifty feet, smashed the gates and fence, and knocked overboard the gate-keeper's lodge, with the gate keeper, Mr. Willie Yeaton, inside. The stove in the lodge was red-hot when the accident occurred, but no conflagration resulted, the Piscataqua being abundantly able to put out any ordinary fire, if it gets a fair chance at it. Mr. Yeaton crawled out of the wreck, and climbed up one of the piles of the bridge. A large gang of bridge repairers were at once set to work, and the bridge was ready for the passage of the morning trains. One freight car was badly broken up by the mishap.

Some of the papers have appointed W. T. Perkins to be freight and station agent of the Boston & Maine railroad at Manchester. That the Boston & Maine is to have an energetic and able agent at Manchester, to look after its interests, is of course true, but we cannot spare "Winslow." The great number of trains arriving at and leaving our station, especially in the summer season, and the large freight business which the Boston & Maine has at this point, demand just such a man as Mr. Perkins at our station. There may be as good a man for the Manchester office to be found elsewhere; we hope there is, and that he will go to Manchester. But our station never was so busy or its work so well done as at present. We hope to be spared parting with a man of Mr. Perkins' capacity and executive ability.

The union Thanksgiving service in the North church was not largely attended, but those who were there were much interested in the sermon. Rev. W. A. McGinley, pastor of the church, was assisted by Rev. Alfred Gooding of the Unitarian church, and Rev. O. S. Baketel of the Methodist church. Mr. McGinley's sermon was on "The element of justice in government."

Mr. George Ainsley of Boston, who was a passenger on board the schooner Willie Freeman with Mr. A. P. Wendell of this city, and with him was taken from the distressed vessel and landed at Baltimore on the 23d inst., died the next day. He took the voyage for his health.

A masquerade skating party in Franklin hall on the evening of Thanksgiving day was largely attended, there being a floorful of skaters, while the galleries were filled with spectators.

The Portsmouth shoe factory shut down on Wednesday night, Thanksgiving eve, for the rest of the week.

Mr. Patrick Kane of this city is now night operator at the Boston & Maine railroad station.

It is not true that a Portsmouth man desires the office of janitor of the town hall at North Hampton. He tried the thing, but concluded to give it up.

W. I. Trafton has put the electric light in his jewelry store on Congress street.

Turkeys were a scarce article in this city Thanksgiving day, and persons who waited for the morning of that day in order to secure a nice bird at a cheap rate, had to be content with chickens or go without any at all. The supply of turkeys received in Boston, though it seemed very large, was only about one-half of what was rushed into the market in that city last year at the Thanksgiving season. Notwithstanding the very moderate amount of poultry offered, prices (at least in this city) were fully as reasonable as those of a year ago, and the quality of the birds was much superior.

A barn on the Joseph Furnald place at Dover point was burned on the morning of Thanksgiving day, it is thought by an incendiary fire.

There was a case of eviction at the upper part of Market street on Friday. Work being commenced on the repairs of the building to be occupied for the new Seamen's Home, a tenant in the basement refused to vacate the premises, whereupon the workmen proceeded to tear down the brickwork on the outside, and the fireplaces under the chimneys. The circumstances made it too uncomfortable for the tenant to remain.

Robert Golding, a middle aged man employed by the Swamscot Machine Co. of South Newmarket, was found dead on Hilton street in that town on the morning of Nov. 23d, having evidently died from hemorrhage of the lungs. He belonged in Dover.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Lemuel B. Caswell came in from Smuttynose island, Isles of Shoals, this week, to pass Thanksgiving. She reports her husband as being well, and as not having visited the main land for over a year.

Frank W. Rand, and Wm. T. Rand and wife, of Boston, paid a Thanksgiving visit to Mr. Alexander L. Rand and wife of Islington street, the parents of the young men. Others who came home to pass the Thanksgiving season were Edwin R. Pearson of Broad street, from the Institute of Technology; Fred Dennett of Christian Shore, from Massachusetts; Miss Bertha Hodgdon, daughter of his honor the mayor, from Wellesley college; and Harry Hutchinson, Minot J. Beacham, Frank Philbrick, John Kelley, Chester Curds, John Canty, Clifton S. Humphreys and Arthur Locke, from Dartmouth college.

Miss Nellie Rose and Miss Ida Marshall, two young ladies employed in the Portsmouth shoe factory, were each this week presented by their shopmates with a very handsome silver water pitcher, appropriately inscribed, in view of their approaching nuptials.

Mr. Edward Watkins returned from a hunting expedition at Kennebunk on Wednesday of this week. He was quite unsuccessful for the reason that his favorite hunting dog was badly bitten by a big Newfoundlander, and disabled for service.

"While thus engaged on work so fine,
Where skill and patience must combine,
How oft the thought must pain the heart,
That after all your care and art,
The handsome work that charms the eye
Ere long must soiled and ruined lie."

"Oh, no; you make a great mistake,
As no such thought our rest can break;
For should there come a soil or stain,
No ruin follows in their train;
However deep or dark they show,
The IVORY SOAP can make them go,
And all the brilliancy restore
And perfect beauty as before."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Prettiest Feet in the World.

"The Spanish," continued Crispin, "are generally supposed to have the prettiest feet in the world, but I do not think so, although they are certainly the smallest. The foot is very slender and the instep extraordinarily high, a result in a large measure of the constitutional antipathy of the people to walking, as a Spaniard will ride on horseback when he has to beg for a living. The Germans have strong, stocky, well developed feet, inclined to be short, but many of them exceedingly shapely for all that. The French foot is smaller boned and rounder in outline, a graceful, agile foot, not so slender as the Spanish, but longer than the German. It does not lack strength, but is more remarkable for quickness and agility. All the distinguishing qualities of the nation are embodied in its make up. It is no slouch of a foot, I tell you. The Holland foot is very different from either the Teutonic or Gallic. It is longer than either and lower. I have seen little thin Holland women, but four feet high, with feet a foot long, as sure as you live. They have the longest, lowest feet of any nation on the globe except, perhaps, the negro, whose foot exceeds the Holland in length of heel, although it somewhat resembles it in general make up. The Mexican foot is a modification of the Spanish. It is a trifle longer and not quite so classical in outline. The Chinese have a pretty foot, short, small boned and quite shapely."

"How about the American pedal extremity?"

"Ah! that is to a certain extent in formation, not fully crystallized into a type. It is a composite foot, lighter and daintier than the English or Teuton, more nervous and longer than the French, stronger, and more developed than the Spanish, fated to be the finest, most shapely foot of the world, and partaking somewhat of the good qualities of all. Of course, sir, there are individual variations upon all these types, but I would bet all I have got that if I had in a room 100 representatives of the leading nations and could only see their feet I could tell the nationality of each every time.—Globe-Democrat.

The Most Valuable Stamp.

The most valuable stamp in existence is the Baltimore five cent black stamp, which was issued in 1846, each specimen having written upon it the autograph of James M. Buchanan, who was the postmaster of Baltimore at the time. A specimen of this stamp was sold only a few months ago for $400. The next rarest is the celebrated Brattleboro, Vt., stamp, also issued in 1846. It is valued at $250 an impression. Another stamp, not so rare as those last mentioned, but which is often mistaken for a much commoner issue, is that put forth by the United States in 1862. It is a two cent, vermilion, with the head of Washington, and is worth $10 a specimen, while its humbler brother, a stamp differing only in the shade of color, which is a lighter red, is only worth one cent.

The United States has been, without doubt, the most prolific of all countries in the world in the issue of postage stamps, having put forth over 500 different varieties altogether. The number of distinct varieties issued by the various governments throughout the world is variously estimated, but 5,000 would probably cover the whole.—New York Evening Sun.

A Burglar Captured.

This morning about two o'clock, John Wood, the well known plumber who resides on Main street, was awakened by hearing glass break. On getting out of bed he received a blow on the head. He immediately grappled with the burglar, and after a terrible struggle succeeded in holding him until his wife obtained help. On being searched at the station, Mr. Wood's watch and wallet were found on his person. He gave the name of Robert Terry. The broken glass proved to be a bottle of Sulphur Bitters, which had almost cured Mrs. Wood of rheumatism.—Exchange.

How a Dying Child Was Saved!

CICERO, HAMILTON CO., IND., Sept. 19, 1887.—The following is a true account of what your S. S. S. has done for our little daughter, Hazel, now four years old. When 12 months old a lump appeared on her heel, which slowly grew larger. The family physician thought it was caused by a piece of broken glass or needle, but failed to bring anything to light. The child became feeble all the time, and seemed to lose the use of her leg, and finally quit walking entirely. The middle finger and thumb of either hand became enlarged, the flesh becoming hard. The hip joints became involved, so that when seventeen months old she could not stand, having lost the use of leg and arm. Partial curvature of the spine also followed. The nervous system was wrecked, muscles contracted, and there was general wasting of flesh and muscle. At eighteen months of age she was placed under the treatment of a prominent physician of Boston, Mass., but at the end of ten months she had declined to such a degree that she was in a dying condition. This was in April, 1886. We took the child away not knowing what to do. In this dreadful dilemma we were over-persuaded by friends to try "one bottle" of SWIFT'S SPECIFIC, which we did, and before it had all been taken we saw a change for the better in her symptoms. We kept it up, and have done so to this day, and will keep it up, if the Lord wills, for many days to come, for it has brought our dying Hazel to life, to vigor, to strength and health again. The ashen hue of her cheeks has changed to a rosy tint. She is able to walk anywhere, her languor and melancholy have passed away, and she is now a blithe, cheerful, happy romping child. Should you wish to increase your testimonials of proof of the virtue of S. S. S., our names and what we have said is but a portion of what we owe to you, should you wish to use them.

Kindly yours,

AFTER THE SUPPER AND TALK.

After the supper and talk—after the day is done,
As a friend from friends his final withdrawal prolonging,
Goodby and goodby with emotional lips repeating
(So hard for his hand to release those hands—no more will they meet,
No more for communion of sorrow and joy, of old and young,
A far stretching journey awaits him, to return no more),
Shunning, postponing severance—seeking to ward off the last word ever so little,
E'en at the exit door turning—charges superfluous calling back—o'ers as he descends the steps,
Something to eke out a minute additional—shadows of nightfall deepening,
Farewells, messages lessening—dimmer the forthgoer's visage and form,
Soon to be lost for aye in the darkness—loth, O so loth to depart!
Garrulous to the very last.
—Walt Whitman in Lippincott's.

COLD AIR AND COLD WATER.

Dangers of Keeping the Windows of a Bedroom Open During Sleeping Hours.

There are doctors who tell us that we should always sleep with one window partly open, no matter how cold, how damp or how stormy the weather may be. Some fanatics go still further, and insist that all the windows in a bedroom should be open to a considerable extent during sleeping hours.

The answer to this is that we do not keep the window open when we are up and dressed, active, moving about, with a fire in the room, when our bodies are even warmer than when we are in bed. When we go out into the cold or damp we put on additional wraps and protect our heads. When we are in the house every one knows how delightful it is to gather around an open fire, with none of the freezing atmosphere to course in currents down the spine or against the chest, bringing colds, influenzas, coughs and rheumatism. And yet we are bidden by cold-air extremists to sleep not only in a cold room, but to open the window or windows in order to breathe pure air, and thus live to be 100 years old.

Of course every room while it is not occupied should be ventilated as frequently as possible. This being done, quite enough air makes its way through the small apertures between the sashes to maintain a constant renovation. Let any one stand near a closed window in winter time, and he will feel a small but constant current. This current becomes imperceptible when he is away from the window in a warm room, but it is this, in connection with full ventilation at appropriate times, that keeps the air of a room pure enough, other things being equal, to maintain a fair degree of health. Civilized persons cannot enjoy a savage hygiene.

The complacent, but by no means truly scientific cold air teachers have the same extreme ideas about cold water. They tell you that a cold sponge bath in the middle of winter is a perfect preservative against colds, and that if you do nothing more than splash your throat and chest every morning with cold water, you will be saved from tonsilitis, bronchitis, and all affections of the throat and chest. Never was anything more untrue; medical men who teach such things as universal facts, without making a good many exceptions and a good many careful qualifications, are not fit for their profession. These heroic measures, so called, are utterly unsuited to many of us.

By all but those in robust health, the same principles are to be applied to cold water in cold weather. In some cases delicate constitutions may very gradually be made hardier, so as to bear, and even finally to improve by, much cold air, and much cold water. It is the universal and unqualified application that we are denouncing. Doctors who profess to make the weak strong and the sick well by such means are either fanatics or pretenders.—A. E. Lancaster in The Epoch.

The Davy Lamps Not Safe.

It is a shock to all our youthful prejudices, but it is undoubtedly a fact, that the Davy lamp no longer figures among the safety apparatus of our mines. The recent mines regulation act settles that point. An alteration made in the bill when it was before the house of lords left us doubtful whether the Davy lamp had been finally condemned; but Mr. A. H. Stokes, one of the government inspectors, has declared in round terms before the Chesterfield and Midland Counties Institution of Engineers that the lamp is doomed. At the same meeting the faint praise was heard of the lamp that in a mine where only candles had been previously employed it might be used to examine the workings for gas; but, as the royal commission held that the lamp is unsafe in a current with a velocity of six feet per second, Mr. Stokes thinks that it is excluded from mines by the fact that the combined rate of the miners' walk and the ventilation of the mine will constitute at least that rate of speed in the air passing the lamp. He adds his evidence that explosions have been caused and men killed in consequence of the use of the Davy lamp. The discovery is useful, but it is a case of goodby to another illusion.—London News.

So far as known, there are only fourteen Chinese women in New York city. Of these nine are married, one is a widow, one an unmarried girl, one a nurse, and two anonyma. Although residents of the United States, they obey to the very letter the strange system of law and custom which obtains in the Flowery Kingdom, a system which strongly resembles the treatment of the queen bee in an apiary by her drones and workers. Five of these little women celebrated their marriage vows in China, two in San Francisco, and two in New York.—Nelly Bly in Cleveland Leader.

ST. NICHOLAS

For Young Folks.

SINCE its first issue, in 1873, this magazine has maintained, with undisputed recognition, the position it took at the beginning,—that of leading the most excellent juvenile periodical ever printed. The best known names in literature were on its list of contributors from the start,—Bryant, Longfellow, Thomas Hughes, George MacDonald, Bret Harte, Bayard Taylor, Frances Hodgson Burnett, James T. Fields, John G. Whittier; indeed the list is so long that it would be easier to tell the few authors of note who have not contributed to "the world's child magazine."

The Editor, Mary Mapes Dodge,

Author of "Hans Brinker; or, The Silver Skates," and other popular books for young folks,—and for grown-up folks,—too, has a remarkable faculty for knowing and entertaining children. Under her skillful leadership, ST. NICHOLAS brings to thousands of homes on both sides of the water knowledge and delight.

St. Nicholas in England.

It is not alone in America that ST. NICHOLAS has made its great success. The London Times says: "It is above anything we produce in the same line." The Scotsman says: "There is no magazine that can successfully compete with it."

The Coming Year of St. Nicholas.

The fifteenth year begins with the number for November, 1887, and the publishers can announce: Serial and Short Stories by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Frank R. Stockton, H. H. Boyesen, Joel Chandler Harris, J. T. Trowbridge, Col. Richard M. Johnston, Louisa M. Alcott, Professor Alfred Church, William H. Bishop, Washington Gladden, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Amelia E. Barr, Frances Courtenay Baylor, Harriet Upton, and many others. Edmund Alton will write a series of papers on the "Routine of the Republic,"—how the President works at the White House, and how the affairs of the Treasury, the State and War Departments, etc., are conducted; Joseph O'Brien, a well-known Australian journalist, will describe "The Great Inland Continent"; Elizabeth Robins Pennell will tell of "London Christmas Pantomimes" (Alice in Wonderland, etc.); John Burroughs will write "Meadow and Woodland Talks with Young Folks," etc., etc. Mrs. Burnett's short serial will be, the editor says, a worthy successor to her famous "Little Lord Fauntleroy," which appeared in ST. NICHOLAS.

Why not try St. Nicholas this year for the young people in the house? Begin with the November number. Send us $3.00, or subscribe through booksellers and newsdealers. The Century Co. 33 East 17th St. New York.

There was a $20,000 fire in Exchange block, Nashua, Nov. 26th.

An eleven-years-old son of E. D. Blaisdell of Great Falls fired a didn't-know-it-was-loaded gun at his eight-years-old brother, Friday evening, and filled his face, neck and chest full of shot, inflicting probably fatal injuries.

A Chronic Tendency Overcome.

Many persons are troubled with a chronic tendency to constipation. They are of bilious temperament. The complaint to which they are subject, though easily remediable by judicious treatment, is in many cases aggravated by a resort to drastic purgatives and cholagogues. As the human stomach and bowels are lined with a delicate membrane, and not with vulcanite, they cannot stand prolonged drenching with such medicines without serious injury. Nothing restores and counteracts an habitual tendency to constipation so effectually as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Its laxative effect is gentle and progressive. It neither convulses nor weakens the intestines, and its effects are unaccompanied by griping pains. It arouses the liver when the organ is sluggish, promotes digestion, and encourages appetite and sleep. For fever and ague, kidney troubles, nervous complaints and incipient rheumatism, it is incomparable. Take a wineglass before meals and see how soon you will relish them.

The Rome correspondent of the London Chronicle says Mgr. Persico in his report to the pope on his mission declares that Ireland is not ripe for home rule.

After trying all the other plasters, salves, lotions, got relief and cure by using a Hop Plaster.

Among the lost on the steamer W. A Scholten were the wife and eight children of John P. Post of Syracuse, N. Y. Post came over from West Prussia about a year ago, and had saved enough money to pay for the passage of his family.

Ayer's Pills are always ready for use. They are sugar-coated, easy to take, and sure to bring relief and cure. They are effectual in all diseases caused by disorders of the stomach and digestive organs.

The sale of newspapers containing "nude art" sketches was suppressed in Providence, R. I., last week.

A startling truth!—Thousands die annually from neglected coughs and colds, which soon ripen into consumption, or other equally fatal diseases of the lungs; when, by the timely use of a single bottle of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, their lives could have been preserved to a green old age.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt last week said he believed the present British government would take Lord Randolph Churchill's advice, and drop the land-purchase scheme.

If you are nervous or dyspeptic try Carter's Little Nerve Pills. Dyspepsia makes you nervous, and nervousness makes you dyspeptic; either one renders you miserable, and these little pills cures both.

At Ravenna, Ohio, Nov. 23d, "Blinky" Morgan was sentenced to be hanged at Columbus March 15th, 1888. He turned and cracked a joke with his lawyer, and laughed quite heartily.

The marks of premature age may be effectually obliterated by using Buckingham's Dye for the whiskers. It colors uniformly, and always gives satisfaction.

The full bench of the supreme court decides that fox hunts in Massachusetts are a violation of the law for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

My friend, look here! you know how weak and nervous your wife is, and you know that Carter's Iron Pills will relieve her, why not be fair about it and buy her a box?

Tom Scott, a noted burglar who was killed by a policeman at Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 21st, was connected with "Blinky" Morgan and other notorious desperadoes, and there is no doubt that on the night he was shot his intention was to rob the Broadway savings bank of Columbus of $100,000.

The President

Of the Bank of Waverly, Iowa, says: "Sulphur Bitters saved my life. For ten years I suffered from catarrh and liver complaint. I lost forty-five pounds, and was growing worse rapidly. I had lost all faith in medicine; but hearing your bitters so well recommended, I gave them a trial. Six bottles cured me."—Smith P. Hunt, Waverly, Iowa.

Two Russian steamers, the Sieus and Vesta, collided off the Crimean coast last week, and the Vesta sunk, with thirty-five of her crew.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any simular application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

The Dover Election.

Mr. Foster of the Dover Democrat, whose oracular utterances have so often given zest to the otherwise placid democratic journalism of the state, somewhat candidly accounts for the defeat of the democracy and the triumph of the republicans at the recent municipal election in Dover. Mr. Foster is a master of plain anglo-saxon language. He is positive, and always aims at the point he wishes to hit. He asserts emphatically, that the cause of the defeat is the disgust of the democracy at the manner in which the Cleveland administration has handled the government patronage at Dover.

Not that he, Foster, wanted any pie. Perish the thought that this noble war horse could be curbed by a Cleveland bit in his mouth. No. He wants nothing for himself, but he did hope and struggle for something for the working democrats of the Dover sebastopol, ward five. Not that they could all be clerks in the post-office, but that some might be appointed carriers. The patronage at Dover has gone wrong. Foster admits it. Hence the rebuke. The only substantial way in which the indignant democracy could serve a notice upon Mr. Cleveland was to kick at the municipal election, and let the democratic candidate be snowed in under a majority of 550 votes.

This lesson would be, in itself, a feeble rebuke unless supplemented with its moral written in the terse and candid style of our gruesome neighbor. There is an assertion that the selection of postmaster was unfortunate. That it was made without consulting the democratic voters, etc. There are some things yet to be accomplished by our amiable and patriotic esteemed friend of the Democrat. He should learn the ways in which his party is worked. The men who pay the bills, who stand the assessments and subscribe liberally to the democratic campaign funds, are those who are recognized by the national administration. The time-honored democrats whose autographs once were needed as evidence of the fitness or orthodoxy of a candidate, have outlived their usefulness. It is managed differently in these days. The Dover democrats when needed in a state election will be on hand, and stand up to the rack, fodder or no fodder. This is an off time. It was of no especial object to make a fight for a few municipal offices, but when the next congressional election occurs, the alleged malcontents will be on hand, and foremost among them, bearing aloft the ticket for congressman or governor which the leaders of the party will designate without previously "consulting the democracy of Dover," will be seen our gallant friend of Foster's Democrat, forgetting all things that are behind and pressing forward to make the calling and election of the democratic candidate sure.

Hanlan Again Defeated.

At Sydney, N. S. W., Nov. 26th, Edward Hanlan, the famous oarsman, was for the third time defeated by William Beach, champion oarsman of Australia and of the world. Hanlan was defeated by two lengths in a race of three miles.

Rev. Dr. C. A. Bartol of Boston, in his Thanksgiving sermon, pointedly referred to the inconsistencies of President Cleveland in prohibiting his subordinate office-holders from taking active part in politics, and then entering into the contests himself. But the president has bravely recovered from the effects of his early civil service notions. The republicans enjoy seeing the mugwumps so egregiously humbugged, while the democrats are equally satisfied to be released from the fussy interference of their late allies, who without serving an apprenticeship in the party seek to guide and govern its destinies. The mugwump may be regarded as a political orphan.

Courting the Newsboys.

The newsboy bids fair to become one of the most pampered members of society. Newspaper publishers are beginning to appreciate the value of his influence in building up circulations, and are therefore making much of him. All the newsboys in New York were recently given a theatre party by a publisher who wished to gain their good will, an entire theatre being necessary to hold the guests. Not long ago another publisher gave the boys a picnic in the country, and the territory surrounding the scene of their festivities still looks as though it had been devastated by an invading army. A Detroit publisher carried his enterprise so far as to bring on a ball nine of newsboys from Chicago to play a "championship" game with a nine of Detroit boys. He provided a special sleeping car for the Chicago boys, boarded them at the best hotel, and gave each newsboy in Detroit a certain number of tickets to the game, to be sold for his (the boy's) individual benefit. If the competition among the newspaper publishers continues, we may expect to see free excursions to Europe provided for newsboys, and find them selling their papers from coupes and indulging in such other luxuries as may suggest themselves to the minds of enterprising managers anxious to secure their good will. While the notion on the part of those who provide these benefits for the boys are not altogether philanthropic, the public at large is doubtless quite willing to see the generosity carried to any extent, believing that the life of the newsboy is none too crowded with enjoyment. Hardship is his daily portion, and an occasional spree of a rational sort may be the means of spurring his ambition with the desire to reach a plane of life where enjoyment is more frequent.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Devil Fish in Plenty.

There are a good many devil fish in the bay, and every few days some of the fishermen bring in one or more of them. Emanuel Thomas, the fisherman, says he he has caught a great many devil fish this season.

"The biggest devil fish, or octopus, as some call it, that I have caught in this bay," said Mr. Thomas recently, "was, when its arms were stretched out, fourteen feet across—that is, its arms were seven feet long. Then I have caught a good many smaller ones on my lines. They are very ugly things to handle, and when I take them out of the water I am not, for a moment even, careless how I handle them. They have a mouth just like a parrot. It is located just under the sack or body. The long arms are covered on the under side with valve suckers, which exert extraordinary power. When they get hold of anything it is a rare instance when they are not victorious. They are cunning, too, for when they fasten their arms around a man they work their arms so as to get the points into his nostrils. If they do he is a goner. They can crush the life out of a man or an animal in a moment. When they are attacked they throw out a black secretion which clouds the water, confuses their antagonist and enables them to escape. They are very hardy. They will live for three or four days after being taken out of the water. I am going to try and take the next big one I catch to the east. They can be transported without much trouble."—Seattle (W. T.) Post.

Lumber for Railroads.

To construct new railroads in the United States and repair old ones, according to the estimate of the forestry division of the agricultural department, a total of 305,712,258 cubic feet of lumber is used annually. This is equivalent to over 500,000,000 feet of round timber.—Chicago Herald.

"Did n't Know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness, indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reëstablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go th ough the summer."

Catarrh in the Head

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with increased secretion. Thus catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that often its presence is not suspected till it has obtained a firm hold on its victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is exceedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the diseased membrane, and thus soon cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I am happy to state that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GINN, 1029 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, Ohio.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Andrew P. Wendell arrived home on Saturday evening by the nine o'clock train from Boston, after an absence of several months, and a decidedly unpleasant experience in the line of being wrecked at sea.

The Army and Navy Register announces the engagement of Miss Ida Mintonye, youngest daughter of Naval Constructor William L. Mintonye, attached to the Portsmouth navy yard, to Lieut. David Peacock, U. S. N.

Waterman K. Pryor and wife, of South Boston, passed Thanksgiving day in this city with their son, Frank L. Pryor; William L. Sabine of Boston visited his mother, Mrs. Thomas Lewis, of State street; others who spent the day with relatives in this city were Charles Tredick of Philadelphia, C. Morris Tredick of Malden, Mass., and Miss Emma Hilton, Charles P. Brown and Joseph H. Cunningham, of Boston.

The Boston Herald of last Saturday says: "Mrs. Cedric Laighton of Appledore, N. H., has been in town for the past week on a visit to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Celia Thaxter. Mr. and Mrs. Laighton will occupy their new residence in Portsmouth for the winter. A number of new cottages are being erected by New York and Washington people upon Appledore island, and there is every indication that the next season at the Isles of Shoals will be a most brilliant one."

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

Capt. William R. Brown, U. S. M. C., is detached from the marine barracks at the Portsmouth navy yard, and ordered to report for duty to the commandant of the marine barracks at Norfolk, Va. Second Lieut. C. A. Doyen is ordered from the marine barracks at the Norfolk navy yard to the marine barracks at the Portsmouth yard.

The Boston Journal of Saturday evening says: "The sales of old materials at the Charlestown navy yard, which have accumulated since 1865, by Mr. Jerome S. McDonald, the government auctioneer, aggregated about $150,000, which was nearly double the amount that was anticipated by competent men who examined the property."

Rev. W. A. McGinley preached in the Methodist church yesterday morning on exchange with Rev. G. S. Baketel, who occupied the pulpit of the North church. Rev. Mr. Weeks of Plaistow preached in the Middle street Baptist church, on exchange with Rev. Dr. Alden, who preached in Plaistow. The services at Christ church commenced at 7:30 o'clock P. M., instead of at five o'clock as during the summer and autumn.

Rev. Henry D. Moore, formerly pastor of the Congregational church in this city, and since for many years a conspicuous figure in Masonic circles in Ohio, has recently been on trial at Cincinnati before the local Scottish Rite body on a charge of having violated the vow of secrecy which he took upon entering the order. He tendered his resignation from the Scottish Rite in 1886, but it has never been accepted; but he claims that he is not a member of that organization, and consequently that body has no right to try him. He is a prominent member of the "Corneau" Masons, a branch tabooed by the regular Masons, and his friends claim that the only object of the trial is to persecute him. Mr. Moore is editor of the Masonic Review, published at Cincinnati. The editor of the Illinois State Journal, published at Springfield, Mass., in referring to Mr. Moore's case says: "Rev. Henry D. Moore was, some twelve years ago, pastor of the Congregational church in this city, and while a man of considerable ability, was regarded as eccentric in character and illy balanced."

The machinery for the new system of electric lights has arrived, and will be placed in position immediately; the incandescent lights of the new system are already nearly all in, and it is expected to have it in operation throughout the city, street lights and all, before the expiration of the present week.

Fog thick enough to slice up and send through the post-office in a letter prevailed from Friday afternoon through Saturdad night and Sunday, and the Whale's-back foghorn was sounded continuously all the time.

Mr. Henry Joy of this city, who has for some time been messenger for the American Express Co. between this city and Boston, has been transferred to the western division of the Boston & Maine railroad, between Great Falls and Boston; and Mr. George H. Hutchinson has been appointed to Mr. Joy's former place on the eastern division.

Coal freights showed a sharp advance last week, charters being announced from Hoboken to Salem at $1.70 per ton and discharged, from Perth Amboy to Lynn at $1.65, from Baltimore to Boston at $1.85 and $2.00, from Philadelphia to Boston at $1.45 and $1.60 and discharged, from Norfolk to Boston at $1.85 and discharged, from Newport News to Boston at $1.65 and discharged, from Amboy to Boston at $1.30 and discharged, from Perth Amboy to Boston at $1.50.

Lotta will appear in Music hall on Thursday evening, Dec. 1st, in "Pawn Ticket No. 210," a new piece in which she has continued the success of years on the American stage; she has no superior in her especial line; tickets at Goodrich's, on and after Tuesday.

At Music hall, next Saturday evening, the noted Wallack's theatre success "Victor Durand" will be presented by James F. Clossen's company, which has the exclusive right to perform it outside of New York city. This is the fifth year the company has been playing the piece, but it has never been presented here. Tickets on sale at Goodrich's, Thursday, Dec. 1st.

Ullie Akerstrom, who is to play an engagement at Music hall later in the season, was playing last week in Newcastle, Pa., to big houses.

Mr. John Carty, solo trombone player in the old Naval band, has joined the Music hall orchestra, and played in it for the first time on Friday evening of last week. He is a decided aqusition to that excellent musical organization.

A large number of our best citizens will remember the admirable entertainment given at Miss Morgan's school a few months ago by Mr. Hannibal Williams of New York, in the reading of Julius Cæsar. He will read Othello in the chapel of the North church, on the evening of December 1st; he will also read something in comedy at the conclusion. Tickets are for sale at Montgomery's art store. The chapel will seat about 250 persons, and we hope all interested in an entertainment of the first class will secure their seats at once. The entertainment will be given under the auspices of the Young People's Association of the North church.

Hon. Frank Jones was in Belfast, Me., last week, looking after the new water works in that city of which he is the financial backer. It will be remembered that a recent freshet in that region carried away the Water Co.'s dam, inflicting a loss of some $15,000. Belfast is one of the most beautiful seaside towns in New England or out of it, and it is destined to be a most famous summer resort in the near future. Mr. Jones' farsightedness and wealth enables him to seize the golden opportunities all along the Maine coast, and he is not slow to do it. While he is adding to his untold wealth, he is aiding in developing Maine's untold resources.—Penny Post.

The following are among the recent transfers of real estate in York county, as left for record in the office of the register of deeds: Kittery—Joseph Langton to E. C. Spinney, real estate for $1; Wallace S. Jackson to Samuel A. Jackson, real estate for $100; Adeline Chambers to York Harbor & Beach railroad, real estate for $20. Eliot—Will H. Hanscom to William H. Morgridge, real estate for $350; Giles C. Fernald (by admx.) of Salem, Mass., to Augustus Hanscom of Eliot, real estate in Eliot for $750; William H. Rhodes to Eli W. Rowe, real estate for $500. York—Percis Hutchins of Ogunquit to J. Ervin Hutchins of the same place, real estate in York for $4; Armenious H. Bowden of York to J. Edward Everett of Laconia, N. H., real estate in York for $1; Charles A. Grant of York to Washington Anderton of Dover, N. H., real estate in York for $1; Sarah K. Evans of York to John H. Twombly of Newmarket, N. H., real estate in York for $1; William D. Goodwin to Herbert W. Trafton, real estate for $175; Ellen N. Ellis to Edgar M. Freeman, real estate for $225; John E. Sawtelle of York to Wm. D. Jones of Cincinnati, Ohio, real estate in York for $200; Ellen N. Ellis of York to Sarah F. Rogers of Boston, real estate in York for $1; Ellen N. Ellis to Daisy B. Rogers of Boston, real estate in York for $1. Wells—Mary J. Wakefield of Kennebunk to Caroline S. Moulton of York, land and buildings in Wells for $800; Charles H. Clark of Kennebunk to William L. Littlefield of the same place, woodland in Wells for $180. South Berwick—Matilda Burwick to Newichawanick Co., brick grist mill for $1; Fred T. Nealy of South Berwick to Winthrop N. Dow of Exeter, N. H., real estate in South Berwick for $3,300; Mary Ann Bell to John P. Bell, real estate for $20; James M. Bennett of South Berwick to James H. McIntire of York, land and buildings in South Berwick for $2400; Frederick W. Bartlett of Fitchburg, Mass., to Coleman J. Tyler of South Berwick, land and buildings in South Berwick for $300.

Joseph F. Firth of Sanford attempted suicide Monday night, Nov. 21st, with a revolver. Being a poor marksman he only succeeded in shooting the end off the middle finger off his left hand. The cause was family trouble.

The Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York during the week ending Nov. 18th paid death claims amounting to $84,292.26, and endowments amounting to $15,841.13.

The store of John & Daniel Huckins at Strafford was entered on Wednesday night of last week by burglars, and the safe blown open, but unfortunately for the burglars there was no money in the safe. The store was entered probably by false keys, as the door was locked next morning. A back door was unbolted and left so, probably so the thieves could escape in case they were detected. It is not known that any goods were taken. This is the second time this store has been burglarized within three months.

W. W. Allen, principal of the Rochester high school, and Miss Anna S. Littlefield, teacher of elocution in that school, were married on Thanksgiving day.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical assistance, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years, and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning, she had no peace. She used all the best known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken it all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES to my best ability.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches.—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic form, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and an IMPROVED INHALER; price, $1.

DR. LUDWIG WOLF'S EXPLORATIONS.

Cannibalistic Warriors of Africa—A Village of Dwarfs—Wife Selling.

We little dreamed a few years ago that the Congo had such magnificent tributaries as have been discovered within a few years. Dr. Ludwig Wolf, the eminent African explorer, found that for a long distance the Sankuru is about three miles wide, with an average depth of nine feet. For 300 miles up the river Dr. Wolf met a great many canoes. Many of them were of enormous size, twice the length of his little steamer, and they easily accommodated eighty rowers. It was a picturesque sight to see these great canoes with their force of rowers all standing up and plying their paddles so effectively that they could far outstrip the steamer in speed. Of course, the white man and his puffing steamboat created immense excitement and astonishment, but very little fear was manifested. Some of the natives were inclined to be hostile, and one powerful tribe, the Bassongo Mino, confessed themselves to be cannibals. The colored cloths and trinkets displayed by the traveler excited their astonishment and envy, and, as Dr. Wolf declined to give all his pretty things away, they decided to take them without asking permission.

One morning some of these warriors were overheard talking the matter over. They said it would be very easy to kill the white man and his small party, chop them up for food, and seize the steamer and all the beautiful things it contained. One of Dr. Wolf's helpers, a large, fleshy man, excited their particular admiration, and they regarded him much as a farmer does a prize porker. As a preliminary to their scheme of serious hostility, they began to pick quarrels with the explorer's men. Their chief, Tongolata, became very insolent, and told Dr. Wolf he had him quite at his mercy. The explorer and his little force showed their guns to the natives, who merely laughed. They thought the guns as harmless as so many cudgels cut from a thicket, and in their ignorance did not regard them as weapons at all.

Dr. Wolf was now able to do what many another explorer has done when hostile savages, counting the little band of strangers whom they believed they had wholly in their power, have decided to destroy them. He simply paralyzed the natives by giving them a little idea of the mysterious properties of the shooting irons. While he was standing by the side of the saucy chief trying to placate that important savage, the explorer suddenly drew his revolver, held it close to the chief's ear, and discharged it. The effect was magical. The chief shivered from head to foot with fear. He had never had such a tingling in his ears before, and he took hold of them to see if they were still there. The big crowd of yelling, insolent natives were struck dumb with astonishment and horror. It required the explosion of only one cartridge to convince the savages that these visitors were very superior beings who must be treated with due courtesy and respect. The politic chief at once pretended to be the explorer's most excellent friend, sent him a present of two chickens, and allowed him to go on his way unmolested.

One day when Dr. Wolf was tramping through a forest he suddenly came to a grassy opening and saw before him a large village of the Batua dwarfs, whom Stanley heard of when he first descended the Congo, though he did not see them. These curious little creatures, who are spread over a large extent of country south of the Congo, are very similar to the Akka dwarfs whom Schweinfurth discovered north of that river. They are timid little folks, and they would doubtless have run away if they had seen Dr. Wolf before he suddenly appeared among them. He found them living in mean looking grass huts. Around their village were many carefully covered pitfalls, nine to twelve feet deep, which they had dug for the purpose of catching any elephants, buffaloes and wild boars that might venture out of the forest to feed in the grassy glade where the dwarfs lived.

At first the dwarfs, quaking with fear, gazed on the white man from a distance, but finally they became quite friendly. They are a little over four feet high, are coffee brown in color, and are well shaped. They make no attempt to cultivate the soil, but live solely by hunting, with their bows and arrows and spears. They dry a good deal of meat, which they sell among the neighboring tribes for Indian corn, manioc, and other vegetable products. Lukengo, the king of one large tribe, keeps quite a number of Batua in his service, and it is their business to provide game and palm wine for the king's table. Dr. Wolf says they are exceedingly skillful in the management of their bows, arrows and spears.

The Baluba, whom Wolf and Wissmann found about 150 miles south of the junction of the Kassai and Sankuru rivers, are among the gentlest and most intelligent people who have been found in Africa. Tvey have, however, one exceedingly bad practice. Dr. Wolf says that they have become very fond of guns since trading tribes who live nearer the white men have introduced these weapons among them, and they will sell their daughters and even their wives to procure guns and ammunition. These people have many excellent proverbs and maxims, such as these: "Law is better than force," and "Life is better than wealth." They are regarded as being, in most respects, peculiarly amenable to civilizing influences. For all that, they support one of the greatest native slave markets in Africa, and Dr. Wolf says it will take a long time and strong civilizing influences before their devotion to the slave trade will cease. When Dr. Wolf told one Baluba chief that it was very wrong to sell his wives, the chief took him apart and explained to him in confidence that the Baluba never sold good wives, but only troublesome women, whom they couldn't get along with.—New York Sun.

ST. NICHOLAS

For Young Folks.

SINCE its first issue, in 1873, this magazine has maintained, with undisputed recognition, the position it took at the beginning,—that of being the most excellent juvenile periodical ever printed. The best known names in literature were on its list of contributors from the start,—Bryant, Longfellow, Thomas Hughes, George MacDonald, Bret Harte, Bayard Taylor, Frances H. Gordon Burnett, James T. Fields, John G. Whittier; indeed the list is so long that it would be easier to tell the few authors of note who have not contributed to "the world's child magazine."

The Editor, Mary Mapes Dodge,

Author of "Hans Brinker; or, The Silver Skates," and other popular books for young folks,—and for grown-up folks,—too, has a remarkable faculty for knowing and entertaining children. Under her skillful leadership, ST. NICHOLAS brings to thousands of homes on both sides of the water knowledge and delight.

St. Nicholas in England.

It is not alone in America that ST. NICHOLAS has made its great success. The London Times says: "It is above anything we produce in the same line." The Scotsman says: "There is no magazine that can successfully compete with it."

The Coming Year of St. Nicholas.

The fifteenth year begins with the number for November, 1887, and the publishers can announce: Serial and Short Stories by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Frank R. Stockton, H. H. Boyesen, Joel Chandler Harris, J. T. Trowbridge, Col. Richard M. Johnston, Louisa M. Alcott, Professor Alfred Church, William H. Rideing, Washington Gladden, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Amelia E. Barr, Frances Courtenay Baylor, Harriet Upton, and many others. Edmund Alton will write a series of papers on the "Routine of the Republic,"—how the President works at the White House, and how the affairs of the Treasury, the State and War Departments, etc., are conducted; Joseph O'Brien, a well-known Australian journalist, will describe "The Great Island Continent"; Elizabeth Robins Pennell will tell of "London Christmas Pantomimes" (Alice in Wonderland, etc.); John Burroughs will write "Meadow and Woodland Talks with Young Folk," etc., etc. Mrs. Burnett's short serial will be, the editor says, a worthy successor to her famous "Little Lord Fauntleroy," which appeared in ST. NICHOLAS.

Why not try St. Nicholas this year for the young people in the house? Begin with the November number. Send us $3.00, or subscribe through booksellers and newsdealers. The Century Co. 33 East 17th St. New-York.

A Chronic Tendency Overcome.

Many persons are troubled with a chronic tendency to constipation. They are of bilious temperament. The complaint to which they are subject, though easily remediable by judicious treatment, is in many cases aggravated by a resort to drastic purgatives and cholagogues. As the human stomach and bowels are lined with a delicate membrane, and not with vulcanite, they cannot stand protonged drenching with such medicines without serious injury. Nothing restores and counteracts an habitual tendency to constipation so effectually as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Its laxative effect is gentle and progressive. It neither convulses nor weakens the intestines, and its effects are unaccompanied by griping pains. It arouses the liver when the organ is sluggish, promotes digestion, and encourages appetite and sleep. For fever and ague, kidney troubles, nervous complaints and incipient rheumatism, it is incomparable. Take a wineglass before meals and see how soon you will relish them.

Lord Dalhousie died in France last week, of blood poisoning, about twelve hours after the death of his wife at the same place.

After trying all the other plasters, salves, lotions, got relief and cure by using a Hop Plaster.

A suit of about thirty years' standing has been decided against the customs authorities of New York.

Ayer's Pills are always ready for use. They are sugar-coated, easy to take, and sure to bring relief and cure. They are effectual in all diseases caused by disorders of the stomach and digestive organs.

The victim of a practical joke with electricity in a Brooklyn theatre sues Hyde & Behman for $25,000 damages.

A startling truth!—Thousands die annually from neglected coughs and colds, which soon ripen into consumption, or other equally fatal diseases of the lungs; when, by the timely use of a single bottle of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, their lives could have been preserved to a green old age.

It was voted by the national grange that the treasury surplus should be used in payment of the national debt.

If you are nervous or dyspeptic try Carter's Little Nerve Pills. Dyspepsia makes you nervous, and nervousness makes you dyspeptic; either one renders you miserable, and these little pills cures both.

The marks of premature age may be effectually obliterated by using Buckingham's Dye for the whiskers. It colors uniformly, and always gives satisfaction.

John A. Brurmer, an American citizen, arrested in Germany for evading military service, has been released from custody.

My friend, look here! you know how weak and nervous your wife is, and you know that Carter's Iron Pills will relieve her, why not be fair about it and buy her a box?

The coroner's jury at Dover, England, rendered a verdict to the effect that the collision between the steamers W. A. Scholten and the Rosa Mary was due to an error of judgement on the part of the Scholten's officers in trying to cross the bow of the Rosa Mary, which was anchored, without making allowance for the strong tide that was running, and that the conduct of the officers of the Ebro, the rescuing steamer, was worthy of great praise.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any simular application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

An unknown man was found drowned in Andover, this state, Nov. 20th. He was neatly dressed, and was not a tramp; but his identity has not been discovered.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

Tyranny of the Worst Kind.

A New York grand jury has indicted the members of a committee of the Knights of Labor who for four months past have been engaged in a conspiracy against one O. M. Hartt, because he, being the foreman in a shoe factory in New York city, and detecting theft in some of the employes thereof, dismissed them from service. Hartt simply did his duty; and for doing it the Knights of Labor demanded that he be dismissed by his employer, and the cowardly employer yielded to their demand. He then sought and obtained employment in Philadelphia, and on a similar demand was there discharged. The same process against him, with a similar result, was renewed in Baltimore. Recently he made a contract with an employer in Newburgh, N. Y., and the employer, intimidated by the same influence, was led to break his contract with him.

If the evidence at the trial should prove the facts to be as represented, the perpetrators of the outrages against free labor should be visited with the full penalty of the law, which in New York is a fine of five hundred dollars and one year in the penitentiary. Walking delegates and boycotters seem not yet to have learned that they cannot, simply because they belong to a labor organization, outrage the rights of American citizens with impunity. The case above recited is one of peculiar malignity, and it is therefore fitting that it should be a case for exemplary sentence.

"The Bridal of Triermain," by Sir Walter Scott; with fourteen full-page illustrations by Percy Macquoid. Boston: Lee & Shepard, publishers. Sold in Portsmouth by M. Goodrich.

With its heavy and artistically ornamented covers, choice paper and typography, and exquisite illustrations, Sir Walter Scott's poem "The Bridal of Triermain," as illustrated by Percy Macquoid and published by Lee & Shepard, is one of the most beautiful gift books of the year.

The poem is familiar to all lovers of Scott, and is one of his most imaginative and fascinating. The legend is well remembered, of how Sir Roland de Vaux heard in his dreams "that harp with the dying fall," and summoning his merry men, asked:

"What time or where
Did she pass, that maid
With the heavenly brow,
With her look so sweet and her eyes so fair,
And her graceful step and her angel air,
And the eagle plume in her dark-brown hair,
That passed from my bower ere now?"

Being informed by his attendants that no one had entered his room while he slept, he then sends Henry, his page, to ride to Lyulph's tower to question the sage as to where can be found the maiden.

"Sign and signal well doth he know
And can hide of woal or woe
Of kingdom's fall, and fate of wars
From mystic dream and course of stars.
. . . . . .
For by the blessed Lord I swear
If that fair form breathe vital air
No other maiden by my side
Shall ever rest De Vaux's bride."

The poem is one rich in idyllic power and in imagery, and offers pictoral opportunities of which the artist has made good use. The illustrations are exceptionally true in reflecting the poet's idea of the passages they illustrate. The frontispiece is from the lines:

"What time or where
Did she pass, that maid
With her heavenly brow?"

One of especial beauty is that which carries out the thought of the lines:

"Her sandalled feet, her ankles bare,
And the eagle plume that deaked her hair."

Those who have before been charmed with the poem, will enjoy its beauties with fresh zest in its lovely new dress.

Lee & Shepard have just issued "Medley Dialect Recitations," a selection of about seventy-five pieces in prose and verse, in German, French and Scotch dialects, selected by George M. Baker, with especial reference to their fitness for recitation. Also "Negro Dialect Recitations," "Irish Dialect Recitations," "Yankee Dialect Recitations," and the "Grand Army Speaker," the character of which are indicated by their titles. Mr. Baker is well known as one of the most successful authors of works of value to reading clubs, debaters and speakers, and a judicious compiler of selections for their use; and the books named are such as will maintain this reputation. The Grand Army Speaker comprises many patriotic pieces of especial merit, quite a number of which are not common in any book of selections that we have seen; it will be an especial favorite with "camp-fire" speakers and readers, we think. For sale in this city by M. Goodrich; in paper covers, price thirty cents each. Mr. Goodrich also has for sale No. 18 of the Baker's Reading Club, a selection of fifty pieces in verse and prose, suitable for readings and recitations; price fifteen cents.

The treasurer of the New Hampshire Odd Fellows' home, Henry A. Farrington, of Manchester, received a check in the sum of $500 from Hon. Frank Jones on Saturday, and deposited the same in one of the banks of that city.

The sacred white elephant, and the rhinoceros which attracted so much attention when Barnum's circus was last here, were among the animals which perished through the recent fire at Barnum's winter quarters at Bridgeport, Conn. The rhinoceros was rescued alive, but his coat-of-mail hide was not able to save him from being badly burned, and he died Nov. 25th. The big lion which used to ride unchained and unattended on top of a cage in the procession, was got out of the fire, but was shot soon after while helping himself to a hearty breakfast off Mrs. Gilligan's cow, which he had killed for the purpose.

It is reported that Melville Staples, son of Mr. W. A. Staples of Eliot, was very badly hurt on the night of Thanksgiving day, while crossing Portsmouth bridge, by falling in such a manner that a large knife was driven into his abdomen.

Newichawanick Assembly, Knights of Labor, of South Berwick, is one of the things that were. When the feeling in labor matters was at white heat, Newichawanick Assembly was organized, and gained a membership of about 400. They hired the hall over the post-office in that town, and fitted it up at a great expense. For some time a lively interest was taken in the order, and members turned out in large numbers to attend the meetings. During the past year there has been a marked change in the condition of affairs. Meetings have been poorly attended, and the dollars have not poured into the treasury as they did at first, and as the managers fondly hoped would always be the case. The result of all this is that the assembly has gone to pieces, its charter has been thrown up, and its furniture and other effects sold.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

PERSONAL.

Mrs. J. H. Hubbard, of Cambridge, is visiting friends in this city for a few days.

Mr. George R. Raitt, who has been running on a steamer between New York and Cuba during the summer, as one of her officers, arrived home in this city on Saturday, the line having been sold.

A despatch received in this city on Monday from Havre, France, announced the arrival that day of the steamer La-Bourgogne from New York, and that Mrs. John L. Pickering of this city and her brother, J. Horace Jenness, who were passengers, were in good health.

HOME AGAIN.

Col. Wm. H. Sise last week received from Halifax, N. S., one of the old "penny tokens," or advertising coins, which were once so common, but were driven from circulation twenty or thirty years ago by the refusal of the government to longer accept them as coin. This token came into the possession of the gentleman who sent it to Col. Sise, in a somewhat peculiar manner. Mr. Charles F. Sise, who as assistant superintendent of telephone business in Canada has his office in Montreal, was attending divine service at St. John's church in that city on a recent Sunday, when a friend who was taking up the collection noticed an odd-looking coin in the plate, and after the service handed it to Mr. Sise. It was a "token" issued by E. F. Sise & Co. in 1837, and though from its battered and worn appearance it seems probable that it has been in circulation ever since that date, the lettering is still quite legible. If this bit of copper could give the history of its wanderings and adventures since it was first started out in this city over half a century ago, the story would no doubt be an interesting one.

FIRE AND BURGLARY.

Early on Monday morning the store of Jonathan Rollins at North Hampton was discovered to be on fire, and with its contents was entirely destroyed. Mr. Rollins had in store an unusually large stock of miscellaneous goods, and his loss is heavy. The post-office was located in the store, and all the fixtures and furniture were burned. The store was very near the line of the Boston & Maine railroad, and two box cars standing on a side track were reduced to heaps of old iron. The cars were filled with freight, which was also destroyed. Loss about $10,000; partial insurance.

After the fire, it was discovered that the store of S. A. Dow, situated near Mr. Rollins', had been broken into sometime during the night, which gives color to the suspicion that the fire was caused by burglars who had broken into Mr. Rollins' store, perhaps in an endeavor to burst open the safe.

DEATH OF RICHARD FITZGERALD.

Mr. Richard Fitzgerald, an old and well known citizen of Portsmouth, died at his home on Water street Sunday night, from the effects of a fall a day or two previous. Mr. Fitzgerald was a veteran of the late war, having served his country faithfully in Capt. George W. Towle's company. He was the father of six sons and two daughters. Three of the sons are dead; the other three now reside in Florida, and are engaged in a prosperous steamboat line on the St. John's river. One daughter is the wife of Robert B. Adams, formerly agent of the Kearsarge mills in this city, and the other is, we understand, wife of the captain of one of the steamers running on the St. John's river.

LOTTA AT MUSIC HALL.

The Boston Advertiser, speaking of "Pawn Ticket No. 210," in which Lotta is to appear in Music hall on Thursday evening, Dec. 1st, says:

Lotta is her old fantastic, delicious self, full of impossible suddenness, of inconceivable crooks and turns, of impossible lightning-swift gymnastics; now as dry as a last year's cornco6, and then surprising the whole sense of humor with some irresistible touch of truth in action, or look or intonation, perhaps extravagant, but made with immense native drollery. In her singing, it is to be said that Lotta's voice is still weak but sweet. Her dancing is now, as always, a perfect delight to the eyes, and the spirit and sense of rhythm.

Tickets at Goodrich's; now on sale.

MARITIME NOTES.

The steam collier Allentown, Swasey master, arrived at this port from Philadelphia with 1666 tons of coal to J. Albert Walker on Monday.

A black spar buoy has been placed in four fathoms of water about 700 yards north of West Chop (Vineyard Haven) lighthouse, to guide vessels clear of the rocky patch upon which the steamer Alleghany struck a short time ago, when according to the charts she should have been in good water.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

The Boston & Maine railroad has notified all the heavy shippers of freight in Nashua that hereafter it will all be sent by the way of Lowell, and not by way of Ayer Junction as formerly.

The new lobby built at the Noble's island bridge to take the place of the one last week knocked overboard and smashed by piles on a passing freight train, has been completed, and furnishes very comfortable winter quarters for the employes of the railroad there.

The directors of the Boston & Maine railroad have awarded premiums to station agents on their lines for carefully kept grounds and handsome floral displays. The station agent at Kennebunk gets one of the first prizes, $50; and Edward A. Ferguson, at the engine-house in this city, a third prize, $20.

Prohibition was defeated in Atlanta, Ga., city and county, last week. Atlanta is the home of Rev. Sam Small, who lectured in Music hall on Tuesday evening of last week. Last year the prohibitionists carried the election there.

Cold weather was reported on Monday at the west—ten below zero at St. Paul, fourteen below at Huron, Dakota, twenty-two below at St. Vincent, Minn., twenty below at Fort Buford. Old Probs cheered us with predictions of "rain or snow, followed by decidedly colder, fair weather, with a cold wave," for Tuesday.

The coal recently piled up on Jones' wharf at the north end has been removed to the coal shed at the brewery. If the price of coal keeps advancing, it will be well for anybody having a bucketful or two to stow it in the parlor cupboard and lock it up, or make a special deposit of it in the bank.

Mr. Albert Rowe quite severely injured one of his hands last Saturday at Stott's store, by catching it on a meat-hook, and the hand and arm were considerably swollen Sunday and Monday.

William Bulson of Portsmouth is on the list of persons granted United States pensions last week. His service was in the Mexican war. We do not know of any person of that name in this city. A man going by the name of William Benson, a Swede, who served in the war with Mexico, lives somewhere at the south end, and may be the person referred to.

"Oh, Why Should the Spirit of Mortal be Proud?" by William Knox; designs by Miss L. B. Humphrey.

"The Breaking Waves Dashed High," (Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers.) by Felicia Hemans; illustrations designed by Miss L. B. Humphrey.

Very dainty and appropriate presents for the Christmas and New Year season are the six little books mentioned above. Printed on heavy gilt-edged paper, profusely illustrated with artistic designs in harmony with the sentiments of the poems, and confined in covers of morocco paper by bows of satin ribbon, nothing neater and prettier in the gift-book line is likely to be shown this season, at moderate cost. The covers are of pale blue or straw color, the front outside bearing the title of the poem with a suitable design, and in the upper lefthand corner a gilt medallion, embossed. Published by Lee & Shepard, Boston, at fifty cents each; for sale in Portsmouth by M. Goodrich.

TO PRESERVE THE SOFTNESS OF FLANNEL GARMENTS, FOLLOW CAREFULLY THESE DIRECTIONS FOR WASHING.

Dissolve thoroughly in boiling water some IVORY SOAP, shaved fine. Add sufficient warm water to wash the flannels in one by one.

Don't rub any soap on the flannels, but knead them well in the solution.

Don't rinse them in plain water, use a fresh supply of the solution, warm and well blued, for the purpose.

Don't wring tightly with the hands, use a clothes-wringer. The freer from water you get these garments the softer they will be.

Hang them out immediately, if the weather will permit; if not, dry before the fire. If left to stand wet, the flannel will certainly shrink.

Never wash flannel in water too hot to bear your hand in.

Never rinse them in cold water.

Always use IVORY SOAP, it is the best, much experience has proved this.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John F. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to Druggist John F. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

EDWARD LUEDER, 1505 Broadway, N. Y.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

POTTER DRUG & CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON.

I give honor to whom it is due. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy cured me of Bright's Disease and Gravel. Four of the best physicians had failed to relieve me. I have recommended it to scores of people with like success, and know it will cure all who try it.—Mrs. E. P. Ulmer, Burg Hill, N. Y. Send 3c. stamp to Dr. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y., for book how to cure Kidney, Liver and Blood diseases. Mention this paper. dcz2

DECREASE OF DRUNKENNESS.

What a Hospital Attendant Has Noticed. Treatment of Jimjam Cases.

"It is my belief," said a gentleman who for the past six years has been in attendance six nights out of the seven in every week at the Chambers street hospital, "that drunkenness is on the decrease. There is enough of it left, goodness knows, but there is surely less than there used to be. Out of the dispensary patients who five years ago used to come here to be treated, it seemed to me nearly half of them were suffering from alcoholism of one kind or another. They sat in a row on the benches, waiting their turn, and nearly every night one or more of them leaped into the middle of the room with the jimjams, and uttered a whoop that would send the rest flying out of reach. That was so common then we thought nothing of it. Now it rarely happens. I haven't seen a jimjam case here this long time. I don't believe it is too much to say that we do not get half the alcohol cases we used to. It certainly isn't because the whisky is better. It is because there is less of it drunk. It must be. The whisky they sell in the dives along the water front is loaded with jimjams to the very muzzle. If there was as much of it drunk as there used to be there would be just as many jimjam cases. I think the bums must load up pretty regularly now with stale beer. That only makes the most of them soggy.

"Yet with the decrease in the number of alcoholic cases treated, there has been an enormous increase in the number of patients who have been cured for here. We have now turned our twentieth thousand for the year 1887, and there are nearly three months of the year left. This is several hundred more than we treated in all last year. Last year the total number treated was 19,837; the year before that 18,132. In 1884 we almost doubled over the number treated in 1882. In 1882 we treated 9,659, and in 1884 16,680. It is not increase of population, of course, which has done this; it is increase in the popularity of the hospital. It has become known that surgical cases, to which this hospital is devoted, are treated instantly. When a man is hurt and brought here, he will find a surgeon ready for him and will receive immediate attention.

"As to the jimjam cases I was speaking of, we only treat them temporarily, and then, if they are bad, send them off to Bellevue. We of course have to send to other hospitals all cases requiring long nursing and attendance—that is, when the patient is able to be moved. Our accommodations are limited here, and we would be swamped otherwise, and have no room or time to accommodate those who are hurt and must be attended to at once. When a jimjam case turns up we have a mixture which we give, and if that fails and the patient is really in for it, we get him quiet and then send him where they are prepared to handle such cases. It very often happens that a man will come in shaking all over, and with the horrors after him, and thinking he is right on the verge, when he isn't. We give him some of the mixture, and tell him to come back for more if he gets afraid again that they are coming on. In many cases they do not come back for more than the second dose, and that generally tides them over that particular time. But, as I said, we don't see more than half the number of these cases we used to. If it isn't temperance it is stale beer. But I think there is much less crazy drinking than there used to be."—New York Sun.

"I caught a cold somewhere," she remarked. "Probably it was in your head!" he suggested, chuckling over his wit, "if so I respectfully prescribe Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Here it is."

Mrs. Margaret Kidder of Chicago has been placed in an asylum, having become insane after taking the treatment prescribed by Mrs. Anna Johnson, a faith healer.

Do you suffer with catarrh? You can be cured if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier. Sold by all druggists.

All cases of weak or lame back, backache, rheumatism, will find relief by wearing one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladona Backache Plasters. Price 25 cents. Try them.

Alexander Ward of Topsham, Me., and Frank Clifford of Portland, have been held for trial for breaking into the Catholic church at Brunswick, Me., and stealing therefrom.

If you are tired taking the large old-fashioned griping pills, and are satified that purging yourself till you are weak and sick is not good common sense, then try Carter's Little Liver Pills and learn how easy it is to be free from Biliousness, Headache, Constipation, and all liver troubles. These little pills are smaller, easier to take and give quicker relief than any pill in use. One a dose. Price 25 cents.

Advices from Thibodeaux, La., say the woods are full of living negroes in hiding, and the bodies of dead ones. The number of negroes killed during the riots was at least thirty. No whites are reported killed. This is the usual proportion.

Educated to a Trade.

Trade schools, as institutions where the industrial arts are specially taught are called, are rapidly gaining a foothold in this country. The apprentice system never can be revived in this country to such an extent as will enable the hundreds of young men who desire to learn a trade to do so. The master workmen in the various trades have neither the time nor disposition to teach young men the secrets of their business. Even if they had, the rules of the various unions limit the number of apprentices, and an apprenticeship is about as hard to obtain as a scholarship in the army or naval schools of the government. The establishment of trade schools is, therefore, a practical educational movement that meets with encouragement from the associations of master workmen in the various trades. These schools, if they do not turn out thoroughly skilled workmen, do furnish young men with a ground work which, with practical experience, will very quickly convert them into skilled artisans.

This fact is shown by the experience of the hundreds of young men, between 17 and 21 years of age, who have laid the foundation of their knowledge of their trades in New York trade schools during the past six years. The instructors there are skilled workmen, and the personal attention by them to each individual student results in the very rapid acquirement by the scholar of the necessary rudiments of his trade. In a busy workshop such personal and constant attention and the immediate correction of false methods or errors of judgment are not possible. It is no wonder, then, that young men seeking to learn a trade make such very rapid and seemingly phenomenal progress as they do at the New York trade schools. Their faults are corrected immediately on being made, and they are taught how to correct and avoid them.—New York Times.

Javanese Princess at Her Toilet.

In stature Mattah-Djarri was somewhat above the ordinary Javanese woman, who cannot be called tall; but in symmetry and delicacy of figure and grace of limb she had no compeer. Both were full and exquisitely rounded, as those of her countrywomen are in general, which is imputed to the suppressed action of the water in bathing twice daily, by pouring or throwing it on top of the head in the eastern fashion, from whence it flows down in trickling streams all over the body, and as the years go on, gradually causing the limbs and skin to become round, firm, smooth and polished. In Mattah-Djarri's case this effect was doubtless aided in no small degree by long friction with delicate oils, and the palms of Djoolo's hands. The faithful babu had bathed her every morning and evening since she was born, in soft, perfumed water; after which she annointed her body and limbs with the highly scented lang-a-chandana (oil of sandal-wood), rubbing it into the pores of the skin till the latter was smooth and dry, then polishing it with the light and delicate bore kuning, a yellow, perfumed rice powder, used by people of rank. Every motion of the beautiful girl was the expression of grace and harmony, to which was added a tranquil ease and dignity, that impressed every one with a sense of her extreme loveliness of character and person, combined with the pure oriental beauty of her face, to gain for her, among her own people, the rare honor of being likened to the Wiladaris (children of heaven).—"A Princess of Java."

A Trick of Oriental Servants.

A lady in Brooklyn has just had a singular experience. She engaged a Japanese servant to do up stairs work. He appeared in the afternoon, was all bows and smiles, and at dinner that evening waited on the table in excellent style. The lady thought she had a jewel of a servant. After dinner he requested to be allowed to go to New York to see about some clothes. He went, and that was the last seen of Jap No. 1. She tried another, with the same result. A third was tried. He stayed two days, and then left early one morning before breakfast. The lady was nonplused over the matter. She told a friend who had been in San Francisco the circumstances. This friend said that housekeepers there had found that when a Chinese servant left a place he didn't like he would put some mark, usually of a character so slight as not to be noticed, on the kitchen wall. The next one, of course, would see it, and thus learn what his predecessor thought of the place and act accordingly. The first servant the lady employed didn't like the situation for some reason, and so left the place and probably his mark. The others saw it and left on account of it. The lady says she is through with oriental servants.—New York Evening Sun.

Great Place to Spank a Baby.

She stood in the pressroom of a country daily, where the agile "fly" of the press was slapping down the papers with admirable precision. She was a motherly looking creature, with a blue cotton umbrella.

"That 'fly' delivers the papers at the rate of 1,500 an hour," modestly remarked the proud proprietor.

"Fifteen hundred an hour!" she exclaimed. "Mercy on us! You don't mean it!" And then, moved by motherly instinct, she added: "What a place to spank a baby!"—Somerville Journal.

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last, our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to Druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best-known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got her a bottle of CUTICURA, RESOLVENT, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your CUTICURA REMEDIES far and near.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the great application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and an IMPROVED INHALER; price, $1.

A Chronic Tendency Overcome.

Many persons are troubled with a chronic tendency to constipation. They are of bilious temperament. The complaint to which they are subject, though easily remediable by judicious treatment, is in many cases aggravated by a resort to drastic purgatives and chologogues. As the human stomach and bowels are lined with a delicate membrane, and not with vulcanite, they cannot stand prolonged drenching with such medicines without serious injury. Nothing restores and counteracts an habitual tendency to constipation so effectually as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Its laxative effect is gentle and progressive. It neither convulses nor weakens the intestines, and its effects are unaccompanied by griping pains. It arouses the liver when the organ is sluggish, promotes digestion, and encourages appetite and sleep. For fever and ague, kidney troubles, nervous complaints and incipient rheumatism, it is incomparable. Take a wineglass before meals and see how soon you will relish them.

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood. For Scrofula, Impoverished Blood and General Debility,

For Children and Pulmonary Troubles.

Dr. W. S. Hoy, Point Pleasant, W. Va., says: "I have made a thorough test with Scott's Emulsion in pulmonary troubles and general debility, and have been astonished at the good results; for children with rickets or marasmus is unequalled."

The Rise in Coal.

One authority says the cause of the high price of coal is the strike of the Lehigh valley miners, for though a good deal of coal has been raised, it has all gone west, the coal handlers at the coal ports refusing to touch it, as it was "scab" coal. This is bosh. The coal barons fought out that very question with the coal handlers of the railroads and shipping points a year or two ago, and WON.

The New York Herald says it is caused by the great coal corporations and transportation companies, and warns them that such deeds are what make anarchists.

A Philadelphia man who represents twenty-seven Pennsylvania collieries, says the rise was caused neither by a monopoly nor a strike of miners, but because consumers generally, in New England especially, did not order their winter stocks till late; this blocked the dealers' sheds, which caused transportation to be slack, which in turn caused the mines to ease up; then when the general call came, water carriage rates jumped to a high figure, and it was hard to fill the orders. He says things are beginning to work easier.

Five hundred miners employed by Jermin & Co. at the Dun colliery, near Scranton, Pa., have resumed work at their former wages, after a strike of four months against a reduction.

Pardee & Co. of Hazelton, Pa., have offered their coal miners 4 1-2 per cent advance, which it is thought will be accepted.

A Philadelphia despatch of Nov. 29th says the president of a large coal corporation that day declared that within two weeks, and probably less, coal will be $1 a ton lower at shipping points.

Be Careful of Them.

The administration cannot be too careful in looking after the new men who come to Congress from back districts. A new member from Texas nearly lost his life the other night at Willard's, by not knowing how the gas worked, and blowing out the light. Such want of knowledge might result in a loss of the small majority by which the democrats hope to enact laws looking toward free trade at the coming session.

A Chance for Sharp.

The New York court of appeals has ordered a new trial in the case of Jacob Sharp, the convicted briber.

Lieut. Comdr. John K. Winn is detached as inspector of the 7th lighthouse district, but will continue in charge of the naval station at Key Westt.

Lieut. Gottfried Blocklinger is ordered as inspector of the 7th lighthouse district.

Chief Engr. W. S. Stamm is detached from duty at Wilmington, Del., and placed on the retired list.

Chief Engr. S D. Hibbeck is ordered to duty at Wilmington, Del.

Asst. Engr. H. P. Norton is ordered from the Atlanta to temporary duty at Chester, Pa.

Passed Asst. Engr. W. M. Parks is ordered from the Richmond to the Atlanta.

Asst. Engr. A. M. Hunt is detached from the Atlanta, and ordered to duty in connection with the inspection of steel for the new cruisers.

The citizens' convention of Boston on Monday evening nominated Nathaniel J. Bradlee for mayor, to run against O'Brien, who is the candidate of the democratic ring for re-election.

Hon. Thomas B. Reed, member of Congress from the first district of Maine, left Portland for Washington on Monday, Nov. 28th. It is understood that he will be the republican candidate for speaker, though personally he has declined to say much on the subject.

The president has appointed Stephen S. Mitchell to be collector of customs at the port of Saco. He is about forty years old, a personal friend of Mr. Clifford of the democratic national committee, and warmly supported that gentleman in his unsuccessful canvass for Congress.

The Boston & Maine freight yard in Biddeford is so crowded that the Old Orchard Beach railroad is used as an overflow track, and cars loaded with merchandise for the Biddeford station are kept there to wait their turn.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, Nov. 28th.

On Thanksgiving eve a quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Samuel Emery, his daughter, Miss Ada Emery, being united in marriage to Mr. Stacy Nudd. The bride was dressed in white satin, with elegant flowers. They are a fine looking couple, belong to two of the best families in town, and entered wedded life with the best wishes of a large circle of friends. Rev. W. C. Bartlett officiated.

On Thanksgiving morning union services were held in the Congregational church; subject of discourse, "Is the world growing better or worse?" by the Rev. J. A. Ross.

The festal day of last week was passed pleasantly; yet in many homes loved faces and forms were missed around the festive board, and where in former years cheer had prevailed, tears dimmed the eye as thoughts of loved voices forever hushed would come to mind.

The third lecture in the lyceum course was on Monday evening, 21st, by Prof. Cross of Robinson seminary, Exeter; he is a fine speaker, and delighted a large audience with a sketch of his tour at the mountains last season, illustrating it with stereoscopic views.

Two weeks since Mr. Charles Philbrook sent fifty-six head of cattle to the Exeter market; last week twenty-eight.

The committee in the several districts are obliged to look for new teachers, a large number having resigned, proposing to enter upon the duties of matrimony and housekeeping

Wedding bells pealed again as one of our most esteemed citizens, Mr. Abbott Young, was united in marriage to a lady at Rye whose name we did not learn.

"Did n't Know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness, indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time refurbished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go through the summer."

Chronic Catarrh

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane, attended with increased secretion. Thus catarrh may affect the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any part of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, coming on so gradually that often its presence is not suspected till it has obtained a firm hold on its victim. It is caused by a cold, or a succession of colds, combined with

Impure Blood.

When firmly established the disease is exceedingly disagreeable, causing flow from the nose, dryness of the throat, headache, loss of appetite, roaring and buzzing noises in the ears, etc. In Hood's Sarsaparilla may be found a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh. It purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the diseased membrane, and thus soon cures the disease. At the same time it refreshes and tones the whole system. The remarkable success of this peculiar medicine entitles it to your confidence. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

"I am happy to state that I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, with which I have been troubled many years, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. My grocer advised me to try and it gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house, as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GIBB, 1029 Eighth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Hood's Sarsaparilla,

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, Ohio.
